You may have visited towns where the natural scenery is grander, where the public minds of the government, we will not only buildings are more magnificent, and where welcome you as we do to-night, but will also wealth and fashion reign more proudly and supremely, but never did you visit a town always be cherished by us with the most frateral within the borders of your division where you feelings, while we are thus led to believe that found a heartier welcome than you find in Moncton to-night, and certainly never did you visit a town in which a stronger fight is being made with that giant foe of our race—the demon of strong drink. Leaving as you have your own How much is to pay? Count the price of one made with that giant foe of our race—the demon of strong drink. Leaving as you have your own hope you will endeavor to feel at home with us here, and while we remember that you have met for work rather than pleasure, we will neverthehope you will endeavor to feel at home with us

And what noble results have thus been accomplished in a few years. It is not yet fifty years since the little band of sixteen men whose names due form. On motion, carried, that history will proudly record on her brightest roles of honor, and who themselves did not fully understand the rich harvest which would be reaped from the development of the germ they He dwelt on the position many of the members be held in the Methodist Church. planted then—it is not yet fifty years since men called themselves the "Sons of Temperance" sons of a higher life and nobler aim than the tion a plank in the house. Again, you have persuaded the majority of right-thinking men that the State has no right to not listen to the claims of temperanee men license men to do the Devil's work. You have also made this trade which a few years ago was regarded as rather respectable, to to the Hall and resumed business. be branded as a most degrading and disreputable business, and the name of rum-seller is a synonym with, or cognomen of, a loathed and unprincipled wretch.

To-day medical men are reversing the old practice with regard to alcohol, and great organizations like the W. C. T. U. are with you in the field and fight. To-day temperance instruction is being introduced into the public schools and you are beginning with men at the right end of life. Asylums have been established for the reformation of confirmed drunkards and men spurn the traffic—not the man.

You have also demonstrated that moderate drinking is a delusion and a snare, and also that moral suasion is not triumphant while the government itself has the most profitable share of the rum selling in the nation, and continually tempts men to sin. Now you have a temperance literature enriched by the best religious and medical and legal minds of the age. To-day prohibition is not only in the air, but has become the prophetic watchword of all temperance men. Division adjourn to the Methodist and the advantageous position of the past, and the advantageous position of the present, and also the triumphant promise of the future, we say again, welcome, thrice welcome to our town and homes to-day.

There is one thing in connection with your work, uppermost in my mind to-night, that I must take the liberty and responsibility of briefly referring to. It is the shame and disgrace of our civilization that men should be appointed to the office of justices of the peace who are living in daily and open violation of the laws of our country. We have here in this town one of the most unprincipled men that ever have a suffering to. It is the shame and disgrace of intoxicating fiquors and they are no longer considered a necessity in medicine, and in common use are shown to be absolutely hurtful.

The Church is withdrawing her countenance from the drinking habits of the peace who are living in daily and open violation of the laws of our country. We have here in this town one of the most unprincipled men that ever have a proposed and they are no longer considered a necessity in medicine, and in common use are shown to be absolutely hurtful. office of magistrate. Who the responsible parties in connection with the appointment are cup at the social feast is more and more cup at the social feast is more and more parties in connection with the appointment are I know not. But this I know—it is the greatest outrage that ever has been perpetrated on a suspecting public in this town. That rumseller has been asked to swear that he will, in a town where the Scott Act has been adopted, keep the laws himself and enforce them on others. He has taken such an oath and still sells the rum. Cases in law are tried before him, and it is because of the social feast is more and more bee ming a thing of the past, while the practise of total abstinence is being largely extended. Employers of labor and labor organizations are recognizing the injurious results of the use of strong drink among laboring men, and are setting their faces strongly against the custom; and the question of the prohibition of the liquor traffic is occupying a more prominent position of the greatest outrage that ever has been adopted, keep the laws himself and enforce them on others. He has taken such an oath and still sells the rum. Cases in law are tried before him, and it is believed that in the interests of the rum party a lieved that in the interests of the rum party a man on a trumped up charge has this very week man on a trumped up charge has this very week been sent to Dorchester for speaking the truth.

The order of Sons of Temperance has done much toward bringing about these results, and much toward bringing about these results, and the much toward bringing about these results. ou ir your great mission and work.

Officers and Members of the Grand Division. It gives me great pleasure to meet you again in annual session assembled. Year by year as we gather together at the meetings of the Grand Division we are led to thank the Giver of all good things, for the many mercies bestowed upon us, and especially at this time should we thank Him for the good results which are apparent in our work of temperance reform. I am glad to be able to report to you that the present outlook is most encouraging not only within the order which we love so well, but in all the different branches of the work.

In this work the things which our fathers scarcely dared hope for we are beholding with our eyes. Science has thrown her light upon the use of intoxicating liquous and they are no longer considered a necessity in medicine, and
