Be sure you get our brand, as other Canadian Wines are sold as Pelee brand. Brands—Pelee Port, Dry Catawba, Sweet Catawba, Isabella, St. Augustine, Old Port Concord, Fermented Grape Juice Chateau Pelee Claret.

GAGETOWN, JULY 2TH, 1897. E. G. Scovil, Agent Pelee Wine Co., Dear Sir—My wife has been afflicted with nervous prostration for several years, using every kind of medicine recommended, but obtaining no relief until I procured some of your Pelee Wine, which I am delighted to say, has had the desired effect. It is the greatest tonic of the age, I think too much cannot be said in its praise and no house should be without it. We have recommended it to several suffering from the gripe debility, with like good results. I am, yours gratefully, JOHN C. CLOWS.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Contributed by the I. O. G. T.

All lodges, and others interested in temperance work, are earnestly solicited to contribute for this column. Correspondence to be sent to Secretary, Cambridge Union Lodge; McDonalds Corner.

"Let all who love our Order and desire its progress—who love our Order and desire its maintenance—who would extend a knowledge of our beautiful organization, and perpetuate its principles, which aim to promote fraternity, to unite men and women in acts of benevolence and incite them to a generous emulation for the good of all mankind, that our Charity may be co-extensive with the universe, winning by gentle influence and example the erring and unfortunate victims of the tyrant alcohol to a place in our inner sanctuary, where sweet Peace sits enthroned, and Purity has an abiding place, and Love is the guiding star, unite in a determination to sustain and support this Temperance Column. THE SILENT SERMON.

As good Dr. Cutter, of Brooklyn, was once returning on horse back from some visits among the poor of his flock, a poor woman presented him with a fine pair of fat chickens. He hesitated at taking so valuable a present from one apparently so needy, but she turned to him with such an appealing look as she said: "You will hurt my feelings if you do not take them," that he no longer declined. "I have fattened and dressed them on purpose for you," she continued. "It is the only return I can make for the great service you have lately done me, and my children."

"What service?" asked the minister in some surprise. "Sir, you have reformed my husband." "There must be some mistake," said he kindly. "I knew your husband was intemperate, but never said a word to him on the subject."

"I know you never have, and if you had, his pride is such you might have made him ten times worse. But it has happened oddly enough, that when you have stepped in to say a few kind words to us, he has often just taken a dram, or been just taking down the jug. About two months ago, just after you had been here, to my surprise he took down the jug and poured on the ground over a pint of rum. "Debby," he said, "rinse out that jug with hot water; I have done, I can't stand that man's looks any longer." It was the sad, kind, serious, look in the good man's eyes that went to his heart. He spoke a volume of entreaty and solemn warning and kindly pity. The man could not resist it, and that solemn sermon saved him.

It is worth cultivating, this benevolence of countenance, but there is only one way to get it. There is no cosmetic that can produce it, and there is no such beautifier of even the plainest face. It must come from a loving soul, shining through the heart and longing to rescue the perishing, to raise the fallen. The nearer the life and spirit are in harmony with Him whose very name is Love, the more radiant with this heavenly glory will be the face on which it glows. M. M.

THE POWER OF CHILDREN.

A man was leaning, gnuich intoxicated, against a tree; some little girls coming from school saw him there, and at once said to each other, "What shall we do for him?" Presently one said, "Oh, I'll tell you, let's sing him a temperance song." And so they did collecting around him they sang—

"Away the bowl, away the bowl," and so on in beautiful tones. The poor fellow enjoyed the singing, and when they had finished the song said, "Sing again, little girls, sing again." "We will," said they, "if you will sign the Temperance Pledge." "No, no, we are not at a temperance meeting; there are no pledges here."

"I have a pledge," says one, and, "I have a pencil," cries another, and holding up the pledge and pencil, they brought him to sign it. "No, no; I won't sign now. Sing for me."

So they sang again— "The drink that's in the drunkards' bowl Is not the drink for me." "Oh, do sing again," said he, as he wiped the tears from his eyes.

"No, no more," said they, "unless you'll sign the pledge; sign and we'll sing it for you." He pleaded for the singing, but they were firm, and declared they would go away if he would not sign. "But," said the poor fellow striving to find an excuse, "there's no table here, how can I write without a table?" At this a modest, quiet, pretty little creature, with her finger on her lips, came and said, "Yes, you can spread the pledge on the crown of your hat, and I'll hold it for you."

Off went the hat, the child held it, and the pledge was signed, and the little ones burst out with— "Oh water for me, bright water for me." I heard that man in Worcester town hall, with uplifted hands and quivering lips say, "I thank God for the sympathy of those children. I shall thank God to all eternity that He sent those little children as messengers of mercy to me. S. B. HIGH LICENSE.

We are at a point in reformatory movements in this country when it is proposed to restrain or control or stop the traffic of ardent spirits.

The first has been tried by compelling the merchant thereof to pay a large sum, say five hundred dollars, as a license. It is said that this will have a tendency to close up the small drinkeries which curse our cities, and only a few men can afford to sell intoxicating drinks.

