THE TUNIS CAMPAIGN.

A sketch of the marching and fighting.

The first part of the campaign, which was directed solely against the border tribes, may now be said to be finally closed. The attack was made in three columns, advancing from bases on the eastern frontier of Algiers. The mud and rain were the chief obstacles to the advance; but bands of Kroumirs appeared, and lurking behind rocks and brushwood, somewhat harassed the French with a not very effectual fire. The Temps' correspondent, who was with the left wing of the expeditionary party, describes the Kroumir country as marked by deep ravines and forests of oaks, with but few patches of cultivated land. On reaching the Feikalat crest which commands it, Gen. Vincendon and his staff were received with musketry fire from 200 to 300 Kroumirs posted behind brushwood and rocks—a reception which was a significant commentary on the Bey's announcement that they had submitted and were ready to make reparation. The French replied and had one man wounded. The Galland column, while marching toward Feikalat by another route and by bad paths, were exposed to a warm fire, but they effected a junction with Gen Vincendon. On continuing their march the French had one man killed and five wounded. The Kroumirs allowed them to approach within fifty yards, then fired and fled through the brushwood. A Kroumir who shot a lieutenant in the leg, and was immediately shot down dead by a private next him, was a robust youth of eighteen. His only garment was a shirt with a cord round the waist. He had a cutlass and a knapsack containing powder and cartridges, but his musket could not be found. In a hut in a ravine were discovered a woman and child and five old men, also some hens; the women were taken care of and the hut set on fire. The French, on nearing the coast and within sight of Tabarca and the French ships, found some Kroumirs posted behind a mass of rocks. They made a flank movement, and on approaching within 500 yards fired on the rocks and brushwood. The Kroumirs fled; the French who had one man killed, encamped on the spot. They had marched twenty-five or thirty kilometres in a region where they had sometimes to climb up by the help of bushes, and not a single man had lagged behind, though half of them were conscripts of only five months' standing, who at the outset were rather diffident, but after being fired at recovered their nerve.

HEAT AND THIRST.
"There can be little doubt," says the Standard correspondent, "that the most formidable obstacles to be surmounted in this campaign are not the military force either of the Kroumirs, Duchetatas, or Tunisiens, but the scarcity of water and the heat. Both are terrible enemies, against which discipline is almost powerless. Our column, which left the Wild Fowl Lake at four o'clock in the morning, after quitting the plains entered a mountain district, and at about 8 a. m. crossed a stream at only a short distance past Boradz Bou Redium, at about twelve miles from the place of starting. The sun had been scorching, and some of the men were evidently suffering severely. I was riding by the side of General Vincendon at the head of the column, when we reached a bridge spanning a small stream. Seeing the state of his troops he posted a company of the Ninety-sixth of the Line on the banks of the rivulet to prevent the men of that regiment from going down to drink. This was no easy task, but it was accomplished, and the regiment passed without a single man having moistened his lips. It appears cruel, but in fact it was an act of humanity and good generalship. The General having orders to give at the head of the column now rode off, leaving on aide-de-camp to transmit orders to the colonel of the Fortieth of the Line that no man was to be allowed to drink. When this regiment came up the Colonel thought fit to disregard the General's orders, and the soldiers rushed down to the fresh waters and revelled in the immense luxury of a long draught. A very few minutes after the last man had regained the road a halt of twenty minutes was sounded. General Vincendon, to whom the Colonel's disobedience had been reported, sent for him immediately, and, taking away his sword, condemned him to a fortnight's arrest.

THE COTTON "OUTRAGE."

