MR. DAVITT'S SPEECH.

The following is an extract from the speech, delivered at Armagh, Ireland, which led to Mr. Davitt's arrest. After explaining the objects and aims of the Land League he went on to say:-

"The movement which has been called into existence by the democracy of Ireland is one which must triumph over all opposing obstacles, as it is in line with justice, reason, and social progress, while resting on principles as indestructible as the evils against which it is directed are notoriously self-evident and perishable. This is the movement, then, Orangemen of Armagh, which your common sense and social aspirations have prompted you to come here to day to support, and if you share in the intelligent resolve and earnest desire which now finds a place in the mind of every other Irishman who has to live by his sweat and labor from day to day, you will continue to give the land league that measure of active assistance which will enable it to win for you and your children the sole enjoyment of the fruits of that labor (cheers for the land league). The aristocratic drones who swallowed your earnings in the past, and snatched from your families the food which your industry had produced, and now finding that you are no longer the tame and superstitious fools who fought for their amusement and profit with your equally foolish and superstitious Catholic fellow-workers, and allowed the landlords to pick both your pockets during the encounter, (cheers). My friends, the landlords of Ireland are all one religion—their God is common and rack-rents, and evictions their only code of morality, while the toilers of the fields, whether Orangemen Catholics, Presbyterians, or Methodists, are the victims whom they desire to see fling themselves beneath the juggernaut of landlordism while shouting their own degradation and their country's shame (cheers). Let them read in this meeting to-day, in this gathering of Irishmen, no longer enemies because you worship your Creator in different ways, no longer strangers in the land which will ever harbor Protestant patriotism as well as Catholic fidelity, that religious feuds shall perish in a just and moral struggle for common rights against the common enemy of Irish hearts and homes. Look across the undulating plains which stretch from this meeting to-day, and which the snow cannot hide, and picture the rest of our fertile country, so blessed by Nature's lavish gifts, and say why poverty and misery should find a home where a generous soil, teaming rivers, and a genial climate should give assurance of a prosperous and happy existence. Ask yourselves if it be not human rather than natural agency which condemns our country to perennial desolation, and you its people to perpetual pauperism; and if you are men with courage to strive against monstrous wrong, say that this human agency shall be stamped out as a foul, malignant disease from the social life of Ireland, [hear, hear, and cheers]. Go to your homes from this gathering today, and after your toil and suffering during the past year ask yourselves why your children are ill-clad, yourselves ill-fed, and your hovels unprotected from the cold winter's blast that causes the wife of your bosom to shiver with cold, and if you find the answer in receipts for rack rent tell Mr Gladstone and his government that the time has arrived when you will consent no longer to a system which is responsible alike for your bodily suffering and mental anxieties, but that the food and wealth which your labor produce will gladden your children and bless your home in the future.

If you work in the great movement with that earnestness and intelligence which should be expected from you in efforts to free yourselves from rack rents and evictions, that felonious institution that is associated with crimes that would damn any system to everlasting extinction must give way and perish in the near future before a united and determined Ireland (hear, hear). In joining the land league organization and laboring for its success you are laying the foundation of future comfort and security for yourselves and children, and building round your homes and your earnings an entrenchment which landlord rapacity or agent's greed will not dare to cross any more. Ask the people of England and Scotland why their representatives in Parliament should coerce you, deprive you of the right of meeting and freedom of speech because you are demanding in a just and constitutional manner to be relieved of a system which has robbed, insulted and maddened you in the past. Tell them you will no longer toil that your children's enemies may reap; that you will no longer continue to live in misery that idlers may sport upon your earnings in other lands; and depend upon it that as determination to be freed once and for ever from this culture of landlordism will convince the taxpaying people of these two countries that the time has come when it is as expedient as necessary to withdraw their support from an institution which has cost them so much to uphold against the people of Ireland, and which a united nation is resolved to abolish. See that every hand is against this Ishmael of Ireland's social existence, and that no compromise, no three F's, will be accepted by you for what is your just demand, and your determined resolve to obtain. (Cheers.) Continue to stand by each other in every emergency which may arise, because it is only by loyal combination you can resist the unjust attacks of your enemy. Refuse to occupy or bid for any farm out of which another has been evicted for non-payment of an unjust rent, for it is only by such self-denial you will be able to withstand the powers of the landlords.

THE PARVENU OF NATIONS.

I am given to understand that the great charm of America and things American is a charm of newness. The natural features of the country are as old as those of Europe or of Asia—mother of religions and grandmother of races; but everything else is of yesterday and looks its age to an hour. In America nothing is ancient of days but the Rocky Mountains, the Mississippi and the Yosemite Valley; everything else—the people, the whiskey, the constitution, the poetry of Walt Whitman, the Declaration of Independence itself—is obtrusively juvenile. We Easterns saunter along composedly under the shadow of immemorial oaks and elms; the Westerns, "the youthful, sinewy races," are shot about in cars, along avenues of gigantic fungi. Their traditions smell of paint, and their glories are odorous with gilding; their blazon reminds you of a transparency; they have not had time to grow famous, they have advertised themselves into notoriety, and their fortune, colossal as it is, has a twang of patent medicines and domestic machinery. They are a great, a mighty, a magnificent people; but they are the parvenu, the nouveau riche, in the society of nations, and the fact is evident in all they do. In course of time they will have lived themselves into blue bloodedness, and they will be middle aged and venerable. At present they are but the ancient Britons of their own history, and though they do not paint themselves with woad nor clothe themselves in the skins of beasts, nor worship the mistletoe, nor offer human sacrifices, they are, in several important particulars, as savage and barbarous as may be.—Ex.

A HARD CASE IN IRELAND.

A Dublin correspondent telegraphs. At Dunmanway, County Cork, a few days ago, Dennis Leary, his wife, six children and aged mother were evicted under circumstances of unusual brutality. Leary held a farm on the estate belonging to Mr. Thomas Gillenan, of Clonakilty. The rent was £50, and the valuation exactly half that sum. It seems that a determined resistance was offered by the two women to the action of the bailiffs, who had to be assisted by the police. The head constable aimed his rifle at Leary's wife to intimidate her, but she resisted desperately, and when the affair was over she was lying on the roadside in such an exhausted condition that the police deemed it advisable to send a priest and a doctor to attend her after the eviction was effected. Leary, who was evicted for the nonpayment of one year's rent, entered on his farm some years ago with a capital of £5,000, which he amassed in America. He now leaves the rack-rented holding a penniless man. Whatever opinion is entertained of the main provisions of the Land Bill, there can be no doubt about the universal condemnation which has been hurled against the minor clauses which propose to foster emigration. The tide of emigration has already reached alarming figures.
