Washington Letter.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27, 1900, Hon. Lillian Pauncefote, third daughter of Lord Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, and Lady Pauncefote was married to Hon. Robert Bromley at St. John's Episcopal church at noon on Saturday. Every pew in the church was filled by a most distinguished array of guests, including nearly the entire Supreme Court and Cabinet, members of the corps of foreign Ambassadors and ministers, Army and Navy officers and a large number of prominent members of Congress and laymen. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and blooming with azaleas and Easter lilies that filled the chancel on either side, almost forming an arch. Upon the white altar were tall gold vases filled with lilies.

As is the custom in England, the bride entered the church preceding her maids and other attendants. She wore a magnificent gown of heavy white satin, with the full regulation court train of several yards in length. It was made in the Princess style, the front width, outlined from either shoulder to the hem with pearl passementerie, was continued around the hem in Vandyke effect. The yoke was of shirred chiffon edged with lace, and the stock of the same soft materials. About her throat she wore a superb pearl necklace of several strands with diamond pendant—an heirloom of the Bromley family. Her veil of tulle was worn above the coronet of orange blossoms, and not beneath, as is the custom of brides in this country. The folds were fastened to her hair with five clustered diamond pins, and she carried an immense bouquet of lilies of the valley. As she stood at the altar rail her train extended the entire width of the chancel, fell over the steps and reached almost to the front pew, where her parents were seated.

The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Henry Y. Saterlee, Bishop of Washington, and the Rev. Alexander Mackay-Smith, D. D., rector of the church. As the bride passed down the aisle she turned and embraced her mother, Lady Bromley, her father and her sister Maud, while the bridegroom kissed his relatives in turn. It was an unusual scene, and yet a touch of human nature that made the wedding the more informal. Then they passed hurriedly down the aisle and out to their carriage. A reception and breakfast to invited guests followed at the British Embassy, after which the wedded pair left for Richmond, Va.

"Canadian patriotism is a curious sort of thing," says Mr. Charles Shover, of Toronto, who is in this city. "It is a good deal the same kind of feeling of respect and possibly admiration which one has for his wife's rich relatives. We are very proud of our lads in South Africa and feel certain that they will give a good showing. But at the best they seem to be fighting for a sentiment and not something real. England's greatness is a great thing for England. But it is not particularly great for Canada. We are not growing greater simply because we are English."

The Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital service has promulgated a series of the regulations regarding the quarantining of rags imported to the United States, but with the following exception: "Rags gathered and baled in Canada, accompanied by affidavits that the ports or places where collected or handled were free from quarantinable disease for thirty days prior to shipment, may be admitted to entry; but rags from foreign ports shipped through Canada shall not be admitted to entry, unless they are accompanied by a certificate of a United States consul or medical officer of the United States that they have been disinfected in accordance with the United States quarantine regulations. Foreign rags, not originating in Canada, but shipped through Canada to ports in the United States, will not be permitted entry by collectors of customs unless accompanied by the above-named certificate, or until after they have been unbled and disinfected as required by the United States quarantine regulations."

The Treasury Department has also made new regulations for the inspection of cattle imported from Canada according to which, all animals imported from the Dominion must be accompanied by an affidavit made by the owner or importer, declaring whether the animals are imported for breeding purposes, milk production, grazing, feeding, or slaughter, or as of settler's effects, or are horses entered for temporary stay. The affidavit must be presented to the collector of customs who will decide whether the animals are entitled to entry and who will notify the inspector where an inspection must be made. Details are appended in reference to the various sorts of cattle.

The Treasury Department has extended the privileges of the free entry of bicycles of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association and the Cyclist's Touring Club, to the National Cyclist's Union of Great Britain and has established a new form of certificate for the importation and exportation of bicycles owned by members of Canadian Wheelmen's Association, the League of American Wheelmen, the Cyclist's Touring Club, and the National Cyclist's Union.

The Inventive Age and Patent Index, now in its twelfth year, is the only journal published at the National Capital devoted to patents. It contains an index of every patent granted each week, and has information about the Patent Office which no other journal possesses. Price one dollar a year.—Address E. G. Siggers, 918 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

There never was a time, in fact, in the history of American social economy when the old domestic-service problem was so close to its natural solution, and when the whole wage-earning question of woman was so near to its own logical adjustment as at the present. The twentieth century will in no other respect be so marked as in the natural and divine division of the world's labor which America is destined to present to the world: men for business, and women for the home, with an equal standard in each case for both employer and employee.—Edward Bok, in the March Ladies' Home Journal.

