

James Love

Glassville,

N.B.

We Buy as Low as We Can!
That's Business Sense!

We Sell as Low as We Can!
That's Progressive Sense!

You Buy as Low as You Can!
That's Common Sense!

You Buy of Us!
That's Dollars and Cents for Both of Us!

We Carry as Fine and Varied a Stock of

General Merchandise,
Patent Medicines,
Dry Goods, Dress Goods

Prints, Muslins, Yarns, Crash, Notions and

GROCERIES

As Can be Found in Any City.

We buy direct from the largest jobbing houses and manufacturers in the country for CASH, and are enabled to get the lowest prices besides always being sure of obtaining first-class goods. We are not paying enormous expenses and will sell you goods at reasonable rates.

We Keep the Best Brands of Flour
That are Obtainable.

We have a Complete Stock of Boots and Shoes.

Family Trade
Is Especially Solicited

Your patronage is always appreciated, and no matter how small your purchases, you may rest assured it will be our constant aim to sell you the best goods that can be obtained and at reasonable prices.

THE OLD-FASHIONED BOY.

Oh, for a glimpse of a natural boy—
A boy with freckled face,
With forehead white 'neath tangled hair,
And limbs devoid of grace.

Whose feet toe in, while his elbows flare;
Whose knees are patched all ways;
Who turns as red as a lobster when
You give him a word of praise.

A boy who is born with an appetite,
Who seeks the pantry shelf
To eat his "piece" with sounding smack—
Who isn't "gone" on himself.

A "Robinson Crusoe" reading boy,
Whose pockets bulge with trash;
Who knows the use of rod and gun,
And where the brook trout splash.

It's true he'll sit in the easiest chair,
With his hat on his tousled head;
That his hands and feet are every where,
For youth must have room to spread.

But he doesn't dub his father "old man,"
Nor deny his mother's call,
Nor ridicule what his elders say,
Or think that he knows it all.

A rough and wholesome natural boy,
Of good old-fashioned clay;
God bless him, if he's still on earth,
For he'll make a man some day.

Acute Indigestion.

The stomach is a patient and long-suffering organ, which may go on doing its duty day after day and year after year, with never a protest against the mass of unprepared and unsuitable material that is crowded into it. But there is a limit even to the endurance of the stomach, and when at last it does protest, it makes its complaint known in an unmistakable way.

The cause of most indigestion is less in the stomach itself than in the mouth. The stomach is but one of the digestive organs, and can and will do only the task that properly belongs to it. It cannot take raw material and work it to such shape that it is ready to be taken up by the absorbent vessels and carried to the tissues for the nourishment of the body; consequently raw material, that is, material not properly chewed, must not be put into it.

There are two kinds of abuse of the stomach. The first is the occasional overeating, such as even the most abstemious are likely to indulge in on Thanksgiving day. This may be a very serious matter if the heart is diseased, but it is not generally of much moment in the young and healthy. The food is taken in too great quantity and too rapidly, without being properly chewed. There is more or less distress; the little glutton (or perhaps the big one) feels heavy, maybe a little sick at the stomach, and wonders if he will ever care for mince pie again. In the meanwhile the stomach is struggling with its load, and, despairing of ever digesting it, tries to get rid of it by pushing it on into the intestine. If it succeeds the burden is shifted to the intestine. If it fails it may expel the contents by vomiting. But even then some irritating material usually remains and sets up a fermentation which is called a bilious attack.—Youths Companion.

A bilious attack is quickly cured by taking three or four of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse out the stomach and restore it to a healthy action in short order.

I WAIT AND WEEP.

BY TORU DUTT.

Still barred thy doors! The far-east glow,
The morning wind blows fresh and free,
Should not the hour that wakes the rose
Awaken also thee?

All look for thee, Love, Light and Song—
Light in the sky, deep red above,
Song, in the lark of pinions strong,
And in my heart true Love.

Apart we miss our nature's goal,
Why strive to cheat our destinies?
Was not my love made for thy soul?
Thy beauty for mine eyes?

No longer sleep,
Oh! listen now!
I wait and weep,
But where art thou!

A Good Letter.

It is with pardonable pride that the Chamberlain Medicine Company publish the following letter. Kind expressions of a similar sort are coming from all sections of Australia.

Newland St., Waverly, Sydney, Aug., 10, 1903. I have much pleasure in writing to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. I had suffered for some time from a disordered liver, but am pleased to say that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets restored it to a healthy action. I have recommended them to many of my friends, who cannot speak too highly of them. The beauty of them is that you can leave them off and not feel any effect from discontinuing them. Wishing the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets the success they deserve,
(Signed) MRS. LILLIE CLARKE.

Witness was on Oath.

