THE LANDLORD AND THE BOY.

'Will you walk into my bar-room?" said a landlord to a boy; "Tis the cosiest, jolliest kind of room that ever you did spy, The way into my bar-room is past a handsome screen, And I have many things to show which you have never seen." "Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy,

"to ask me is in vain, For who goes in your jolly room can ne'er come out unstained."

"I'm sure you must be dreary, and I can give you joy; Will you have a jolly time to-night? said the landlord to the boy, There are pretty pictures hung around, at the games you've a chance to win,

And if you'd like to rest awhile I'll gladly show you in." "Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy,

"for I've often heard the tune, They never like to work again who rest in your saloon."

Said the cunning landlord to the boy, "Dear boy, what can I do To prove the warm affection I've always felt for you? I have within my bar room good store of all, I think,

I'm sure you're very welcome, will you please to take a drink?"

'Oh, no, no!" said the bright eyed boy, "Kind sir, that cannot be;

I've heard what's in your bar room and I do not wish to see."

"Noble boy!" said the landlord, "you're witty and your wise.

How handsome is your gay mustache, how brilliant are your eyes, I have a little glass of wine upon my bar room shelf, If you'll step in one moment you shall have it all yourself."

"I thank you, gentle sir," he said, "for what you've said to me,

And bidding you good evening now, I'll come some night and see."

The landlord turned him round about and went into his den,

For well he knew the silly boy would soon be back again. So he "set up a little job" with the men in his saloon, And had all his musicians to play a lively

"Come hither and be happy, boy," are some of the words he said.

"You can't be hurt by drinking wine which is so bright and red." And sure enough in a little while the silly careless boy, Hearing those wily, flattering words, came slowly walking by, With a slow step he lingered near, then through the screen he went,

Thinking only of the splendid times, and the landlerd's good intent,

Thinking only of the sparkling wine, poor foolish boy, at last The terrible demon-Alcohol-held him secure and fast.

A slave to drink he continued to be, until in death he fell;

'No drunkard shall God's kingdom see," what a sad fate to tell!

And now, my dear young friends, who have this story heard, To flattering words and tempting wines, remember "No" is the word;

Keep away from saloons and gambling dens; they give no lasting joy; And learn a lesson from this tale of the landlord and the boy.

WHISKEY DID IT.

the whiskey demon is recorded: "I didn't do it; God knows I didn't do it; Whiskey did it."

3 Such a wail as came from the boy! And he was only a boy, for what else is a lad

And now he stood there on the sidewalk wringing his hands and crying out in agony, and the officer's hand was on his shoulder, and the crowd around him was crying out, too.

"He's killed him" said one, "let's hang him to a lamppost."

"Oh, mother, mother!" wailed the boy, "wake up! Oh! I've killed her too; let me go in to her."

"Come with me," said the officer, "somebody else will take care of your mother, and we'll take care of you." "I didn't do it; God knows I didn't as the officer led him away. No, he had not done it, and the whiskey had; but the law does not try whis-

do it; the whiskey did it!" cried the boy

Whiskey had not followed the man out of the saloon and beat his brains out with a piece of board. The boy had not really done it either; for he had not known what he did, and when he was himself nothing could induce him to do such a deed. And yet he was the motor, or rather whiskey was the motor and he the machine it moved. He was the one who went to prison. His mother was the one who lay dead from grief. It was his hand that bore the stain of a mother's blood. And whiskey did it.

And men in that town allowed it to be done. It made business lively. "There can be no town without liquor; that is no town of any life," they said.

Yes, business was made lively, the saloon keeper had something to do, then the officer of the law had the pleasure of taker sold two coffins. Grim sort of tention. business, isn't it! But that is the kind whiskey furnishes: -Religious Telescope.

A pew opener in England greatly astonished a group of women, who were constructing evergreen mottoes and wreaths for a Christmas celebration, by announcing that she had found a "stray hen a-laying in the pulpit." There excitement was calmed when she produced a large green N, which had "strayed" from some text or legend.

"What if I were one of those husbands my dear, who get up cross in the morning and bang things about and kick everything over just because the coffee is

"John," responded his wife, "I would make it hot for you." As her words admitted of more than one interpretation, John said nothing about the coffee.

"Oh, my friends, there are some spectacles that one never forgets!" said a lecturer, after giving a graphic description of a terrible accident he had witnessed. "I'd like to know who sells 'em," remarked an old lady in the audience who is always mislaying her glasses.

Elder Brother-Freddy, I'm surprised to see you soak your bread in the dish.

It's exceedingly bad form. Freddy-Well, it's awfully good taste. A little girl ran into a chemist's shop, and asked for a pennyworth of pills. "Antibilious?" said the chemist. "No," said the child; "uncle's bil-

Regrafting Young Orchards.

It sometimes happens that the farmer finds even before his orchard gets to bearing that a large part of the trees are of varieties that will not give him much profit. Regrafting to better sorts is a very laborious and expensive process if the trees have grown to nearly bearing size, because so many grafts must be set to make an even head. A few sprouts may be left below the grafts to draw the sap, but they must be cut away as soon as the grafts get to growing. A better way is to take a few years to do the graftfng. putting in two or three grafts each spring, until the entire head is changed. So much cutting away of the top wood will cause many sprouts to start. These must be destroyed as fast as they appear, rubbiug them off while the green shoot can be removed with the thumb and finger.

April 10th, 1899. Farming in the Maritime Provinces

Differs materially from farming in Ontario and the West. Conditions are different and our markets net the same. A product profitable in those sections would not pay the tillage here, and a suggestion valuable to a westner, would prove disastrous if followed by our farmers. In subscribing for a agricultural publication it is well to bear this in mind. There's only one paper that treats of farming from a Maritine Province standpoint. It is the
