Chipman.

Dec. I5.—The closing examination, for the summer term, of the school Briggs' Corner was held last Wednesday in the presence of a goodly number of the parents and other visitors interested in the education and advancement of the district.

This school has an 'enrolment of about 30 scholars: but with a compulsory law in force, several more children of a wayward turn of mind would be deriving lusting benefits from our free school system not only in this district but in all the surrounding districts not in the parish of Chipman alone hut throughout the whole province. It is a lamentable fact that there are whole families growing up to manhood and womanhood living within a mile or so where schools are maintained the year round and yet these children have never been within the walls of a school room and do not know the letter for such gross neglect, is compulsory education, with penalties for violation of school laws. Of course, there are no children in this district who cannot read and write and all have a fair knowledge of the rudiments of the English language. The school at present is under the charge of Miss Mary Keith who examined the pupils in all the various branches taught during the term. The school is under good discipline and the ready answers of the children produced a favorable impression upon the trustees and visitors pres-

vember, has escaped from Pretoria. LONDON, Dec. 14 .- While the outward ly calm attitude of the press and people here during the present crisis commands admiration, there is an undercurrent o intense indignation against the war office and the government, which threatens to have a serious addition in the blunders of the generals and the further evidence of the breakdown of the transport and intelligence departments, which are daily coming to light. It was freely predicted this morning, even in high military circles, that the campaign would last until June. It was also expects that General Methuen would have to retire south of the Orange River, and t was claimed that he could not hold out longer at Modder river, where his food supply and ammuni tion were not expected to last over week. In fact, it was said that his line of communication had probably been al ready cut and it was claimed that General The new Baptist church at the station Gatacre had been similarly weakened by his reverse and the revolt of the colonists and he might have to choose between siege and a retreat.

The afternoon newspapers of all shades of politics follow the morning papers in facing the situation courageously and in demanding the immediate despatch of reinforcements. Thus the Radical Star says: "The stake the gambler Chamberlain has thrown on the table is not merely South Africa, but the Empire. It i too late to regret the game. We have no choice but to play it, even if it involves sending abroad the militia. Our armies in South Africa must be amply reinforced." The scenes at the War office today when General Methuen's casualties were posted were highly dramatic. There was a steady incursion of anxious inquiries from the moment the door opened, and there was intense excitement when an official appeared bearing the omniously long list of names. The women present crowded eagerly forward and begged for copies of the lists. The supply was not sufficipenters have put in a double handwood ent, so the official read out the lists. Infloor and fixed up a new stove and pipe tense feeling was evident on all the faces, and the pitiable anguish of the bereaved was extreme. It was a memorable scene. > London, Dec. 14-The Times has the following from Modder River, dated Dec. 10: "We have been shelling, from a distance of 7,000 yards, the Magersfontein Kopje on the eastern end of the Spietfontein range, which terminates in an abrupt saddlerock 150 feet high.

The Boer entrenchments ran round the whole front of the position for two miles, due east and west. There is a plain on the north side of the kopjes, which affords an opportunity for cavalry work. Methuen's Wesley Sherwood and John Armstrong latest engagement. Some persons cruelly started a report that not only were the It is rumored that a wedding will take | Canadians in the battle, but that they place in an adjoining locality about suffered severely, the casualties being placed at over one hundred. This contemptible invention caused keen distress among the friends and relatives of the contingent. Newspapers and telegraph offices were besieged with enquiries. It is not believed in military circles that the Canadians were with Methuen's column. It is believed they, for the present at least, will be detailed to the important work of keeping open the line of communication, especially in view of Col. Otter's despatch which stated "line communication."

London, Dec. 15.—It is announced here that Gen Sir. Redvers Buller commander of the British forces in South Africa, who was moving to the relief of Ladysmith, has sustained a serious reverse at the hands of the Boers. He has lost many of his guns. London, Dec. 15.—Gen. Buller reports to the war office as follows: "CHIEVELEY CAMP, Dec. 15, 6.20 p. m. charge in Dis. No. 2. Miss Sorrell con--I regret to report a serious reverse. I moved in full strength from the camp near Chieveley at 4 o'clock this morn-

> "There are two fordable places on the Tugela River, and it was my intention to force a passage through one of them.

"They are about two miles apart, and I intended to force one or the other with one brigade, supported by a central brigade. Hart was to attack the left drift Hilyard had the right of the road. Lyttleton was in the centre to support either. Early in the day I saw that Hart would not be able to force a passage, and directed him to withdraw. He had, however, attacked with great gallantry. His leading battalion, the Connaught Rangers, I fear suffered a great defeat. Col. Brooke was severely wounded. "I then ordered Hildyard to advance, which he did. His leading regiment the East Surrey, occupied Colenso station and the houses near the bridge. At that moment we heard that the whole artilerv I had sent back to that attack, namely the 14th and 66th field batteries and six naval 12-pounder quick firers, the whole under Colonel Long, were out of the action. It appears that Long in his desire to be within effective range, advanced close to the river. It proved to be full of the enemy who immediately opened a galling fire at close range, killing all the horses and the gunners were compelled to stand to their guns. Some wagon trains got shelter for the troops on a donga. Desperate efforts were made to bring out the field guns but the fire was too severe. Only two or three were saved by Capt. Schofield and some drivers whose names will furnish. "Another most gallant attempt with three teams was made by an officer whose name I will obtain. Of eighteen horses thirteen were killed, and as several drivers were wounded. I would not allow another attempt, as it seemed there would be great loss of life in an attempt to force a passage unsupported by artillery. I directed the troops to withdraw, which they did in good order.

"Throughout the day a considerable force of the enemy wes pressing my right flank, but was kept back by the mounted men under Lord Dundonald and part of Barton's brigade. The weather was intensely hot and most trying on the troops, whose conduct was ex-

"We have abandoned ten guns and lost by shell fire one. "The losses of Hart's brigade are, I fear, heavy, though the proportion of severely wounded is not, I hope, large. The Fourteenth and 66th batteries also sustained severe losses. We have retired to the camp at Chieveley.

London, Dec. 16.—The revised list of he British casualties at the battle of Magers fontein shows the total to be 963. of which number 70 were officers.
