PROTECTION IN ENGLAND.

(Mail.)

Many English journals, in consequence of the new French tariff, admit that the time is drawing nigh when the Imperial Government will have to deal with the question of foreign bounties. Mr. Hugh Cairley, the Conservative member for Manchester, observing the perils the British manufacturer is being forced into by reason of the adoption elsewhere of protective duties, intends to move in the Commons for a committee to inquire into the influence of foreign tariffs on the trade and commerce of the United Kingdom; and it is not at all improbable that free-traders will favor the policy which some have already propounded, of "correcting the ideas of foreigners by weighting their products with imports sufficient to countervail illegitimate advantages secured under protective tariffs and bounties."

IRISH RUMORS.

A despatch of the 26th inst., says that "There is a well-grounded rumor to-night that Mr. Forster, who had come to Ireland in a very bad temper, has determined to suppress, for a time at least, all land meetings in Ireland. Five meetings of first-class importance are announced for Sunday, and the attitude of the authorities is watched with some anxiety. Although protected by six hundred troops and police, a process-server at Gangoslin, county Leitrim, was foiled in the attempt to serve processes on some of Lord Annesley's tenants by the threatening attitude of the people. All is quiet in county Limerick. The authorities have not yet intimated when they will renew the attempt to carry out evictions at New Pallas and Killmallock.

VOLUME III.

CHATHAM, N. B., JUNE 1, 1881.

NO. 90.

A LIVELY ENCOUNTER WITH A BUFFALO.

Buffalo hunts out on our Western plains are not always void of excitement and romance, as a young gentleman from Mississippi will testify who recently engaged with several others in one of these hunts. It so happened that he had become separated from the rest of the party, and was hiding behind a sage-bush, waiting patiently to get a shot at a large herd which seemed to be coming in his direction. He had not long to wait before the excited herd dashed by and disappeared amid a cloud of dust, leaving behind an immense bull, which had been wounded by the gentleman aforesaid. As soon as the cause of his misfortune had been discovered the animal dashed upon him, giving him barely time to jump as the infuriated bull passed directly over to the spot where he had stood. Things began to look more alarming than interesting, but there was no time to consider the matter, as the animal was again upon him, and again he had to jump. This operation was repeated four times, he managing meanwhile to get in several shots, but without effect. As he was jumping for the fifth time to escape the assault, his foot slipped, the bull's horn passing through the calf of his leg, completely severing the cord, and leaving the adventurer in a helpless and critical condition. The animal came bounding down on him for the last time. With barely strength enough left to raise his rifle, he fired, and, to his unbounded relief, managed to lodge a ball in the animal's brain. He was picked up by his friends soon after in a senseless condition.

AN ELOQUENT FREDERICTON DIVINE.

The following is the language with which a minister stationed at Fredericton regaled his hearers the other night:—"Life, my friends, is a great river, abounding in rocks and shoals, eddies and sudden shoots, about which the waters whirl, lie motionless, or madly rush. Each form of life is a drop, born in the heavens, cradled in the clouds, nursed by the loving sunlight, launched upon this charming stream. Some slumber 'neath quiet banks of ease, others sweep along fast and furious in the full current of fame; some ripple merrily away in the light of joyous hope and youthful fancy; others are left wasting away on the highwater rock of waning fortune; some dash swiftly on, foaming and roaring away in the surge of wanton power and pointless existence, wasting their strength on the shoals of useless experiment, others glittering in the gaudy, blind moon of fashion, fretting at the general burders they should help to float; some hurrying backward and downward in the undertow of foiled ambition—all, my friends, sooner or later, reaching the salt-salt, misty sea of death, thence passing upward to the common source of all."

THE IRISH AGITATION.

The words used by Brennan in his speech at Killoscully, previous to his arrest, were:—"We see now the landlords proving true to their past traditions as enemies of the people by the way in which they are showering notices of ejection through out the country. I ask you if such proceedings took place in any other country, say England? If two hundred thousand people in England were threatened with extermination from their homes, what do you think would be the result? (A voice, "Revolution!") Mr. Brennan: "Yes; revolution." cheers.) The very ground would be stained with blood, and the English people would hurl from power any Government that permitted it. (Cheers.) Let us have no more nibbling with the question, but let every man in Ireland who pays rent only pay rent when he is forced to do it at the bayonet's point. Let them bring their bailiffs, sheriffs and soldiers—those hired mercenaries who are recruited from the slums of England and brought here to shoot down the Irish people. (Groans.) Allow rent only to be collected when they have put all their machinery in force. You should do this with regard to all writs for the recovery of possession and notices of ejection you should treat them in just the same way."

AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY.

Blackwood's Magazine.

"In all the larger cities of the United States there is a class which openly calls itself, and is openly called by others, the aristocracy; and the more modern members of it are endeavoring as much as possible to adopt the manners and customs of aristocracies in other countries, to contract matrimonial alliances with them, and to bow down before them. They put their servants into livery and emblazon the panels of their carriages with heraldic devices in which coronets and other insignia of nobility and even of royalty, are visible. Some have purchased property abroad and call themselves by the well-sounding foreign name; others have adopted the names of noble families, and some have even gone so far as to assume foreign titles, which they use when abroad, and with the crests and armorial bearings of which even at home they stamp their note paper and decorate their dinner menus.

The demand has become so extended in this direction that two heralds' offices have actually been opened in a fashionable part of New York to meet it, where coats-of-arms, crests and mottoes may be obtained to suit the name, taste, rank and pedigree of the purchaser."

From R. Fellows, M. D., of Hill, N.H. "Although I have generally a great objection to patent medicines, I can but say in justice to Dr. Wistar's BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY that it is a remedy of superior value for pulmonary disease. I have made use of this preparation for several years, and it has proved to be very reliable and efficacious in the treatment of severe and long-standing coughs. I know of one patient, now in comfortable health, who has taken this remedy and who but for its use, I consider, would not now be living.
