What We Hear.

We hear that we are likely to have a season of prosperity. Our storekeepers have been very busy unpacking goods to replenish their stocks, and the business establishments in our backwoods metropolis present a brisk tradesmanlike aspect that could be creditable to any town of much greater pretensions. Our Lumber merchants have been dispatching crews to the woods for the winter's operation, while others are preparing for the season of tree falling, and others are off cruising for suitable locations for the season's operation. Already portage teams are busy journeying, to and from the lumbering grounds, and all appearances point to a good business season.

We hear that one Worth and one Boyd, (both Worth-less characters) have been awarded their well merited desserts, the first has six years; and the latter fifteen, in which to ponder on their dastardly offences. By the time they regain freedom once more, they will have time to learn that criminal assaults on children are not permitted in this enlightened age.

We hear that one of our citizens has just had an attack of the new disorder. The "latest fad" with some doctors, which is now exciting the ridicule of most of the scientific men of the day. We are pleased to note we have some amongst us who can afford to indulge in such an expensive complaint. According to a poem that was read before A Convention of Railway Surgeons, not long since,

It creates a happy frolic,
Something like the winter colic,
That has often jarred our inner organs
some.

Only wrestles with the wealthy,
And the otherwise most healthy,
Having got it, then you're nigh to kingdom come.

We hear that The Christian Endeavour Society's meetings afford a lot of amusement to the members and visitors, as well as to those who have a standing up seat outside. On a recent Sunday evening one blatant elocutionist treated the audience to a rehearsal of Tom Hood's "Bridge of Sighs" and, though there are some very fine sentiments conveyed in that poem, it can hardly be considered a suitable subject for a religious assembly, any more than the same orator's selections from "Rowler Minstrelsy" "History of Europe" and other equally pious subjects.

Glass Tea sets at Carr's from 35cents up. We hear it said, that if a man goes to a public gathering with a large sum in hard cash about him; and, flashes that money to impress others with his importance, and loses the money. It serves him right.

Personals.

Our old friend Mr. Robert Miller, now of Portsmouth, N. H. has been here on a visit to his old home, and has again returned to his New England home. We could almost believe that he has discovered what Ponce de Leon sought for, in vain—the fountain of perpetual youth—for we note that he seems younger than when he left this locality.

Mrs. Albion Tompkins, of Marysville, has been on a visit to friends in Glassville (her old home) bringing with her, (for a treat) her fifteenth baby. Truly she has endeavoured to fulfil the injunction given to our first parents—Be fruitful &c.

Mrs. Hatch, also of Marysville, is here on a visit too.

Mrs. Benjamin Lovely has been away on a visit to Richmond, to welcome back from "The Land o' the Leal" a sister she has not seen for over twenty years.

"WELCOME, LITTLE STRANGER."

A little stranger arrived at the home of Mr. C. Thomas, Glassville, on the 8th inst. Notwithstanding the fact that the home shelters numerous olive branches, She will be accorded a hearty welcome.

Mr. Thomas I want a pair of boot for me little bye.

Yes mam, French Kid?
Ears hid no ind... he was born brought up in Somerville.

A Long Night.

A disconsolate man in our neighbourhood who was compelled to submit to temporary widowhood besought a friend to share his lonely couch. This friend however, says he could not sleep. for his bedfellow kent on, about every half hour through the night: "Gad, this is the longest night I ever put in."

Note.—This favorite medicine is put up in oval bottles holding three ounces each, with the name blown in the glass, and the name of the inventor, S. R. Campbell, in red ink across the face of the bottle. Beware of imitations, and you will...
