As the following testimonial will show.
Messrs. Thompson & Co.

Gentlemen:—After a thorough examination of several organs manufactured by Messrs. Doherty & Co., for which you are the General Agent, I have much pleasure in stating that the result has been most satisfactory. The tone is good and the touch faultless, and I have no hesitation in saying that they are deserving of the high reputation they have already attained.

IF I WERE A BOY.

If I were a boy again I would look on the cheerful side of everything, for almost everything has a cheerful side. Life is very much like a mirror; if you smile upon it, it smiles back again on you, but if you frown and look doubtful upon it, you will be sure to get a similar look in return. I once heard it said of a grumbling unthankful person: He would have made an uncommonly fine sour apple, if he had happened to have been born in that station of life! Inner sunshine warms not only the heart of the owner, but all who come in contact with it. Indifference begets indifference. Who shuts love out, in turn shall be shut out from love.

If I were a boy again I would school myself to say "No" oftener. I might write pages on the importance of learning very early in life to gain that point where a young man can stand erect and decline doing an unworthy thing because it is unworthy, but the whole subject is so admirably treated by dear old President James Walker, who was once the head of Harvard college, that I beg you to get his volume of discourses and read what he has to tell you about saying No on every occasion. Dr. Walker had that supreme art of putting things which is now so rare among instructors of youth or age, and what he has left for mankind to read is written in permanent ink.

If I were a boy again I would demand of myself more courtesy toward my companies and friends. Indeed, I would rigorously exact it of myself toward strangers as well. The smallest courtesies, interspersed along the rough roads of life, are like the little English sparrows now singing to us all winter long, and making that season of ice and snow more endurable to everybody.

But I have talked long enough, and this shall be my parting paragraph. Instead of trying so hard as some of us do to be happy, as if that were the sole purpose of life, I would, if I were a boy again, try still harder to deserve happiness.

YOUNG MEN, READ THIS!

It is very common for young men, says a writer in the Chataquan, I think, to determine the quality of their work by the price which they are paid for it. I only get, says such a one, $5 a week, and I am sure that I am giving $5 worth of service; if my employer wants more, let him pay more; if he wants better let him give better wages. This is precious reasoning, but it is false; and it is destructive to the best work, and therefore to the best manhood. No man can afford to do anything less well than his best work, in the very process striving will grow better and better. Not only will he grow more skillful in that particular workmanship, but he will be better equipped for other workmanship. This is an absolutely universal law. It is the absolutely universal road to promotion.

The man who is careful to give nothing more than he gets, rarely gets more than he gives. The man who works for his own sake, who puts the best part of himself into every blow that he strikes, who mixes all works with brain and conscience, who studies to render the largest possible service regardless of the compensation which it brings, sooner or later will find his way on and up. The world learns his worth and calls him to higher service. Nor is that all. By stirring himself up to do always the best he can, he grows into a power to do better and ever better.

THOUGHTS FOR YOUNG MEN.—Every man must in an important sense educate himself. His books and teachers are but helps—the work is his. A man is not educated until he has the ability to summon, in case of emergency, all his mental power in vigorous exercise to effect his proposed object. It is not the man who has seen the most, or who has read the most, who can do this; such a man is in danger of being borne down, like a beast of burden, by an over-whelmed mass of other men's thoughts.

WORDS OF POLITENESS.

One who has the germ of true politeness in his heart can never be boorish, and our aim should be to make the foundation of courtesy solid; then there will be no cracks in its superstructure. With a kind heart, the face speaks the words of politeness and the hands do the courtesy. We want no counterfeits, but the real thing. No thanks, that come out like words from a rubber stamp, but the I thank you, that is each time written with an individuality of its own.

THE GREAT Foe OF LIFE.—The great foe of life is the disposition to self-indulgence in one form or another. To be safe one must be circumspect, prudent, rational, clear in judgement, and, above all, firm and decided in self control.

Ladies' Column.

USE OF GLYCERINE.

