From Skagway

Mr. G. H. V. Bulyea, who is on his way to the Yukon writes to his mother Raisins. here, which will be of interest to our readers, his letter is as follows:-

SKAGWAY, Feb. 11 .- Arrived at Skagway last evening and will send this back on the boat. Skagway is a nicely laid out town at the foot of the hills. To use a western phrase it is a swift place. There Citron, are dance halls by the dozens. Every other place is a saloon and there are more gambling games than I ever heard tell of. A few of us made the rounds last night and took in the sights. The White Pass is in good shape and we will get over easily in a couple of days and then you will hear from me only when I get'a chance to send a letter out.

Your affectionate son. GEO. H. V. BULYEA.

Funeral of Mrs. Margaret Cameron.

The oldest resident of Mill Cove has recently passed way in the person of Mrs. Margaret Cameron who died on March 1st. She had completed her 89th year, and was thus little short of 90 years of age. The great esteem in which she was held was manifested in the large attendance at her memorial service on Thursed with a reverent and deeply affected congregation. All the central seats were occupied by mourners. The service was conducted by the pastor Rev. C. W. Townsend who was assisted by Revs. A. B. Macdonald and G. W. Springer. The sermon was preached by Mr. Townsend from the words: "I shall be satisfied when I awake with Thy likeness;" Psalm 17: verse 15. The preacher referred to the limited knowledge possessed by the Old Testament Saints concerning another world; but pointed out that there were some who in the strength and clearness of their faith seemed to herald the coming of a clearer day of revelation. Among such was David who uttered these words; and he (the preacher) would ask his hearers to ponder this statement of the Old Testament in the light of the New. The language contained (1) An Implication: It was implied that here below there was no satisfaction for a child of God. It affirmed (2) An Expectation: I shall be satisfied." And it anticipated (3) A Transformation: "When I awake with Thy likeness." These thoughts were elaborated in an earnest discourse, which concluded with a solemn application to the unconverted. After the sermon the Rev. G. W. Springer made some feeling and fervent remarks in reference to the deceased. He spoke of her zealous character, and told how once by her strong faith and glowing testimony she turned the tide in a series of meetings when the interest appeared to be dying out. The Rev. A. B. Macdonald also paid his tribute to the character of the departed. he related how she had walked by the shores of the Grand Lake from Waterboro to Jemseg and back on the occasion of her baptism. He mentioned other interesting circumstances and emphasized the appeals made by the previous speak-

At the close of the service a large number availed themselves of the sad privilege of looking for the last time upon the serene face of the aged saint.
