Care of Rubber Goods.

In putting away rubber gloves, rubber sponge bags and rubber bathing caps a liberal supply of talcum, or even ordinary toilet powder, should be applied to them on all sides, and they should be placed carefully in boxes without rolling. When they are needed for use again, they will not be found adhering in different places in a way that makes pulling apart dangerous, if not entirely disastrous.

A witty Frenchman has declared that the Parisians are passionately fond of the country, but they never dare drive farther than their beloved park for fear a revolution will take place during their absence and they will miss having a finger in the pie. So, like the famous King of France who marched up a hill and then marched down again, Monsieur and Madame take a turn in the Bois and then drive home again. Fashionable Parisian life is an endless treadmill.—February Ladies' Home Journal.

Useful One-Fingered Gloves.

Gloves have long been made in very great variety, but a novel thing in this line is a one fingered glove or perhaps it might be called a one fingered mitten, in which the thumb and finger are provided for precisely as they would be in any glove, with a covering for each, while the other three fingers are inclosed in a mitten-like part. Mittens are warmer, but a driver must wear gloves or have at least one finger free to enable him to handle the reins. One fingered gloves are bought also by shipping clerks and book-keepers and others around markets and other places. Where more or less of the business must be attended to outdoors, a man can't very well handle a pencil with mittens on his hands, but he can swing one all right in one fingered gloves. Gloves of this sort are made of calfskin or sheepskin and wool lined like any other glove, says the New York Sun.

Poultry Within Reach of All.

What a boon to the man of limited means is the opportunity of keeping poultry. He not only can have fresh eggs, but is also enabled to enjoy a roast fowl at times, as well as obtaining the same at only a very small cost. There is always more or less food that cannot be utilized in all families, and a small flock of hens can thus be partially supported without expense. It is simply changing the form of the cheap food into poultry and eggs, which are often higher. Then there is the pleasure of keeping a few hens. The working men cannot afford a horse, a cow, and often he has not accommodation for a pig but he can always find a place somewhere for a few hens, which will interest him and add to his enjoyment as well as profit. Even the children join in the undertaking, and are all benefited thereby.

Keep the Feet Warm.

You will never be in good health and never do your best work, remarks a contemporary, if your feet are continually cold. Grave diseases of the throat and lungs are caused by cold feet alone, and these troubles are always aggravated by a frigid condition of the lower extremities. If proper foot wear does not give relief, consult a physician, for the chances are the system is "run down", and radical measures are necessary. In nine cases out of ten, however, the foot covering is to blame, either because of its shape or material. Save in warm weather and for low-cut shoes, leather as ordinarily prepared, has serious objections. It lacks two prime qualities—porosity and capacity for absorption—being in this respect too much like rubber. No foot can remain either comfortable or healthy if kept in a perpetual bath of its own emanations and excretions. Leather, especially that of the more porous varieties, may be tolerated for the outside, but for cold weather it should always be lined with woolen cloth or better with wool felt. In fact, for all wool climates, and for winter wear in all climates where there is any winter, a foot-gear made from all wool felt approaches the ideal. According to modern notions, any illness in one part of the body may be occasioned by some irritating cause far removed from the seat of the trouble. Just how this is cannot always be clearly explained, but that such connection does sometimes exist is beyond dispute. In the matter under discussion, if the nerves of the whole body are irritated by a tight shoe, or the extreme coldness of the extremities makes extra demand upon the blood supply, there is neither nerve force nor blood enough left for other functions.

If a girl prefers not to accept a young man's suit she may freely exercise her privilege of rejection, and nobody will dream of flouting her as an old maid, nor would she be disturbed if any one did. She would simply walk on, holding her dainty head high, and setting her capable hands at whatever task invited them. The girl knows and we all know, that spinsters are as honorable and as essential in modern society as are the most admired of matrons.—February Ladies' Home Journal.

Teacher—What is the difference between industry and luck? Boy—One door. "Hump! How do you explain that?" "Industry is what you have yourself. Luck is what your neighbor has."

Acid With Greasy Food.

Few women who teign over tables give sufficient thought to the relation of one food to another. Chance or custom, as a rule, decides what is served. For instance, acids in some form should always be eaten with greasy food. "Roast pork and apple sauce," as a rule go together yet how few serve a side dish of fruit for breakfast when bacon or ham is the meat eaten? A hearty meal of bacon, eggs, fried potatoes, bread and butter, and coffee, with cream, gives one man a headache, while a man who ate the same thing plus an apple, orange or dish of tart preserves has a brain as clear as a bell. Why is this? Because acid is required to digest grease, and the bacon, butter and cream, to say nothing of the lard on the potatoes overtaxed the acid producing powers of the stomach. The result is a mind full of thoughts of suicide and politics.

Moral—With grease in any form always serve plenty of fruit in some shape, fresh, preserved, or otherwise.—Hospital Envoy.

Mabel's Little Sister.

When you have wanted a little sister very, very badly and when the little sister finally arrives, you are apt to love her far better than anybody could possibly love her, even your father and mother. Mabel was 7 years old before the long wished for little sister arrived. The first rapture of really having her was dampened somewhat by the incessant crying of the baby.

For herself Mabel didn't mind. Anything the baby did was perfect, but, oh, would the others, who couldn't, of course, worship "little sister" the way Mabel did, get tired of it? One day when the baby had almost screeched her little head off, and all in that incoherent way of babies, Mabel went to her mother in the first lull and begged absolution.

