that each one of us, however humble our sphere may be, weighs something in the scales of God. A human life is always important, and never yet has a soul visited this earth that did not have some special work to do. You may not think this of your own life, for you have often thought that you are of no use to anybody. Your circle is so small, your influence is so shiply your corporately it. 4.90 1.01 fluence is so slight, your opportunities are so few! That is the way you reason, because these are some things which you do not know. If you did know them you would see the weakness of your argu-1.18 ment, just as the angels see it who from | the liquor traffic. their high vantage ground look down on your whole life. If you were a giant, you say, and could shake society to its centre with your warning voice, could tear the evils out of the body of the community and put nobler usages and customs in their place, then life would be worth living. Sometimes you have a longing to do that, but since it is beyond you, you sink back discouraged. Your utmost endeavors are confined to a small family circle or to a few friends and neighbors. The ambition in your heart cannot be gratified. You feel its You are living and you will die in chains, and you grow restless, discontented, unhappy. You have been deprived of your chance to do something worthy of your-self, and unless you are careful your na-ture will become soured by that thought. There are many people who suffer in this way. While it is a glorious thing that they are conscious of power which is dormant and which will never be al lowed to exhibit itself, the fact of being tied down is extremely disturbing. It is a false philosophy which has got possession of your mand and is making bavoc with your business. Of all heresies that is the most dangerous, and if religion teaches anything it teaches that your position is a mistaken one. Perhaps you have seen a piece of mosaic in some old cathedral. If you have examined it carefully you have discovered that it is made up of pieces most of which are very small. The picture could not have been made with large pieces only. Small pieces, some of them. extremely small, were necessary in order to make the work perfect, When you look on the picture as a whole you forget all about these little bits, but. the artist who made it knows them all, and knows that without them he could have done nothing of any great value. Were these bits of no consequence, in view of what has been accomplished with them? Can any one of these bits rightfully grumble because it is not fering from la grippe debility, with like larger? Is not each one in its proper place contributory to the magnificance of the whole? So is it in human life. It matters not much to a true soul what its environ-ment may be, if it is really a true soul it makes the best of the lot that has fallen to it or been assigned to it-does its duty in its narrow circle and so gets ready for a wider sphere hereafter. It is better to fill your place full than to spend your time in grieving that it is not larger. God is your God wherever you are, provided you are doing your duty. All work is noble, and even hardship may make your soul grow to grander

It is not so much what you are doing as how you are doing it that tells on your welfare. The highest kind of religion is that which prompts you to be Christlike in small things, that in the future you may be made "ruler over many things."-Re7. George H. Hepworth, in New York Herald. An English Dinner in 1840.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

As the time for our plebiscite camteers to swell their ranks.

Dear Reader! are you a temperance worker? "Oh, no," I hear some one saying, "I am a temperate man, but I take no active part in the work." Sin of omission, is it not? At least the opportunity is near when each man will have privilege of taking an active part. Yes! and it is not only his privilege but his 1.35 resources are not exhausted by the death of poet, scholar or statesman. Even while we mourn our loss and feel that no duty in the matter.
