

much mistaken the establishment of a college, of three or four professors of agriculture, and a model farm choicely stocked in New Brunswick, has for some time past been the desire of at least one member of the Local Government, Hon. Michael Adams We should therefore not be much surprised if the Board would take the preliminary steps in this matter at its first meeting; and the prelimiary step would be to draw up a resolution endorsing this view, and presenting the same to the Executive Government.

We think the time has now come others. They contribute largely to but they derive the least benefit from it. We all know that we are far behind the age in farming and stock raising in this country; and that as a farm have little ambition to try anything else. All the aspiring youth from the country, either become teatunes, disdaining to take the plough the trust the Government repose in write well, are too big to work about them the better. a farm; while for those who attend high school the degrading work is felt in small coteries here for some of quite out of the question.
