Poetry. "I SHALL NOT WHOLLY DIE." I know that I shall die; It needs no gloomy herald standing near, To sound this daily message in my ear, As the swift years go by. The soft winds whisper it with every breath, Earth's streams all hasten to the gulf of death. That which is born must die. What is that we call death? Is it to drop with all our hopes and fears Down to the silence of eternal years. When ends this laboring breath? To have no part in all this wondrous whole, While sun shall rise and starry heavens roll, Is this what we call death? A whispering voice replies: "Nay, nay, when man the mortal turns to dust, Kind mother-nature will restore her trust, And he again shall rise. RESURGAM, and live in plant, and flower and tree, Passing through life and death eternally, Beneath these arching skies." Oh, cheap and foolish word Vain, empty show and mockery of life! Is this the hope when ends our mortal strife, By which man's soul is stirred? Nay, immortal life ever full and free Moving in conscious thought eternally, Like flight and song of bird. ASTHY DAY. As this my day! O promise blest! Sweet words of comfort, words of rest! No more with boding fear I wait To read to-morrow's hidden fate, What'er its tears, What'er its perils, pains, and fears, While sun and stars and worlds endure The old, sweet promise standeth sure. The Head that holds the world uphears My weary heart with all its cares, The eye that slumbers not has seen My graveyard mounds with grasses green. My father's pitying love has read The pain behind the tears I shed, How comforting his words to me, "Child, as thy day thy strength shall be." Long, long ago, when life was new, I learned that love, divinely true, That watchful care, that now for all, The stars' grand march, the sparrow's fall. Long, long ago I learned to trust That calm, wise will and purpose just, Worn, weary, wounded, now at length, I lean upon that matchless Strength. As this my day! my little day; My broken troubled, thwarted day; The day whose roseate morning bloom Was quenched and darkened into gloom. 'Tis morn of gifts! 'Tis noon of loss! The lengthening shadows of the Cross! Once more my Father, say to me, "Child, as thy day thy strength shall be." (Mrs. Mary H. Finn, in the Advance. A TINY LETTER. A memory of brighter days Is mine to-night: A fireside with its ruddy blaze, And two eyes bright That look in mine so thoughtfully; Those of the lad who wrote to me. Perplexed, I toiled, with many cares, Upon my task; My little one came up the stairs Something to ask; Rudely repulsed, without a word He left me with his wish unheard. The moments fled; then at my door A step came light; A tiny letter on the floor Quick caught my sight; I picked it up, my heart was sad That I had so repulsed the lad. "Dear pa," the tiny letter read, "I know that you Are tired; so I'll go to bed, But these words few I write to tell you that I love You more and more, all else above." Oh, how the wisdom of my books Shrunk into naught Before those unclaiming looks That erewhile sought My own! I called him back to me, Dear lad—and kissed him tenderly. A memory? Oh, if we knew The future's blight That oft our pathway doth pursue 'Twould clear our sight; And words that chide would seldom fall To haunt us like a gloomy pall! I could not keep my little lad! But here tonight A fond memento, sweetly sad, Makes dim my sight: A letter kept so sacredly, The one my darling wrote to me.