Few people realize the importance of the uses of pure commercial glycerine, and how it can be used and made available for the purposes where no substitute is found that will take its place; and herein, Mr. Editor, if you will allow me space to speak of its utility, no doubt many of your readers will find an opportunity to thank you. As a dressing for ladies' shoes nothing equals it, making the leather soft and pliable without soiling the garments in contact. Where the feet sweat, burnt alum and glycerine—one of the former to two of the latter—rubbed on the feet at night and a light or open sock worn, the feet washed in the morning with tepid water, will keep them during the day free from odor, so disagreeable to those persons who are sufferers.

For bunions and corns Cannabis indicus and glycerine, equal parts, painted on the bunion or corn and bound around with Canton flannel, adding a few drops of the liquid to the flannel where it comes in contact with the affected parts, will soon restore to health.

As a face lotion, oatmeal made in a paste with glycerine two parts, water one part, and applied to the face at night with a mask worn over, will give in a short time, if faithfully pursued, a youthful appearance to the skin.

As a dressing in the bath, two quarts of water with two ounces of glycerine, scented with rose, which will impart a final freshness and delicacy to the skin.

In severe paroxysms in coughing, either in coughs, colds or consumptives, one or two tablespoonfuls of pure glycerine in hot rich cream will afford almost immediate relief; and to the consumptive a panacea is found by daily use of glycerine internally, with the proportion of one part of powdered willow charcoal and two parts of pure glycerine.

For diseased and inflamed gums, two parts of golden seal, one part of powdered burnt alum, and two parts of glycerine, made in a paste and rubbed on the gums and around the teeth at night, strengthens and restores the gums to health, provided no tartar is present to cause the disease, which must be removed first before applying.

And finally, the epicure who relishes a nice breakfast dish of fried fish, will find 'a feast for the gods' by frying the fish in glycerine to a brown, adding a small sprig of parsley when nearly done.

HOW WOMEN SHOULD WALK.

The best walker I ever saw was hopelessly plain of feature—by inheritance—yet the sojourners in the mountain hotel where she was passing the summer crowded to the windows to see her cross the lawn or go down the road. Her skirts were of a modest length, just clearing the instep; she wore stout boots that were well fitted and trim; as she trod, she cast the whole weight of her body on the ball of the foot, rising very slightly on the toe. She held herself perfectly erect, yet not stiffly; chest expanded, shoulders down and back; her motion reminded one of the straight flight of a bird, the right onward sweep of a canoe—of all swift and graceful things—never recalling the lounge, or slide, or hitching bounce, or pigeon like perk, that go for walking with the beavies of well dressed women one meets every hour on street and road.

Watch the tide tumbling and bubbling along the great thoroughfares of our cities on a fine afternoon, if you would falsify and confirm the assertion that not one woman in a thousand uses her lower limbs well, or cares to learn how to employ them in any exercise except dancing. Where one strikes out freely and fearlessly, the nine hundred and ninety-nine shuffle, lunge, bob and waddle. Men know it, if women do not. Ask your grown brother with how many girls he can keep step on a smooth pavement without feeling as if he were hopped; how often he has to execute the half step that recovers the rhythmic pace, royally disregarded by his fair companion.

Duties are ours, events are the Lord's; it is our part to let the Almighty exercise his own office and his own helm.

The tongue which takes pleasure in criticising the faults of others, is like one who delights in the labors of a pest house.

Envy, like the worm, never runs but to the fairest fruit; the cunning bloodhound, singles out the fattest deer in the flock.

We know not the sweet green sheaves before the harvest, that might be had on this side of the water, if we would take more pains.

Verily I have seen the best of this world, moth-eaten, thread-bare coat; I purpose to lay it aside, being now old and full of holes.

How Lost How Restored.

JUST published, a new edition of Dr. Cullerwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhea or incapacity induced by excess or early indiscretion. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of early error may be radically cured pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself chiefly, privately and radically. This lecture should be in the hand every youth and every man in the land. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of four cents, for two postage stamps.