A little social life is good for one. As time goes on, and the old friends have gone to their promotion, it is well to keep up one's interest in the world of to-day by cultivating friendly relations with those about us.—March Ladies' Home Journal.

George Meredith's novels and poems are written in a small study, built by itself in his garden on the slope of a hill, at the foot of which stands his house, just off the main road beyond Burford Bridge in the beautiful district of Boxhill in England. His unmarried daughter lives with him. His son is associated with a prominent publishing house in London.—March Ladies' Home Journal.

Glazed Paper Ruins Eyes.

Women who are nervous about microbes and go in for washable draperies, sanitary wall papers and upholstered furniture should be interested in hygienic note paper recommended by the solemn German doctors, who know everything. According to these gentlemen—ophthalmologists they are!—the use of glazed paper is accountable for the continuous increase of myopia during the last 50 years.

Most modern books are printed on smooth, brilliant paper with luminous reflections that were absent from the rough surface of the paper used years ago, when a soft, light easily brought out in relief the characters which were printed in heavy, black type. Now, with the glazed surface the light is all the more reflected, because the characters themselves are finer and less pronounced, thus giving rise to a play of light and shade most fatiguing to the eyes.

To prove this it suffices to take an old edition of the last century and one of the modern magazines printed artistically and compare the effect produced on the eyes after half an hour's reading, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. For this reason the hygienists recommend dull surfaced paper for school use and gray or blue in preference to white.

All rough surfaced gray and blue papers are very smart and pretty, the hygienic woman will not find her duty very hard to perform when she replenishes her stationery in accordance with latest ophthalmological notions.

One of the most beautiful natural rock carvings in the world carvings in the world is the Southern Cross, on the Island of Grand Manan, in the Bay of Fundy. It stands at the head of a ledge of rock jutting into the bay from the foot of one of the immense cliffs at the southern end of the Grand Manan. Its shape is that of an almost perfect cross.

"Yes, I lost my watch in the river once and it kept on running for seven years."
"The watch?"
"Nah, the river."

An antigossip society has been organized in Springfield, Mo. At an afternoon card club the other day the idea was suggested by Mrs. Mosher. The members pledged themselves to speak no evil word of any one woman. The membership is unlimited, and every woman in Springfield, regardless of condition or denomination, is most cordially invited to join, and all members are urged and expected to do all in their power to bring others into this new society. There are to be no dues, no officers, no regular meetings; nothing but the simple pledge. The idea was received by all those present in the most responsive manner, all signifying their most hearty approval and promising their warmest co-operation. It will be known as the "Woman's Self Elevating Society," and its existence is to continue forever.

During stormy weather bits should be warmed either by dipping in warm water for a few minutes or by rubbing between the mitten-covered hands before being put in horses' mouths. The shoes should be roughed to avoid slipping. When horses are to remain standing out of doors, blankets should be laid under the harness. Ashes or sand should be scattered on steep, slippery roads to prevent the animals from falling.

Petty's Pills make the sick well.

Drowned in Dyspeptic Despair.

Are Thousands of Suffering Canadians, Like the stab of a knife it catches you in the side, or sends agonizing pangs through the pit of your stomach after eating. It worries and wears you till your nerves give out, and, like a drowning man, you feel you are sinking day by day and help can not reach you. In this you are mistaken. No matter how deep you have sunk, PETTY'S will reach you. As the fabled Mermaid is said to seek and soothe the drowned, so will the real PETTY'S seek your trouble and soothe your pain. Indigestion, biliousness, headache, and that despondent feeling that makes so many lives miserable, depart when PETTY'S are called in. No other medicine is compounded with such care, no other is so pure, so effective as DR. PETTY'S PILLS.

Dr. J. Jones Esq. B.A. B.Sc. (Lond) the well-known chemical analyst and scientist, writes as follows: "I have analyzed DR. PETTY'S PILLS, and find that they contain THE ESSENTIAL ACTIVE PRINCIPLES ONLY of the various elements of the prescription from which they are compounded, ensuring the best results from the smallest possible dose."