This money, raised by a high license, it is said will help support the poor-houses where there are widows and orphans sent by dissipations of husbands and fathers. This high tax will help support the prisons in which men are incarcerated for committing crimes while drunk.

How any man or woman in favor of the great temperance reform can be so hoodwinked as not to understand that this high license movement is the surrender of all the temperance reformation for which good men and women have been struggling for the last sixty years, is to me an amazement that eclipses everything. "High License is the monopoly of Abomination."

We must realize that the one result of this high license movement, and the one result of the closing of small establishments,—if that were the result—is to make rum-selling and rum-drinking highly respectable. These drinkeries are so disgusting that a man will not risk his reputation by going in them; and if a young man should be found coming out from one of those low establishments he would lose his place in the store.

Now, suppose all these establishments are closed, and that then you open the place of inebriation down on the avenues. It is not the rookeries of alcoholism that do the worst work; they are only the last stopping places on this road to death. Where did that bloated, wheezing wretch that staggers out of a rum-hole get his habits started? At a glittering restaurant or bar-room of a first-class hotel where it was fashionable to go.

I am opposed to high license because it is anti-American, anti-common sense, and anti-Christian. How dare men propose for five hundred dollars to let one man sell sweetened dynamite, while you deny to his fellow the right because he cannot raise the amount? Are the small dealers to have no rights? I plead for equal rights; I plead for the right of these men who are doing a small, prudent, economical business in selling extract of logwood, strychnine, and blue vitriol.

Now this high license is property qualification in its most offensive shape. Why not carry it out in other things? Why not stop all the bakers until they can pay a thousand dollar license? Why not shut up all the butchers' shops until the butchers can pay one thousand or five hundred dollars? "Oh," you say, that is different." How is it different? "Well, the sale of bread and meat does no damage, while the whiskey sale does."

That surrenders the whole subject. If rum-selling is right, let all have the right, and if it is wrong, five hundred dollars are only a bribe to the government to give a few men a privilege which it denies to the great masses of the people. Give them all the privilege. P. P. (To be Continued.)

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address, Unfermented Grape Juice.

The following recipe is pronounced by all who used it the best they have ever tried. Wine made by it has been used by one church at its communion for nearly twenty-five years. It is also one of the best and one of the cheapest drinks that any family can put up for winter use.

The best grapes to use are the Isabella or Concord grape, but any ordinary blue grape will do. Procure a twenty pound basket of grapes, wash the bunches under the tap to free them from all dust, pick all the berries from the stems (rejecting all but perfect berries), into a porcelain lined or granite ware preserving kettle, crush with a potato masher, put over the fire and seal till pulp and skins are separated. Then put all into a jelly bag and allow it to drip over night. In the morning a few cupfuls of boiling water may be mixed with the remaining pulp, and the rest of the juice extracted in the same way. Put all together, with three pounds of white sugar, over the fire and just bring it to the boil. Skim it clear, bottle it while hot in pint bottles, and cork at once, ramming the corks down tight, and seal with sealing wax, or bees' wax and resin mixed.

While the juice is being brought to the boil the bottles should be put on the stove in a boiler of clean water, and also brought to the boil. The hot juice may then be poured into the hot bottles without fear of their splitting. The corks should also have been soaking in water over night to make them soft and pliable. Be sure to hammer the corks in tight; cut off what remains out even with the top of the bottle, and when you seal make sure that the top of the bottle is well covered, that not a pin hole is left for microbes to enter. Where you expect to use large quantities at once, quart bottles are the safest. Keep it in a dark, cool place. Some use less sugar, as little as two pounds, and some more. It is purely a matter of taste. The easiest way to seal is to melt your sealing wax in a tin cup and dip the heads of the bottles into it.—Montreal Witness.

Grains of Gold.

The scholar without good breeding is a pendant; the philosopher a cynic; the soldier a brute, and every man disagreeable. Never be afraid to own the truth, let the consequences be what they may. Ever keep truth for your motto and guide, and you will surely be the gainer in the end.

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

True, unchangeable love remodels our characters, removes the weed of selfishness, making us live for something better than ourselves, makes us see new beauties in things around us, and by its sanctifying influence purifies our lives.

"Who wrote the seven ages of man, Johnny?"

"William Shakespeare."

"And are there seven ages of woman?"

"I guess so, but she sticks by one of 'em all the time."

No; it is not hard to write funny paragraphs. All you have to do is to procure a pen, some paper and ink, and then sit down and write them as they occur to you. It is not the writing, but the occurring, that is hard.

Farming in the Maritime Provinces

Differs materially from farming in Ontario and the West. Conditions are different and our markets not the same. A product profitable in those sections would not pay the tillage here, and a suggestion valuable to a westerner, would prove disastrous if followed by our farmers. In subscribing for an agricultural publication it is well to bear this in mind. There's only one paper that treats of farming from a Maritime Province point of view.
