MANHOOD.

How Lost How Restored.
JUST published, a new edition of Dr. Cullerwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhea or incapacity induced by excess or early indiscretion.
The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of early error may be radically cured pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself chiefly, privately and radically.
This lecture should be in the hand every youth and every man in the land.
Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of four cents, for two postage stamps. Address:

He Went on the Stage

Shakespeare, the greatest, of playwrights, furnished in 'As You Like It' perhaps the most valuable suggestion to stage-struck youths that has ever been given. Let the would-be actors and actresses direct their energies in the way proposed by a certain fond parent.

"Father," said Robert, "I have long cherished a desire to go on the stage, and have at last decided, with your permission, to—"

"My son," interrupted the fond father, "all the world's a stage." Take that hoe hanging in the wood-shed, and go out and dig those potatoes back of the orchard.

The engagement lasted a week with great success.

A Brief Retrospect.

WHY DEAR ALBERT SPURNED THE LOVE OF HIS ADORABLE DUCKY DARLING.

They were in all the blissful transports of a couple who had been engaged three hours and a half. It was verging on to midnight, but he manifested no sign of going, and she trembled lest he should do so. Suddenly he drew a pencil from his pocket, tore a blank leaf from his note book and said:

"Now, my own little lovey dovey, let's make a diagram of the little home we will have."

"Oh, yes let's do," she said, ecstatically. "Our home! Don't it sound lovely!"

"It will be genuine love in a cottage, won't it, sweetheart?"

"Oh, yes, indeed! We can get along with a dear, cunning little reception room, double parlors, a library, dining and music rooms down-stairs. Then we'll want a large, sunny, beautiful room upstairs for dear mamma."

"Yes, dearest: when she comes to visit us we'll make it as—"

"Visit us? Why, Albert mamma intends living with us, of course."

"Oh—ah—I—I—"

"I knew I'd surprise you, darling! Won't it be lovely. Then Aunt Harriet will have a room next to mamma's and—"

"Aunt Harriet?"

"Why, yes, precious. She dotes on you and I've always told her that if ever I had a home it should be hers, too, and you wouldn't want your little girly-girly to break her word?"

"No—no—I—"

"And then we must calculate for a large, sunny room for my dear old grandmamma and grandpapa who made your little wife to be so happy when she was a little girl."

"Yes, dear; but I—I—"

"No buts about it darling. Then sister Nellie will have a pleasant room and dear old Uncle Horace, and brother Tom won't want to be separated from dear mamma and me; and I've always said that dear old Auntie Miggs should be with me at least half of the time, and if we could spare a room for—"

Their engagement came to an end right there, and dear Albert has a breach of promise suit on hand now.—Detroit Free Press.

Grammar His Strong Point.

Justice of the peace—Had you ever saw this man before?

Witness—Yes.

"Had he come before you went?"

"No."

"Is them your eggs what you say was stole?"

"Yes."

"Would you have recognized them if you had seen them before they were brought here?"

"Yes; I would have knowed them."

"Speak grammatic, young man; it ain't proper to say 'have knowed'; you should say 'have knew.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

German Watches.

WHAT AN IMPORTER KNOWS ABOUT THEM AND THEIR MANUFACTURE.

A watch importer: "You need not be at all surprised if the Swiss and American watch manufacturers soon have formidable rivals in Germany, for our friends there are beginning to go into that business, and, as you know, they are aggressive in matters of trade, and of late years have been very successful in their new enterprises."

"Early this year a watch factory giving employment to thirty hands was established at Pforterhausen, and I hear it has already been so successful that it is shortly to be enlarged to give employment to 100 additional workmen. It is understood that the German Government views with pleasure the establishment of this new industry and will take steps to foster and encourage it."

