Tile Drainage.

Some farmers appear to think the only gain from underdraining is that the soil is dry enough to work sooner after hard rains and will yield better crops when the season is wet. But this is by no means all the benefit, according to an Ohio Farmer correspondent who is an enthusiastic advocate of tile drainage. He names and comments upon the following additional reasons for his faith:
First, a better yield in dry seasons; second, it is easier to keep the ground clear of weeds; third, vegetables, grass, etc., are made more palatable; fourth, wheat and clover do not heave out so much by freezing and thawing; fifth, the soil does not wash so much; sixth, it makes the soil more fertile.

To say that ditching prevents damage by drought may seem strange to those who have never tried underdraining their land, but those who have tried it know that the crops over and near a tile ditch are better in a dry season than where no tiles are used. The droughts that do the most damage are those where a dry summer and fall follow an open winter and a wet spring. This is caused by the wet weather in the spring making the soil run together and become compact. When dry weather follows, it is more injurious than if the soil is loose, as it generally is over and near a tile ditch.

As to the second reason—it is easier to get rid of weeds—a little observation will prove it to be correct. If it is in the wet spots in the wheatfield where the wheat is killed by the water that the dock, ragweed, dress and other pests are the worst. It is the same way in the cornfield and potato patch. The low, wet places are generally the most difficult to keep clean.

The third advantage is that the products of well drained land are more palatable than those grown on wet land. The same varieties of potatoes planted in different soils will produce potatoes of dissimilar qualities. Those grown on well drained land will cook dry and mealy, while those grown in a wet, heavy, clay soil will be of an inferior quality and will be soggy when cooked.

The fourth advantage claimed—that wheat and clover are not injured so much by the ground freezing and thawing—does not need explaining.

As to the fifth claim—that the soil does not wash so much—I am not quite so positive as I am about the others. The loose soil over a tile ditch will wash easily if the tile does not have the capacity to carry all the water that runs to it.

As to the last claim—that it makes the soil more fertile. I mean by this that it not only makes the land more productive but that it adds fertilizing elements to the soil the same as we do when we cover the ground with manure or fertilizers. Some may inquire when these elements are applied. The answer is, every day in the year and by the water and air that pass through the soil.

While a heavy coat of stable manure may make better crops for six, eight or ten years and an application of commercial fertilizer will show for several years, if they are not renewed the soil will not show any gain from them after a time, but the tile ditch, like "a thing of beauty" is "a joy forever."

Deep Ploughing Questioned.

It is a disputed point in tillage as to whether or not deep ploughing is the best method of keeping the soil in proper condition. Many farmers are of the opinion that deep ploughing is detrimental to the land, while, on the other hand, there are those who keep ploughing a little deeper every year, thinking that by so doing they improve the producing capacity of the land. To decide the matter intelligently, the texture of the soil must be taken into consideration in each case. With the lighter, loamy or sandy lands the winter frost will accomplish all that is necessary in the way of loosening the soil. Heavy clays require cultivation, and in many cases deep cultivation, as well as green manuring, in order to improve the texture. Another consideration is the retention of humus in the place where it is most needed—in the three or four inches of the surface soil. Deep ploughing that would turn this under is not advisable.

To get Profit from the Cow.

It is extremely difficult to get a great many men to see that the reason why they are not financially successful with cows is because they treat them in so heartless a manner, said Hoard's Dairyman. They tie them up in rigid stanchions and force them to bear their young in such cruel confinement; they compel them to lie in their own filth until their sides are plastered with it; they shut them up in dark, damp underground stables, forcing them to breathe in air reeking with poisoned fumes; they half starve them in winter's cold and midsummer droughts; they dog them and abuse them with blows and curses. All these things are of common practice, and then such men wonder that this wonderful mother denies to them a profit from her motherhood.

How to catch Rats.

Set your steel trap in a corn sack. Roll in the trap the sack until a space is left large enough to contain the trap. The rat sees the ears of the corn through the trap and in reaching for them strikes the pedal with his nose. The trap is thus sprung, so as to catch him just behind the ears, and his death is instantaneous. This is more humane than catching him by the leg and causing him to suffer all night. I have caught them successfully in that way, and I believe it will prove successful in most cases, says a Farm and Fireside correspondent. You are sure of one every night until they are exterminated.

Deadliest of Poisons.

