JAMES A. HAY, CARRIAGE BUILDER, Light Driving waggon, Concord, Piano Boxes, Express Carts etc. Trimming and repairing a specialty. Best stock kept always on hand. Come and inspect.

Young's New Axle Cutter. Patented in the United States and Dominion of Canada. We would call the attention of all owners of carriage and waggon to this Machine and the benefits derived from its use. All wagon axles after being two or more years in use become worn till they become loose, requiring the use of leather washers to take up the lateral play; the washers soon filling with sand, cause the axle to wear much faster, until the axle is soon ruined, or nearly so.

THE REMEDY. By the aid of this very simple machine, the shoulder for the axle nut is cut back and the thread extended, allowing the nut to be screwed further on, causing the wheel to run as evenly as when new. Give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. A Paint shop is in connection with the Factory. Orders respectfully solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Chatham, March 16, '81

ENGLISH NEWS. Wild swans are rare in England, but Gen. F. W. T. Burroughs, C. B., and keeper shot two fine specimens the other day on Wahuster Loch, Orkney.

The largest bird which fell to the General's gun, was five feet long, seven feet seven inches from tip to tip of the wings and weighed seventeen and one-half pounds.

COLORADO BEETLES.—An English farmer who had emigrated to Canada returned not long ago, taking with him as great curiosities about twenty Colorado beetles. Some of them escaped, and the farmer was fined £5 for allowing them to get away.

The matter has been made the subject of an enquiry in the House of Commons. The people in the vicinity where the escape took place have hopes that the beetles have either starved to death or are all bachelors.

THE great struggle over the admission of women to University examinations has resulted in an overwhelming victory for the ladies. At the congregation held on Thursday afternoon, the graces confirming the recommendation of the Syndicate were carried by overwhelming majorities, the first being carried by 398 votes to 32, the announcement of the numbers being received with immense applause, in which the ladies present joined.

THE greater part of the walls of the ruined castle which for centuries has dominated over the little borough town of Launceston, in England, the other day fell to the ground without any previous warning. Antiquaries have long speculated as to the date of its construction, and many of them have professed to find in the remains some traces of Roman work. For many generations a part of the building was used as a prison, and within its walls were confined some of the enthusiastic whose religious opinions had been obnoxious to the Government of the day. Under the Government of the day, the Commonwealth, George Fox, the Quaker, was subjected to eight months' imprisonment in a "noisome den."

VEGETARIANISM IN FRANCE. A vegetarian society has been founded in Paris, and has just issued its first Bulletin, in which we are told that the object of the society is to discover the "elementary regime most advantageous to the human species." Vegetarianism ought to commend itself to many French people, with whom "rosbif" and "biteck" are not the institution that they are in England. Indeed, the great bulk of the French lower and lower middle classes, like the peasantry and the bulk of the working classes in Scotland, are vegetarians without being conscious of it, and probably more from necessity than choice. The Paris society has been founded by Dr. Hureau de Villeneuve, who, as he tells us, in an eloquent article in the Bulletin, became a vegetarian on account of repeated attacks of rheumatism, from which several of his ancestors had died. After some years of exclusively vegetarian regime, the Doctor has got rid of all traces of rheumatism, and his health is completely restored. In his article he presents the usual, and some additional, arguments for vegetarianism with much force, maintaining that on his system, and with due attention to exercise, we should be healthy, strong, vigorous and intelligent. Many men, he points out, notable for their moral and intellectual energy and physical vigor, have been vegetarians; among others Pythagoras, Plutarch, Newton, Milton, B. St. Pierre, Franklin, Monthyon, who all lived to an old age. President Lincoln, he tells us, whose stature was gigantic, his muscular force colossal, and his energy indomitable, eschewed all animal food. The moral seems to be that such man ought to find out what suits himself; no doubt vegetarianism, with which M. de Villeneuve includes milk, butter, cheese, and eggs, would make life much brighter for many dyspeptics and rheumatics.

A RUSSIAN STUDENT DEVoured BY WOLVES. Alexander Vassilvitch Elissieff, a medical student, the author of many articles that have from time to time appeared in Russian journals, and an indefatigable student of the ancient province of Novgorod, arrived on the 11th inst., on the estate of a Mr Vassilief, in Old Russia, in order to hunt wolves. He was desired to stay the night at the house, and not to face the dangers of the chase alone. To this he agreed, but when Mr Vassilief, who had been obliged to absent himself during the day, returned in the evening, he learnt that his guest had left the house about four o'clock in the afternoon. His return was looked for from hour to hour, but the whole of the night passed without his arrival. On the following day, toward evening, a peasant brought the intelligence that the young man had been torn to pieces and devoured by wolves. When a search was made the snow was found to be covered with bloodstains, and scattered around were pieces of clothes and hunting appurtenances. Not far from the place were found several large bones, and the stock of the student's gun, with the barrel broken off in the life and death struggle which he had evidently maintained with his numerous foes. The many wolf tracks and blood stains all around showed that a severe struggle had taken place, and that several of the animals had been killed and devoured by their fellows.

SCOTCH NEWS. FALL OF AN ANCIENT LAND-MARK.—Tourists by the Loch-awe route this incoming season will fail to have a look at the immense monolith that stood quite close to the coachway near Loch Ederine. This monolith which has stood the brunt of storms for probably 3,000 or 4,000 years, snapped about 4 feet from the ground last week, and the upper part now lies stretched in the field.

FARMS AT RUINOUS RENTS.—An Aberdeen farmer writes that half the farmers in the district would be glad to be allowed to leave their farms. Their leases are proving their ruin, as it is impossible to keep up their rents. The writer took a lease of a farm 15 years ago, and invested £2,300 in it. He lives on £80 a year, and works with his men; but if he left to-day he would not take £1000 out of the farm. The rents are now from 30 to 40 per cent. too high.

BARBAROUS WARFARE. An Austrian officer in the service of Persia writes respecting the conflict between the Persians and the Kurds: "Every kind of cruelty was resorted to. Villages were burned; women, old people, and children were killed promiscuously. The writer of this letter passed through sixteen burning villages in a single day. Herds of 1,000 sheep and 500 cows or buffaloes were taken and driven away, and the shepherds either murdered or sent into slavery. The soldiers, being badly clothed and badly paid, felt justified in plundering where they could. The Austrian officers with great difficulty managed to keep their troops in order. The weather with its rainfalls and snow storms, was so very inclement that a great many of the Persian troops succumbed. In the old regiments 400 men died.

It is constantly used by thousands of persons suffering from the above diseases, and in nearly every instance it affords a speedy relief.
