THE SLAVERY SYSTEM THERR.

In the San Francisco Chronicle of last Saturday was printed an interview with an old sea captain who has had a long experience in the Sandwich Islands on the system of slavery founded by the owner of alarge sugar plantation on the islands. The captain is a man of large means, whose about as miserable as can be. word is above reproach. The substance of his story is as foll-

I arrived from Honolulu two weeks ago. The occurrences of which I speak are, therefore, new. Slavery exists on the Hawaiian islands in the most hideous form; there are three classes of emigrant people on the island at present, aside from the night. rapidly dying native element. The chief ingredient of the WHAT THE WOMEN SAY population, and the one which is virtually master, is Chinese. Of these and their moral worth or worthliess, the people of San Francisco know enough. of the means of subsistence by the Chinese, who have turned their taro patches into rice fields, and left the Kanakas to live on the degradation of their women. The most miserable class of people on the island are the South Sea Islanders. They are veritable slaves, hunted to death by cruel overseers, recruited from out of truth.

The Hawaiian Government owns and charters almost all vessels which are in the slave trade with the South Sea Islands. These are fitted out with a consignment of whiskey, blankets, and trinkets. Captains having arrived at one of the wellpopulated Pacific isles, begin to trade with the chiefs, and soon secure a shipment of aboriginal gloves are? humanity, upon whom the hatches are battened down for forty days, and until the slave trader casts anchor in Honolulu. Here the unfortunate heathen, naked and child like, are driven into an inclosure popularly called the pen. Then they are apportioned to different plantations, each ave receiving a tin hog! tag with a number on it, which is tied around his neck, and a malo or lap-cloth with which to hide his nakedness, after which he is driven off to a slave's death. But few survive the harsh treatment of their taskmasters. Among these heathen thing! slaves a frugal, hard working, and respectable Portnguese is now! thrown, and has hardly better treatment. Upon arrival, the didn't she? same pen receives him on touching Honolulu. Here he is also apportioned to a different plantation on the island, and is driven off by slave drivers, whose gun. trusty and steady companions are revolvers and bowie knives. I know that the accusations againstClausSpreckles and other planters have been denied, but affirm that not only is that which you have said true, but you have heard but half the VOLUME IV. There arrived during my stay at the island a cargo of five hundred Portuguese. These people were informed by their countrymen on shore what fate had in store for them. They were landed in the pen, and instead of finding a genial climate and beautiful woods, so eloquent on! ly pictured to them by the emigration agents, they were told that sterile cliffs and plateaus of volcanic mountains would be their future homes. They refused to separate in the pen, and threatened to break their contown, and a posse of police and two companies of soldiers as now. well as a field battery were The Portuguese were willing to found themselves suddenly surrounded by a cordon of soldiers ready to throw shot among the carriage! them; they would have fought. nevertheless, but among them be squashed! were their wives and children, and nothing remained but to THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. and nothing follow their masters, humbly hoping for the best. THE NEWSPAPER.

OH, DEAR!!!!

The newspaper greets the eye of the youthful intellect at its BARRISTERS, ATTORNEY earliest dawn and goes with the boy and the man and the old man daily through all the years down to the grave. It is growing faster than anything else on earth. In 1704 there was one paper in the United States with a circulation of 16,000 copies annually in a population of 600,000. In 1880 there were 6,000 newspapers with a circulation of 1,600,000,000 in a po... pulation of 40,000,000. In the earlier period they printed a few dozen copies per hour; now a good office throws off 100,000 per hour. It is making the air radiant and scintillatiog with Wonder how much he's ideas, multifarious, multitudinous and infinite in variety and character and power. The pul. pit, the platform, the forum, the school the college, and every institution for the development of thought and the disseminatioation of knowledge in the world are not equal to it in power. There is no preacher, no lecturer, no institution which the united energies of a hostile and adversary press cannot crush and utterly destroy. Well might the great Napoleon de. clare that a newspaper was the THEY SAY her shoes are fives. regent of soverigns and a tutor If his hair isn't parted in the of nations, and that four hostile newspapers are more to be Wonder what on earth she dreaded than a thousand bay... onets.
