POULTRY POINTERS.

Straw is better than hay in the nest boxes.

To thrive well the hen must have some bulky food. The secret of feeding is to avoid getting the hens too fat. One-half the trouble with poultry comes from lack of hard, sharp grit. It will be hard to get a cross that will lay at an earlier age than some of the pure breeds. It is a good plan in winter to empty the drinking vessels as soon as the fowls have satisfied their thirst.

Hens that are kept constantly quiet and tame will make better mothers than the wild, uncontrollable ones.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Do not neglect a cold. You cannot be told this too often. Colds are easily cured if treated at once, but neglected they may mean pneumonia or consumption.

Try this simple remedy for asthma: Extract the juice of eight lemons and mix it carefully with one ounce of honey and one ounce of cod liver oil. Take a tablespoonful of the mixture when the cough comes on.

The other day we lost 400 men, killed and wounded, at Springfontein. It nearly makes you cry to see the wounded being carried about, some shot in the legs and others in the stomach—well, in fact, all over them. It took us three days to come from Cape Town up to De Aar, and we had no sleep for three nights . . and no food worth speaking of, for we only had hard biscuits and bully beef, and they are not the same biscuits and beef you get in civilian life, for they are made by the military people purposely for this occasion. Whatever you do don't worry about me . . . for we have got too good a hold of our guns; and, another thing, the Boers are terribly afraid of the artillery, for after they have tested a few of the shells they scatter in all directions."

Boers Fight With Coats Off. Pte. Secker, of the 60th King's Royal Rifles, who has been invalided home from Ladysmith, has been detailing some of his experiences. He was wounded on the 29th October in the head whilst a piece of shell lodged in his left wrist. At Lombard's Kop the states that Gen. White had 8,000 men, but the enemy's scouts were exceedingly alert and informed the Boers of the advancing column. "Only the State Artillery and Kruger's Bodyguard are in uniform, the rest being dressed like workingmen. They always fight with their coats off and sleeves up above the arm."

How the Giant Indians of Tierra del

Dr. Frederick A. Cook tells of a little known race of aborigines in an article in The Century Magazine on "The Giant Indians of Tierra del Fuego," whom he visited on the Belgian antarctic expedition. Of their marriage customs he

Marriage, like almost everything Ona, is not fixed by established rules. It is arranged and rearranged from time to time to suit the convenience of the contracting parties. Women generally have very little to say about it. The bargain is made almost solely by the men, and physical | There is always lard in the country panforce is the principal bond of union. For ages the strongest bucks have been accustomed to steal women from neighboring tribes and from neighboring clans of beaten up and spread upon old linen; in their own tribe. The Onas, being by far the most powerful Indians, have thus been able to capture and retain a liberal supply of wives. A missionary who has been in constant contact with these Indians for 30 years has given it as his opinion that a plurality of wives is entirely satisfactory to their peculiar emotions and habits of life. The relation to one another of the women who possess but one husband in common in the family wigwam is of novel interest. As a rule, they are no more jealous than are the children in a civilized home circle. The principal reason for this is that the several wives are often sisters. A young man takes by force, by daughter of a family. If he proves himself a good hunter and a kind husband, the wife persuades her sister to join her wigwam and share her husband's affections. Frequently when a girl is left an orphan she is taken into a family and trained to become the supplementary wife of her benefactor in after years. In the hut each wife has her own assigned position, always resting in exactly the same spot, with all of her belongings about her. The wealth of the household is not common to all the occupants. Each woman has her own basket of meat fragments or shellfish, her own bag with implements, needles, sinews and bits of fur, and each wife has her own assemblage of children.

to the chase. He carries his bow and quiver of arrows, and his eye is ever on the horizon for game, but he seldom stoops to anything like manual labor that is not connected with the actual necessities of the chase. He kills the game, but the wife must carry it into camp. In moving, the women take up all their earthly possessions, pack them into a huge roll, and with this firmly strapped across their backs they follow the unincumbered lead of their brave but ungallant husbands. Thus the women carry day after day, not only all the household furniture, but the children and the portable portions of the house. The women certainly have all the uninteresting detail and the drudgery of life heaped upon them, but they seem to enjoy it. In defense of the men it should be said that they are worthy husbands. They will fight fiercely to protect their homes, and they will guard the honor of their women with their own blood. It is a crying sin of the advance of Christian civilization that this red man of the far south should be compelled to lay down his life at the feet of the heartless palefaced invaders to shield the honor of his home.

BACKACHE

Weak, Lame, Aching Backs, the Result of Sluggish, Inactive Kidneys.

Backache is in reality kidney ache. The kidneys become clogged, and falter in their work of filtering the blood. Backache is nature's warning that the kidneys are on strike, and that the blood is going through the system laden with foul poisons, which will cause Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, rheumatism or other equally painful and fatal complications.

Prudence tells everyone suffering with backache to set their kidneys right. The experience of tens of thousands of people tells them that to accomplish this there is no means so successful as the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills-the world's greatest kidney cure.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure permanently by making the kidneys healthy, active and vigorous. They are purely vegetable, act naturally and directly on the kidneys, and are wonderfully efficacious. As a prompt and positive cure for kidney disease, liver complaint and all the complications of these filtering organs, they are unapproached by any remedy ever discovered.