"The first watch factory in Germany? Well, about that there seems to be some difference of opinion. A statement was extensively published by the German press to the effect that this was the first factory; but I now see this contradicted by a newspaper which states that as long ago as 1856 a watch factory employing 350 hands was established at Lohn, in Silesia. It was encouraged by the Prussian Government, which gave it both moral and financial support. The factory is said to be still in existence, but no longer at Lohn, it having been moved to Silberberg, where it produces watches of all descriptions, from chronometers down to the commonest cylinder escapements. The same paper is authority for the statement that there has been a watch factory at Glashutte, near Dresden, for a number of years past, which, however, produces only the finest and most expensive watches."

"From time to time ineffectual attempts have been made to establish factories at Schweningen, Trigberg, Stein-sur-Rhine and elsewhere. For years a horological school has been successfully conducted at Furtwangen, in the Black Forest."—Jewelers' Weekly.

A Battle-Scarred Veteran.

War is serious business—as the hero of this story evidently thought—but it has its amusing incidents, and its amusing revelations of human traits. A soldier of the Sixty-third, which was put in active service for the first time in the Dalton campaign, presented himself at the hospital in the rear of the army, where the following colloquy took place between him and the surgeon:

Surgeon—What is the matter with you, my man?

Patient—I've got the room-ticks mighty bad, and I'm pretty nigh wore out.

Surgeon—How far, have you come to-day?

Patient—Nigh on to thirty mile.

Surgeon—Have you ever been in a battle?

Patient—Lor, yes! You'd a thought so if you'd been thar. Why, a bombshell went right over our company!—Annual of the Army of Tennessee.

Banking in China.

HOW PICTAILED TELLERS HANDLE SCRAPS OF SILVER AND CLUMSY BANK NOTES.

A curious place that we looked into on our way across the city of Canton was a Chinese bank, where the counterpart of the brisk young cashier, tellers and accountants of our home banks were sitting in pig-tails, and the long blue blouses of gentlemen and scholars, shoveling silver Mexicans from basket to basket, and letting them fall on the stone floor with a deafening ring and clatter. A Chinaman can do nothing quietly, and noise is his necessary accompaniment to every action.

Every one of the pewtery-looking dollars is weighed and stamped by the bank, rung on stone slabs and fully tested, and there are baskets full of fragments, halves and chips of silver dollars that pass as smaller coins. These scraps and bits of silver pass current by their weight, and their purity is tested by the ring. The Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking corporation issue paper notes of different values that save one from carrying loads of these clumsy Mexican dollars about with one, but the bank notes are as clumsy in proportion. They are all over six inches long and four inches wide, of a tough, fibrous paper, as thick as blotting paper, and as flabby as so much dirty calico, which they chiefly resemble. Those diploma-sized notes of the Bank of England are small and compact by comparison, and every common-sense traveler cries for Mitkiewicz and his syndicate to come with the great bank and do away with the ugly Mexican and the clumsy English notes. A great proportion of Chinese talent must be employed in counterfeiting Chinese dollars, to judge from the numbers about and the wariness with which every one accepts one of the coins. A most clever counterfeit passed off on me was one that was plainly pure silver and newly minted. An expert rapped it sharply with his pen-knife, and the top fell off like the lid of a box, and disclosed an interior of pure pewter filling in the thin shell of silver. At the American schedule of wages, two dollars of a silversmith's time had been used to plane off in a thin shaving the top of the dollar, dig out the solid part and fill up the cavity with lead, and bring the deceptive seventy-cent dollar down to a silver value at ten cents or less.—Cor. St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A neat device for robbing the mail has been discovered at Hartford. A sheet of stiff paper was passed by the thieves through the opening of the street lamp boxes with both ends folded and gummed, so that one end adhered to the box, and all letters dropped in thereafter were caught on the other end and held. At night the paper with its contents was withdrawn and the letters abstracted, opened and rifled. The department is trying to trace the thieves. The indications are that many letters have been thus stolen.

As the following testimonial will show. MESSRS. THOMPSON & CO.

Gentlemen—After a thorough examination of several organs manufactured by Messrs.
