Quality Counts.

Dairymen should not forget that the discrimination between choice and ordinary grades of butter is becoming more clearly and sharply defined each year. It is only the best that is always in demand and will sell at good prices when there is a surplus of the inferior grades, that either are not wanted at all or else must be sold at a sacrifice. We can hardly expect that under these circumstances this order of things will be changed or improved upon. It is merit that is going to win, and if the dairyman expects to come out satisfactorily at the end of the year it is of the greatest importance that he start right. To try and do a little better than before should be the watchword of the day.

Don't Put the Church to Shame.

Why should the church leave her high place and come down into the arena, where she will be put to shame? Do men come to church for petty pleasures fit only for children, or for the satisfaction of their souls and the confirmation of their faith? Would Christianity have begun to exist if the Apostles had been "pleasing preachers" and "bright men," and had given themselves to "socials" and "sales" and "talks"? The church triumphed by her faith, her holiness, her courage, and by these high virtues she must stand in this age also. She is the witness to immortality, the spiritual home of souls, the servant of the poor, the protector of the friendless, and if she sinks into a place of second rate entertainment then it was better that her history should close, for without her spiritual vision and austere ideals the church is not worth preserving.—Ian MacLaren in the October Ladies' Home Journal.

Cottage Cheese.

The cottage cheese so much seen and used is usually made at home. Use sour milk that has been thickened, but not separated, and put it into a basin. Set it at the back of the fire or in a pan of hot water, where the milk will heat very gradually, but not boil. When the curd has separated from the whey, turn the milk into a colander and let the whey drain off. Put the curd into a bowl, add some salt and a little cream and stir until it is a fine grain.

Good manners cannot be learned in a moment. There are certain forms which society has agreed people must conform to if they wish to appear well bred, and these are often not at all what the natural inclination would prompt one to do under the circumstances. Children must be taught these conventions, and we must not be surprised if they are sometimes slow in learning them, nor despair if after much teaching they at times relapse into native barbarism. Patient perseverance in training them will at last produce the desired result. The constant repetition that seems so irksome, combined with the silent force of the daily example will effect the end in view—a well-bred child.—Ladies Home Journal.

Green and red ball nose and sweet peppers are now to be had in all markets, and they will prove a satisfactory addition to many dishes. When used whole they are to be opened, the seeds removed, covered with boiling water and boiled for five minutes. After draining and cooling they are ready for use. They may be filled with a variety of mixtures, meats chopped and seasoned, boiled rice, seasoned and butter crumbs, minced mushroom—in fact, any sort of stuffing desired—and baked, enough stock being added to the pan to keep them from becoming too dry. Eggs may be dropped in them as in tomatoes. They may be shred and sprinkled over green salads or finely chopped and added to stews, hashes and many chafing dish mixtures, says Table Talk in one of its tempting bills of fare, from which these hints are gleaned.

There is one absolutely sure way of clearing out all flies when they become insupportable in the kitchen. Close every door and window, stuffing up all crevices with rags or paper; then place insect powder in a pair of bellows and puff it all about the room. The person who works the bellows can remain in the room until she can no longer breathe the dust filled air. Then, carefully shutting the door, she should leave the room closed for two or three hours, after which time every insect will be found dead.

Bedrooms in the summer can be kept free from flies by drawing down the shade and leaving it and the window up about two inches at the bottom. A couple of plates of wet "poison paper" are also effective when the room cannot be darkened. But, after all is said and done, cleanliness is the best remedy, and it is for this reason that every good housekeeper feels that a house full of flies is in a way a disgrace.

Salting Cows in Summer.

The best way to salt cows is to leave some rock salt under a covered place where the stock can lick it at will. They will then never get more than is good for them, but will go up and lick a small quantity once every day or two. We know farmers who make it their practice to salt cows every Sunday morning. It is not breaking the Sabbath to any serious extent, and the owner of the stalk has the pleasure of noting its condition and whether there are any animals in the lot that appear unthrifty. We have often salted the cows Sunday morning by throwing fine salt thinly over grass while it was covered with morning dew. Some of the salt might be lost, but we thought from the way the grass was eaten that not much would be wasted that way. When we salted sheep by throwing salt on the grass, they ate the grass down to the roots.

Danish Cattle Stables.

Danish cattle stables are always kept snowily whitewashed without and within, and between the rows of stalls is a central gangway for the passage to the mangers. Large stall, accommodate two cows each, the animals being prevented from access, however, to each other's food. In a trough above the manger clear water runs from end to end, and the ventilation and light are excellent. The cattle have two or three feeds daily of mangel wurtzel, a midday feed of hay, and night and morning are fed with a mixture of rape cake and bran. In summer they are turned out to grass. The calves are equally cared for, and also the multitude of pigs, which fatten on the dairy waste, making bacon of such superior quality that it is in great demand abroad, 132,000,000 pounds having been exported last year.

Rules for Getting Rich.

Save your pennies. Be careful of your health. Learn to know good people from bad. Be reliable. That's the golden rule of business.

Be sure not to put all your money eggs into one basket. See that your head isn't lame. It doesn't matter about your legs. Take good care of your money. It isn't half as hard to earn it as it is to take care of it.

Study not how you can spend the money you have earned, but how you can make more. Keep on earning money. If you stop earning, your fortune will shrink, as your arm does when you don't exercise it. Watch the people who want to take your money from you. The more money you get the more such people there will be.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge), a copy of the prescription used, which will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address.

All clocks should be kept going. If the clock will not do its duty send it to be repaired, and if it declines to go after judicious treatment then put it aside, for a silent clock is a depressing object.

The Nursery.

Don't place the cot in a position where the light will fall on the child's eyes, nor in a draft. Don't hang curtains around the cot. Children need plenty of air, especially when sleeping. Don't allow a child to sleep with an elderly person. Its rest will be less disturbed and more beneficial alone. Don't make up the baby's bed on the floor. The air is most pernicious near the floor and purest in the middle of the room.

COOK'S SURE COUGH CURE

The Home Piano.

When it is possible, a pupil should have a piano to practice upon that is delicate in action, responsive and sympathetic in tone and have it kept in tune. Half the work of a teacher may be lost by having poor pianos to practice on, vitiating to the ear and demoralizing to the touch. They do their work slowly but surely, and when a good instrument is before them, they are taken at a great disadvantage because they can not get the best effects from it. They do not know how.

People who have had an old piano in the house for years are often heard to declare "they like the tone so much better than any of the new ones." The ear has become adjusted to the poorer quality and, like the eye when trained in the direction of coarse colors, enjoys only the course. To educate the people to a higher standard of quality in musical instruments is one of the missions of music and teachers.
