EVERY YEAR.

I feel 'tis growing colder Every year, And my heart, alas! grows older Every year. I can win no new affection; I have only recollection, Deeper sorrow and dejection Every year,

Of the loves and sorrows blended Every year, Of the joys of friendship ended Every year. Of the ties that still might bind me Until Time and death resigned me My infirmities remind me Every year.

Ah! how sad to look before us Every year, When the clouds grow darker o'er us Every year, When we see the blossoms faded, That to bloom we might have aided, And immortal garlands braided, Every year.

To the past go more dead faces

Mismanagement.

It is a matter of mismanagement that some farmers and poultrymen will "keep over," season after season, a lot of worse than useless fowls that are inferior in every respect, fowls that have outgrown all possible usefulness. This practice may be considered, on general principles. to exist commonly "among the people." It is unfortunate, in as much as it is repensible for a great deal of the dissatisfaction among beginners and those inexperienced. It is more than probable, too, that a large share of the chicks come from the eggs of these greatly inferior fowls, as their brooding tendencies are generally quite well developed. It is quite obvi ous, therefore, that the sooner this class of poultry is obliterated from the face of the earth the better. There is no better time to commence cutting them out than right now. Either eat them yourself or send them to market. In the latter event it may be as well to fatten them a little if they are not already too fat. Shut them up in small coops and place in a darkened room. Feed them commeal, mash and cooked kitchen scraps in the morning, all they will eat up clean, and corn, wheat or buckwheat at noon and night. Avoid giving them onions in any great quantities or anything of a sour or stale nature, as it is liable to taint the flesh. Keep their coops in good sanitary

CALL AND SEE US.

1899 Moncton Woolen Mills 1899

I wish to inform my customers and the public generally that I will have the pleasure of again calling on them with a full assortment of goods from the above Mills, consisting of :

YARNS, FLANNELS, SHIRTINGS. BLANKETINGS, DRESS GOODS, RUGGINGS, HOMESPUNS, TWEEDS, OVERCOATINGS, ETC., ETC.

The highest recommendation for these goods and the best proof of their adaptability to the consumer is that each season finds them in greater demand. Thus adding new customers and increasing my sales which last year was ahead of all previous years, and now with new ranges of the latest colorings and designs and the generous co-operation of the public I hope to make this the banner year. Thanking you for your liberal patronage in the past and soliciting a continuance for the present year, I am,

Yours very truly,

ALFRED P. SLIPP.
