AN ALBANIAN REVIEW.

A PICTURESQUE SCENE OF STRIKING SOLEMNITY.

A writer in Blackwood's Magazine thus describes a review of Albanian troops in Southern Epirus: The levee ended, we mounted our horses and rode over the plain, rounding the spur which is projected into it from the western ridge of hills, toward Mazaraki, where a great gathering of the Tchamis had been convoked. The careful cultivation of the soil, and the number of villages clustering on the slopes of the mountains, showed how populous this district is. Most of the notables of Margariti accompanied the Pasha mounted on every variety of horse and mule; even the modest donkey was not unrepresented in the cavalcade, which glittered in the sunshine with the rainbow tints of oriental dress. Some hundred bold mountaineers on foot careered merrily in front of us, uttering wild war whoops, and discharging in the air their bell mounted pistols and ancient matchlocks with interminable barrels.

After a couple of hours smart riding we reached the meadow where the demonstration was to take place. It was, indeed, a striking spectacle. Not less than 2,000 Albanians had responded to the call. As we took up our places on the carpets which had been spread for the Pasha's party under the shadowing branches of an olive grove, which fringed two sides of the meadow, the whole assemblage rose to their feet and saluted their leader with a long, low shout. The scene was one of passing solemnity. The picturesque groups of mountaineers, their red caps and white fustanelles contrasting with the green meadow, their strange uncouth weapons gleaming in the sun shine, the gray houses of Mazaraki nestling among trees on the slopes of the western hills, the wooded heights behind them, and in the back ground distant ranges of blue mountains rising tier above tier against the brilliant sky.

Our host rose in response to the acclamations of the meeting, no longer the stolid Turkish Pasha, but the enthusiastic patriot, and as the winged words flew from his lips, he seemed to breathe his very soul into the assembled multitude, until when the closing sentence fell upon them, every man took it up and repeated it with the full power of 2,000 healthy lungs. "Long live the autonomy of Albania!" Then came a striking incident. Among the mountaineers gathered on the meadow there were many who belonged to villages and families between whom there existed ancient feuds. Solemnly these bitter foes walked up toward the Pasha and bound themselves over, with the kiss of peace, to abjure their quarrels for evermore, in view of the national peril. Such a thing has never been seen, the Pasha told me, within the memory of man.

"And look there," he added, pointing to a small knot of mountaineers, "those are Christians. Hitherto they have always held aloof from their Mussulman neighbors, but to day they have come unsolicited to join in the common demonstration. There are not many Christians in the Tchamouri, but when arms are distributed I shall give them with the same confidence to Boutro (Peter) as to Ahmed. For, mind you, it is not with those old matchlocks that they can fight the Greeks, however brave and fearless they may be. The gist of my speech was that the nation was in danger, and that I had come to supply them with arms and organize their resistance, that they might defend the liberties of a united and independent Albania."

REVENUE and TAXATION.

(“MAIL.”)

Our Opposition friends are not easy to satisfy. Their role in politics makes that impossible. They are not "comfortable" when in power; they can hardly be expected to be satisfied when in Opposition. What troubles them at present is the increase of the revenue. The returns, so far, show a monthly increase over last year as follows:

July	$ 509,541
August	837,799
September	693,165
October	448,945
November	480,607
December	467,992
January	600,993
February	374,218
March	320,157
April	315,461
Total	$5,048,878

Unable to deny the fact, they say the result is due to excessive "taxation;" and then of course they demand the reduction of the rate of taxation in the name of suffering people. Now, as Mr Mackenzie himself contended, the weight of taxation must be judged in reference to the wealth of the people in years past.

But supposing that the Opposition have some ground for exclaiming against the taxation, there are other replies to give. In the first place, Sir Richard Cartwright pledged his reputation to the statement that the new tariff could not raise a revenue; that the combining of protection and revenue was a perfectly "impossible problem." Yet the problem has been solved. In the next place, would the people have escaped from taxation if the Grits had been returned? We doubt it. What did Sir Richard Cartwright mean when he said he was going to raise $31,000,000 before 1881? Did he expect to get it for nothing? What did he mean when he asked the people to "make sacrifices" to build the Pacific railway, and when he told them it was a great moral gain for them to be able to make "sacrifices" in the public interests? Did he not mean taxation, and nothing else? Of course he did. We have the confession of all the leaders that if they had come into power they would have been compelled to raise the rate of taxation. We have the statement of Mr Charlton that under the next Grit Government the taxes may be "even higher." We know that they raised the taxes in 1874. We know that they proposed to raise them in 1876. And we have the fullest assurances from them all that when they have the chance they will, while keeping up the rate of taxation, which cannot be diminished, so arrange the tariff that industry shall have no fostering, capital no security, enterprise no field, and labour no employment. If the public like the prospect they will keep yearning after the rule of Sir Richard Cartwright, who will certainly guide the fiscal policy of his party.

A WORKMAN'S AWFUL FATE.

A truly horrible incident is reported in the Viennese papers as having taken place a few days ago in the great paper mill of Messrs Gellerth & Fuerth, at Pilsau. It having been reported to the manager of that establishment that the great steam boiler was foul and the furnaces required cleaning, he caused the fires to be extinguished, and employed a gang of workmen to execute the necessary cleansing operations. One of the laborers, a powerful young fellow of nineteen, named Anthony Kaczander, after toiling hard at his share of the job for several consecutive hours, lay down in the huge air pipe, running under the main furnace, intending to snatch a few minutes rest. He must have fallen into a deep sleep; for, when the masons instructed to brick up the end of the pipe later on in the day carried out their orders, he made no sign. As soon as the furnace was pronounced to be again in working order the stokers were instructed to light the fires, and did so. Presently Kaczander was missed in the mill. Search for him was instituted, but in vain. Next morning it appears to have occurred to one of his fellow workmen that he might have crept into the air pipe. Upon this suggestion being communicated to the manager, steps were at once taken to break into the closed mouth of the tube; and, sure enough, the charred skeleton of Anthony Kaczander was discovered lying close to the issue, bricked up during his heavy slumber of the previous afternoon. What the poor fellow must have undergone while being slowly baked alive is almost too terrible to think of.

A COUGH, COLD, OR SORE THROAT should be stopped. Neglect frequently results in an Incurable Lung Disease or Consumption. BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balsams, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, giving relief in Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Catarrh, and the Throat Troubles which Singers and Public Speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's Bronchial Troches have been recommended by physicians, and always given perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25 cts. a box everywhere.