A good legal story is told in Blackwood's of an encounter between counsel and witness. A counsel had been cross-examining a witness for some time with very little effect, and had sorely taxed the patience of the judge, the jury and everyone in court. At last the judge interrupted with an imperative hint to the learned gentleman to conclude his cross-examination. The counsel who received this judicial intimation with a very bad grace, before telling the witness to stand down, accosted him with the parting sarcasm, "Ah, you're a clever fellow, a very clever fellow. We can all see that!" The witness, bending over from the box, quietly retorted, "I would return the compliment—if I were not on oath!"

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets in Michigan.

"Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are the best thing for stomach troubles and constipation I have ever sold," says J. R. Cullman, a druggist of Potterville, Mich. They are easy to take and always give satisfaction. I tell my customers to try them and if not satisfactory to come back and get their money, but have never had a complaint. This medicine is being sold in every state in the Union on this same guarantee and not a box has been reported unsatisfactory.

Attractive Boxes Alone Do Not Sell This Medicine.

Mr. C. C. Bosworth a druggist of Ladrid, Iowa, says: "To my notion Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are the best thing they make and the finest thing of the kind on the market. I always recommend them. I think the very neat way in which this preparation is put up sells many packages."

The fact that these Tablets are put up in an attractive manner might induce people to try them, but people do not buy medicine for the boxes, as the sales of this remedy especially show. After once using them, they come back for more. One dealer reports having sold as high as fifty boxes on the recommendation of one lady, who was benefitted by their use. They are a new remedy for stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation and are easy to take and pleasant in action. The effect being so agreeable that one hardly realizes it is produced by a medicine.

The Common People.

The school was celebrating Lincoln's birthday, and the principal had invited a distinguished citizen to speak to the pupils. He was one who had known the martyr President in his earlier life, and he talked freely of the struggles, the integrity and the high qualities of Abraham Lincoln, and especially of his sympathy with and fondness for the common people. Then, fearing that some of his young hearers might miss the force of his important point, he asked—

"What do we mean by the 'common people'?"

Slowly a small hand was raised and a childish treble answered—

"It's folks that ain't married."

The purgative effect of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets is so agreeable and so natural that one hardly realizes that it has been produced by a medicine.

Rapid Strides.

There was probably no remedy ever placed upon the market that won the reputation for good that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have in the few years they have been before the public. This medicine acts directly upon the liver, regulates the bowels, invigorates the stomach and cleanses the system. The result is a relish for the food, increased strength and a clearer head. The following is one of the many letters received from dealers everywhere. The orders for these goods are increasing so rapidly that the capacity of the manufacturers is taxed to its utmost.

I have been selling Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for the past three years and find the demand steadily increasing. I can recommend them to my customers.—G. T. RILEY, Wichita, Kan.

Had Reason for Regretting Him.

Andrew Carnegie tells, with a merry twinkle in his eye, a story of a boyhood friend with whom he renewed acquaintance on a recent visit to Scotland, says the New York Times. In the course of conversation, Carnegie happened to ask about a certain Georgie McKey.

"He's dead long ago," said his friend, "and I'll never cease regretting him as long as I live."

"Dear me, had you such a great respect for him as all that?" asked the library king.

"Na, na! It wasna ony respect I had for himself; but I married his widow."

Sick headache results from a disordered stomach and can be cured by the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.

A Progressive Farmer.

A. G. Kyle, a farmer who lives near the line of Lawrence county, is a good example of the progressive agriculturist, remarks the New Castle, Maine, Herald. Mr. Kyle is on a rural free delivery route, and cast about for a means by which the family might be notified of the placing of mail in the box. Electricity naturally suggested itself. Procuring a battery, a coil of wire, a bell and a button, he rigged up an automatic signal. When the carrier raises the lid of the box a contact is made, and the bell, which is placed in the house rings loudly. A member of the family then goes out and gets the paper and any other mail that may have been left.

Working Day and Night.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that was ever made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. These Tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fog into mental power. They are wonderful in building up the health. This is all accomplished by keeping the bowels regular and the digestion in good order.

Leave your striving never ending, let the weary world go by;
Let its bondsmen hug their fetters, let its traders sell and buy,
With the roses in the garden we will sojourn,
you and I.
—Hafta.

They are Certain to Please You.

If troubled with indigestion, bilious attacks, lack of appetite, or constipation, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you are certain to be greatly pleased with the result.

No Room For Both.

General "Phil." Sheridan was at one time asked at what little incident did he laugh the most.

"Well," he said, "I do not know, but I always laugh when I think of the Irishman and the army mule. I was riding down the line one day, when I saw an Irishman mounted on a mule which was kicking its legs rather freely. The mule finally got its hoof caught in the stirrup, when in the excitement, the Irishman remarked: 'Well, begorra, if you're goin' to get on, I'll get off!'"