"Now, what do you want?" asked the sharp-nosed woman.

"I called to see if I couldn't sell you some bakin' powder," said the seedy gentleman with the straggling beard.

"Well, you can't sell no bakin' powder here, and I ain't got no time to waste on pedlars, any way."

"Come to think of it, ma'am," said the seedy gentleman as he fastened his valise, "I wouldn't keer to sell you no powder. This dingy little kitchen of yours is so low in the ceilin' that the bread wouldn't have no chance to rise.

For all he did he had a reason,
For all he said a word in season,
And ready ever was to quote
Authorities for what he wrote.—Butler.

For the second time in the history of the present parliament Carleton County is without due and legal representation. This is at present a matter of but little importance, as the house is not in session, and our legislators are not engaged in the political business of the province. We would really imagine that a new session cannot be far distant, and we ought to have a second member ready to fill the vacancy. We hear that two candidates have already announced their intention to offer their services to the constituency, what their political opinions are, or what principles they profess as an inducement to the electors, we don't know; whether one or both of them are supporters of the present government; whether they are opposed to them on general principles; or on what pretensions they seek the vote of the electorate, are at the present time unknown.

We remember the time when aspirants for parliamentary honours issued a placard setting forth their political views; stating what they would do for the constituency and the country at large, if only returned at the head of the poll. These promises were rarely fulfilled, and often entirely forgotten a day or two after the election, still we would like to see a good old-fashion electioneering address to the Free and Independent Electors, rather than listen to the windy clap-trap that is the style now-a-days.

We can hardly look upon the present parliament as one affording a suitable opportunity for bringing into the field a politician of any eminence, for it must of necessity be short lived, even if it is carried on to its full length; a thing that is extremely problematical, seeing that the signs of the times point to a general election at a no distant date. Under such circumstances the advantages are too insignificant to call forth any politician of note, or indeed, anyone who has other fish to fry.

Taty bugs.

Why Money is Scarce.

Most people have for some time been complaining that money is scarce; and a great many have told us that fact at frequent intervals. This was entirely a work of supererogation as we had already discovered that fact for ourselves. We like to know the 'why and the wherefore' of all things, and with that object in view have often propounded the query Why is this thusly? Many causes have been assigned as a reason for this impecuniosity, some of them hardly tenable and hardly worth consideration; but one that was recently given us may have a great deal more truth than poetry in it. We put the usual question: Why is money so scarce? The ready answer was: "It's these new buggies and carriages that do the business, and take the money out of this part of the country." We cannot pretend to say with any degree of certainty that it is absolutely true; but we have noticed that new vehicles have become exceedingly common of late; and we are reminded of the celebrated bon mot of Hook, "That doesn't represent income, but out going." And, though the money may not have gone out of the province for them, that is a pleasure to come

"In the sweet by and bye."

It is curious how the designation of the currency of a country alters circumstances. For instance, a lac of rupees in India, is a fortune; but a lack of dollars in Canada is poverty.

Spoiling the Egyptians.

Many years ago, according to biblical chronology, the Israelites being about to depart from Egypt, with the characteristics that have always adhered to their race borrowed money, jewels, gold and silver vessels, and all kinds of valuables from the too confiding Egyptians, and then quietly absquatulated taking all the plunder with them. History oft repeats itself. A similar proceeding is reported in our locality, only on a smaller scale. It appears that a man who came to this part from Westmorland county; having fallen on evil times, and being likely to become a burden to the parish a subscription was started to raise funds to send him and his family, back to their native place. We have been informed that 'The woman in the case' has magnanimously offered to go away, if those who have so generously endeavoured to assist them will raise the sum of fifty dollars. This we look upon as an attempt to spoil the Egyptians.
