The Forester's Pic-Nic.

The Pic-nic held at Glassville on the 10th inst., under the auspices of the Forester's Court, was a most successful and brilliant affair. The weather which on the previous day seemed determined to dash away the cup of pleasure; but, a delightfully fine day dawned over the leaden sky, and roused the drooping spirits of those intent on a day's enjoyment. The ground selected for the fete was admirably adapted for the purpose, being nice and level, with a few shade trees on the south side. A ticket office and culinary department, had been built, and Refreshment Tents were erected on the ground in which the tables were most tastefully laid out; and were fairly groaning with all the dainty dishes of the season. Judging from the appearances we would imagine that they were well patronized; for the pretty waitresses seemed to be kept continually on the run, ministering to the wants of the numerous visitors. The peripatetic photographer was on hand as usual; seeming very busy grinding out tintypes in great profusion, we noticed one family of eleven or "A Baker's dozen" we can't be sure which, posing before the monocle of this artist in collection. Amusements of various kinds were provided for the enjoyment of visitors, Circular Swings, for the juveniles, Edison's Phonograph, Aunt Sally, "three throws a penny" and other-like notions. A platform was also erected for dancing where the gay votaries of Terpsichore tripped it merrily on "the light fantastic" to the excellent music provided by an orchestra of accomplished musicians. The splendid band of the 67th. Battalion R. L. I. who had been specially engaged for the occasion; rendered the Pic-nic doubly enjoyable, by the masterly manner in which they performed, the selection of pieces left nothing to be desired; and, their efforts to gratify those who had assembled on the ground, met with the most enthusiastic approval. We hear nothing but praise bestowed on the band, and compliments to the committee for their perspicacity in engaging such an excellent and accomplished band who not only furnished fine music; but, their bright military uniform, added much to the picturesque appearance of the fete, and ecstasies to the whole proceedings. As the shades of evening began to fall, the pic-nic ground was deserted; and those bent on "making a night of it" wended their way townwards, and shortly afterwards made their way to the Caledonian Hall, where a Grand Ball was arranged to terminate the day's enjoyment.

The interior of the hall presented a very brilliant appearance as the dancers took the floor in the preliminary Grand march to the inspiring strains of a first-class orchestral band. Nearly two hundred guests were present, many from distant places, evidently determined to have all the enjoyment possible. The Ladies who we believe outnumbered the gentlemen, looked charming as pretty faces and elegant costumes, could make them. It is not an easy matter to pick out the 'belle' where there are so many; all well-pretty, and charming as graceful, demour and suavity of manner can render the sex. An excellent programme had been arranged which was danced through to a finish, and the Forester's Ball was brought to a close just as day was breaking, and the guests departed homeward, after a day's pleasure that will remain a Red letter day with many.

Just like a woman—

Who but she could do it?

To dance all night, till broad daylight,
Appear at morn, as fresh and bright,
And live uninjured through it.

Just like a woman—

Who but she would do it?

To flirt for fun, and when it's done,
Discard her lovers, one by one,
And never seem to rue it.

Just like a woman—

Who but she should do it?

In her soft hand to hold command,
Of every man in every land—

While he, fool, never knew it.

Pic-nics seem to be quite the fashion just now, perhaps the hard work that the haying season involves, makes some little recreation desirable before tackling the grain harvest, on the principle of the old distich: that all work and no play is not calculated to elevate the spirits, this may or may not be the reason, however no matter what it may be, good things never come amiss. We like to meet with people who believe life to be worth living for, and scout Bobbie Burns' idea, that "Man was made to mourn." we believe that man was created to enjoy himself in this world; and acting under that belief, we like to see these social gatherings well attended, and we have pleasure in calling attention to the fact that our old friends at Biggar Ridge intend holding their Annual Pic-nic on Thursday 23rd. inst. We hope to see fine weather and a crowd.

West Glassville.

The good people of West Glassville held their annual Sunday School Pic-nic on the 15th. inst. The gathering place, a shady nook in the woods on the bank of the Shikitehawk, where the tables were laid out and the visitors were gratuitously regaled with a substantial and appetising al fresco tea. The drive through West Glassville though hilly, reveals a series of exceedingly pretty views, well worth travelling some distance to see, at present the forest-crowned hills are looking very picturesque in the various tints of sober green, like billowy waves; but, when the forest trees have assumed the gorgeous autumnal colours, the sight is one to delight the soul of an artist.