(Mail.)
When we are told that the people are paying $2,000,000 of taxation "on cottons" we are, of course, prepared to be shocked. And when we read that the $2,000,000 goes to the "cotton lords" we feel the stirrings of communism within us. But when in moments of coolness we give up our minds to reflection, we relax our frowns and lower the tone of our indignation. A comparison of the value of the importation of cotton and other articles between 1878 and 1880 suggests various reflections to the well regulated mind. Taking the items of cotton importation as nearly as they can be compared for the two years, we find the figures to be as follows:

1878—Value,	$4,056,197
1880—Value,	1,373,655
Decrease,	$2,672,542
Again, taking in the same way the items of blankets and flannels in wool goods imported, we make a comparison as follows:
1878—Value,	$554,016
1880—Value,	297,827
Decrease,	$256,189
Again, taking the total importation of wool goods imported for the two years, the figures run up as follows:
1878—Value,	$8,835,690
1880—Value,	6,394,768
Decrease,	$2,530,928

Again, taking the items of imports of cabinetware and furniture as another example, we find the following result:

1878—Value,	$399,330
1880—Value,	92,049
Decrease,	$307,281

We have taken these simple obvious cases of goods that are in daily consumption. They show that there is less imported, and less duty (or "taxation," as the Opposition insist) paid than in 1878, and yet the prices have not increased. The money paid for the goods produced at home goes, we are told, into the pockets of the cotton lords, wool lords, and furniture lords, not to speak of the sugar lords, who are the worst of all. This is a favourite theory with the Opposition. But the fact is, and every intelligent man knows it, that the money goes into buildings, into machinery, some, or much, of which is now being made at home; and the reasonable balance, less municipal taxation and repairs, goes as profit on the investment of capital. The money paid in wages circulates all through the country in many ways, which all intelligent persons understand. The "lords" pocket but a reasonable profit on their investments. The great mass of the money which was formerly paid for the labour of English and American artisans is now paid to our own citizens and labourers. These latter are fully aware of the fact, however the Opposition may try to conceal it.

INCIDENTS OF THE WESTERN FLOOD.
A Dakota despatch says the flood in that section was sudden coming, owing to the formation of the huge ice gorges that came in huge waves; six feet or more high. People sleeping peacefully were roused to fright and action by the deafening clash of tens of ice dashed against their houses, and stepped from their bed into water already so deep that haste was needful to reach the upper story if there was one, the roof there not, or the shelter of a barn or stack of greater height than the dwelling. Wave succeeded wave, and frames were crushed in, timber strained and bent, and roofs uplited, until incoherent ruin took the place of orderly comfort. One woman left alone with her young child was awakened by the crashing in of one end of her house. The waters pursued her in the second story, and even into the loft, so she beat a hole through the roof with her hands, clambered on the ridge of the roof with her infant, and there remained four days, until help came. One woman was confined during the commencement of the flood, and as the waters rose her bed was raised on boards laid across the uppermost rafter in the apex of the house. There she remained nine days, and now she and the child are doing well. Two old ladies left alone found their house gradually leaning to its fall, and rushing out into the night through water above their waists gained safety in the top of their barn near by, there remaining for more than a week. Little children with naught to cover them save the scantiest night attire, withstood exposure that would make a strong man shudder to imagine, and are today all well save sundry frost-bitten members. All these have been rescued, too. These poor people have such accommodations only as a generous people themselves little less than destitute, could give them.

A COUGH, COLD, or SORE THROAT should be stopped. Neglect frequently results in an incurable Lung Disease or Consumption. BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balsams, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, give relief in Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Catarrh, and the Throat Troubles which singers and Public Speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's Bronchial Troches have been recommended by physicians, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25c per box everywhere.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it, there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25c per bottle.

A Sense of Weariness is often felt by persons who cannot locate any particular disease. If they work, it becomes labor; if they walk they soon tire; mental efforts become a burden, and even joys are dimmed by the shadow of this weakness which is cast over their lives. Recourse is had sometimes to stimulants of a dangerous character. The advice of physicians to refrain from active labor produces no happy results. Why? The system is debilitated and needs to be built up properly. PERUVIAN SYRUP will do this very thing. Like the electric current it permeates the entire system, and harmonizing brings the color to the cheek again, and hope to the despondent. It does its work promptly and well.