The discoverer of prussic acid was instantly killed by inhaling one whiff of his own handiwork. Pure prussic is never sold or handled. The smell of it is always fatal. It kills the instant it enters the lungs as a gas. Atrophine, though it has no harmful odor, is so deadly that as much of it as would adhere to a moistened forefinger would instantly cause death. When a carboy of nitric acid is broken someone has to suffer. It will burn wood, eat through iron plates, and destroy whatever it touches. Such an accident once happened in an acid factory. Every one ran away, leaving the acid to amuse itself by setting fire to things. Soon it was seen that the building would be destroyed and hundreds of people thrown out of work, and four men volunteered to put out the fire in the acid room. They succeeded and came out feeling all right. Five hours later all were dead.

Teach Boys to Be Courteous.

One hears a good deal about the decadence of good manners, especially among the young men of the period, and wonders oftentimes where the fault lies. After studying the matter carefully, one is reluctantly drawn to the conclusion that it is the mother in most cases who is at fault.

No doubt there will be indignant denials of a charge of this kind on the part of mothers generally, but evidence is against them, and they cannot deny that they are at least negligent in training their boys to the old time courtesy, which every boy and man was expected to show not only to women of all ages and conditions, but to the elders of their own sex as well.

There are some things which the mother should not fail to remember in her intercourse with her own sons, from the earliest time when their training may begin. It is her remembering and carrying out such simple rules of conduct for herself that will have the most potent influence upon the whole future behavior of her children.

She should never permit herself to forget that if she treats her boy as a gentleman she will go a great way toward making him one.

She should insist that he pay proper deference to her, to his sisters and to every one with whom he comes in daily contact and that he should give proper, respectful and courteous treatment to the domestics of the family.

She should never be so busy that she cannot listen to his confidences. In that way she will keep them. No child will seek sympathy from others if he can get it from the mother.

She should set high ideals for him and instil into his mind a distaste for all vulgarity or coarseness, and she should herself embody that ideal.

The mother who carries out these principles will find them reflected in her boys.—Boston Herald.

To Correct Bashfulness.

"The bashful young girl must stop thinking about herself," writes Margaret E. Sangster in the April Ladies' Home Journal. "I heard the other day of a man, a college student, who went to visit his sister, a college student also. He was the one man, as it happened, in the dining-room with five hundred girls, and he had occasion to cross the room with their bright eyes beaming on him with curiosity and interest. Said my informant: 'The boy was completely at his ease. You would have thought his sister the only girl present.' Evidently the young man's mother had brought him up in a sensible way and he was free from the bane and comfort, self-consciousness. It is hard for a very diffident person to be free from awkwardness, and very acute distress and much humiliation may be the results of an extreme shyness. Try not to think how you look, what impression you are making, what sort of gown you have on. Do not let your mind dwell on yourself, but think of what you are to do, and of making others pleased and happy. Once you are free from self-consciousness, bashfulness will trouble you no more."

Worked Both Ways.

"It's a fine morning, Biddy," said the squire.
"It's a foine morning, your honor and ladyship; and sure I had a foine dream last night!"
"What did you dream, Biddy?" inquired the lady.
"Shure, I drimht his honor gave me a pound of bacey and your ladyship gave me a pound of tay."
"Oh," laughingly replied the squire, "but you know, Biddy, dreams go by contraries."
"Sure, then, your honor can give me the pound of tay and her ladyship can give me the pound of bacey."

Drowned in Dyspeptic Despair.

Are Thousands of Suffering Canadians. Like the stab of a knife it catches you in the side, or sends agonizing pangs through the pit of your stomach after eating. It worries and wears you till your nerves give out, and, like a drowning man, you feel you are sinking day by day and help can not reach you. In this you are mistaken. No matter how deep you have sunk, PETTY'S will reach you. As the fabled mermaid is said to seek and soothe the drowned, so will the real PETTY'S seek your trouble and soothe your pain. Indigestion, biliousness, headache, and that despondent feeling that makes so many lives miserable, depart when PETTY'S are called in. No other medicine is compounded with such care, no other is so pure, so effective as DR. PETTY'S PILLS.
D. L. Jones Esq., B.A., B.Sc. (London), the well-known chemical analyst and scientist, writes as follows: "I have analyzed DR. PETTY'S PILLS, and find that they contain THE ESSENTIAL ACTIVE PRINCIPLES ONLY of the various elements of the prescription from which they are compounded, ensuring the best results from the smallest possible dose."
50 cents a bottle, 6 bottles for $2.50, all druggists or from The Dr. Petty Medicine Company, Toronto, Canada.

USE EDDY'S BRUSHES, THE BEST IN THE MARKET.

Often in the morning there comes a feeling of weariness, indescribable; not exactly ill, nor fit to work, but too near well to remain idle. A Ripans Tabule taken at night, before retiring, or just after dinner, has been known to drive away that weariness for months.