"You don't mind her crying so very much, do you, mamma?" she said earnestly. "She's so little, you know, and she can't help it yet, really and truly she can't. Please, please put up with it for my sake. And, oh, mamma, no matter how hard she cries you won't—now promise me you won't, mamma—send her away!"—New York Sun.

In the life of almost every girl there are, I am sure, regrets to be found in plenty; places in plenty where opportunities for love, or help, or gentleness were overlooked and neglected. I had many such regrets in my life, yet in later years I think I made—as every girl may—stepping-stones of these regrets—stepping-stones to better and broader living—"Autobiography of a Girl," in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

Sayings and Sayings.

The boy, having freely admitted that he cut down the cherry tree, is amazed to observe his father coming at him with the trunk strap.

"What!" exclaims the boy. "Do you not propose to exculpify the saying that honesty is the best policy?"

"No, rather the saying that children and fools speak the truth!" retorted the old man, with a readiness of wit scarcely to be expected in one of his mature years.

Young Lady—The musical conservatory is in this building isn't it? Janitor—No, mum. The musical conservatory is 'bout two blocks down street.

Young Lady (dubiously)—I—I was sure I heard pupils practicing vocal exercises. Are you sure the musical conservatory is not here? Yes'm. Nothin' here but dentists' offices, mum.

Women who are addicted to nervousness should avoid peppers, spices, eggs, too much meat, and highly seasoned sauces and dressings. Their diet should consist of fish and soup. Celery and lettuce contain a soothing property, which taken in this vegetable form, is the best possible food and tonic for the nerves.

The Irishman was painting his barn, and he was hurrying his work with all his strength and speed.

"What are you in such a hurry for, Murphy?" asked a spectator.

"Sure, I want to get through before me paint runs out," was the reply.

Loving wife—Don't forget that you are to go to the dentist's at 10 o'clock to have all your teeth pulled out.

Husband—Wha—Great snakes! What are you—

Wife—Oh, I forgot to tell you, my dear I ordered you a new set of teeth for a present.

"How is your brother, Tommy?" "Ill in bed, miss; he's hurt himself."

"How did he do that?"

"We were playing at who could lean the farthest out of the window, and he won."

Mob Orator—No, gentlemen; I tell you that if you want a thing done well you must always do it yourself!

Voice from the crowd—How about getting your hair cut?

Tailor—Look here! I have worried myself sick over that bill of yours.

Casket (the undertaker)—That's all right, old man. If worst comes to worst, you can take it out in trade.

It is stated that King Richard, for the first time uttered his famous exclamation "A horse, a horse!" when he came to a knotty point in his Latin.

Believing in Yourself.

There's an entire sermon in the following which we find in an exchange, and it comes right home to every man and woman, portraying as it does the great fact that to have the right success in life we must believe in ourselves and set the mark of that success high enough so that it may demand our best efforts and loftiest inspirations. Here is the article alluded to:

There are few better protections against unworthy conduct than the faculty of believing in yourself and taking a high estimate of what the future has in store for you. When men are discouraged and 'down on their luck,' and come to think that there is no future for them, they are peculiarly liable to temptation. "What is the use," they think, "of trying? I do not amount to anything. I might as well take pleasure as it flies and let the future take care of itself."

Perhaps there are comparatively few of us that do occasionally have these low-toned moments. We lose sight of our ideals or become sceptical about them. You do not know what you are doing for a fellow man when you teach him to believe in himself by believing in him. You are bestowing a choicer gift than money or position. A good deal of the power of the gospel lodges itself in its capacity to invigorate self-respect by showing men that God cares for them, and revealing to them the dignity of their own nature and immortal destiny.

It has been verified a thousand times that when a great responsibility or dignity is imposed upon a man his best energies are enlisted in becoming worthy of it. A man who believes in his worth and future has always the inspiration of that motive. More sin than we often think for can be traced to discouragement or the clouding of ideals.

For a Delicate Child.

For a delicate child or on invalid there is a simple preparation of meat which contains a great quantity of nourishment and yet it is most easily digested. A half pound of round steak is laid on the board and scraped in the way of the grain with a strong silver spoon. The pulp readily comes off from the white stringy muscles, and in a few moments enough has been secured for two cakes. These are salted and laid for an instant in a very hot, deep frying pan. They cook at once and are most appetizing and can be digested by the weakest stomach.

When I was first married I thought my wife was the only woman on earth. "How do you feel about it now?" "Well, there's our cook."

"A woman doesn't know anything about politics, an' if she has since she won't thry to learn. Politics come nat'ral to a man. I knew how to vote before I'd been here a month, an' Timothy cud mark a ballot before he cud r-read. But ye'd [Molly Donahue] not know whether to put a cross on yer ballot or to cut it on the bias"—The Journal of Mr. Dooley in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

"Look at this man," said the solicitor, pointing to the prisoner in the dock. "Does he give the impression of one who would commit a crime?"

"No," replied the witness; "but neither do you do for a Residence."

We often crush down our impulses, not realizing that our impulses are apt to be just the quick longings of our nature to fulfil their ideals.—January Ladies' Home Journal.

Hundreds have testified to the good Petty's Pills have done them.
