MANHOOD.
How Lost How Restored.

JUST published, a new edition of Dr. Cullerwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhea or incapacity induced by excess or early indiscretion.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of early error may be radically cured, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself chiefly, privately and rationally.

This lecture should be in the hand every youth and every man in the land.

The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity, of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

“One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being above all others, we used it with marvelous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned.”

Recommended
—J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

“I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time.” — E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

“We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier.” — W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

“Ayer's medicines continue to be the standard remedies in spite of all competition.” — T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

ECONOMIC HINTS CONCERNING THE CARE OF SHOES.

In nearly all homes, more particularly where there are children, there is generally an accumulation of shoes of all kinds, half worn, whole worn and very little worn. In the majority of homes these are thrown promiscuously together in a closet or some other receptacle, to be assorted when wanted. Some of these are of no earthly use to the possessors, but are hoarded up with the idea that they may some day be found useful, yet rarely is this true, for if put away for any length of time they are, when taken out, generally unfit for use. There are few things that will collect mold as quickly as old boots or shoes, more particularly if in a close receptacle, such as a dark closet. Consequently when they are laid away for any length of time they should be taken out into the light and air occasionally to keep them in fair condition. Musty shoes in the home will not tend toward the good health of the family, and the fewer of such things there are the better. It is much the better way, where there are more than one extra pair of cast off shoes to each person, to see that the superfluous shoes are given some one in need of them. The housewife may think they are not worth giving away, being worn so badly, yet the shoes she would think unfit for this purpose would be accepted with gratitude by many a poor unfortunate person. It is wonderful how very much worn a shoe may be ere it is rejected by a needy person. Do not allow old boots and shoes to accumulate, but give them where they will do the most good, and you will never regret it.

Shoes that are worn regularly, if cared for, will last much longer than if neglected, as is too often the case. A French kid shoe, if carelessly cared for, will not look nor last as long as one of an inferior quality that is looked after properly. When shoes are taken off they should be thoroughly brushed, to remove the dust that invariably collects in the creases, smoothed out with the hand and placed away in a shoe bag or box away from the dust, and when wanted for use they can be taken out ready for wear. Where there is not a box or bag for this purpose, a closet is the next best thing. Shoes will last much longer if, when new, they are rubbed with castor oil. Hold them in front of a fire and rub the oil well into the leather. The oil makes the leather pliable, fills up the pores, and prevents it from cracking. Where boots are worn every day, once a fortnight is not too often to oil them. At first the oil after standing will give them a gray look, but when dressed it gives them a nice soft finish. It is not advisable to use much of the dressings so fashionable for ladies' and children's shoes nowadays, as the most of them in a short while crack the leather. The box blacking used for men's boots is much to be preferred, although it is a little harder to apply. When using the dressing, apply a very thin coat, and do so as seldom as possible. We have seen some very fine shoes ruined by using a poor dressing; therefore unless you can find one that has been well tested, it is better for a fine grade of leather to depend on the box of blacking.

There are many patent button fasteners in the market that are excellent for children's everyday shoes, more particularly where there are boys, as they are much stronger than thread, and the children learn very soon to adjust them, thereby saving the mother some work besides keeping their shoes in good condition. For a fine grade of leather we have never seen any fasteners that ought to be used as in a short time they cut the leather, making an unsightly tear, and some of them, when the shoes are tight fitting, will tear the stocking. The fine shoestring with needle attached, which may be purchased at any shoe store, is the best thing with which to fasten on shoe buttons. Fasten them quite tight at first, as they work loose, owing to the shoestring stretching. Never wear a shoe unbuttoned if you care at all to have it shapely. Never put a wet shoe close to a fire to dry, for when dry it will be so hard that it will be difficult to get on. When taken off the foot wet, smooth into as good shape as possible, then put in a medium warm place and let dry. To be sure, it will take a longer time than if dried at the fire, but it will be in a much better condition when wanted. Shoes hardened by being dried at the fire can be wonderfully softened by using a little castor oil well rubbed in. When throwing away old shoes, cut off all the good buttons and put away for future use.—Boston Budget.

HAVE A PURPOSE.

Young man, have a purpose in your heart. Now, what is your purpose in life? Is it that under all circumstances you will do what you think is right? Or is it to become rich at the expense of principle and right? The first purpose you should have is to care for yourself. Young men nowadays don't and when the body is wrecked they hobble through life, making everybody about them miserable. Find out what diet best agrees with you, and adhere to it. Daniel began by abstaining from wine. This would be a good start for you, young man.

Next, take care of your intellect. Study, if you have intellect—there are some young men who don't know whether they have or not—improve it. Many hard-worked men have acquired profound educations by being studious during small intervals of leisure. Get an hour a day if you can get no more. Devote half of it to the study of the Bible, and divide the remaining thirty minutes, say between astronomy, botany and geology. Do this one year and you will be surprised at what you have accomplished.

Then take care of your manners. The manners of Americans are degenerating. There was a time when a young man would not offend a lady by puffing cigar smoke into her face. Now I see it done on the street-cars every day. Imitate the gentleness of Daniel. Be affable, suave, courteous and kind. Never utter a thoughtless word that will pain. Start in life with the principle, I'll be a gentleman, come what will.—Dr. D. M. Scudder.

Scissors should be kept in good order. It is a mistake to use old scissors which have become nicked at the edges for trimming lamp wicks. This is frequently the cause of uneven wicks, which smoke the chimney and give a very uncertain light.

For the most part, what is commonly called “company” will refrain from visiting us just as soon as we cease to make sacrifices on their behalf of time, convenience, dress, money or flattery. It is ours, not us, they generally desire.

If before grinding the morning's coffee the berries are heated for four or five minutes, or until they take on a darker shade of brown, the flavor of the coffee will be much improved.

Butter contracts during cold weather forcing the brine to the surface, and the water evaporating, leaves the salt that was in the brine in flakes on the outside of the butter.

By adding a spoonful of vinegar and a little sugar to the stove blacking a high polish is easily produced.

New iron should be gradually heated at first. After it has become used to the heat it is not likely to crack.

Apple sauce is much improved by addition of a tablespoonful of butter, and requires less sugar.

Keep a bit of emery paper in your work box for brightening and sharpening needles.

Cloves are said to be a better preventive of moths than tobacco, or camphor, or cedar.

Wash all marble daily with ammonia and water in place of soap-suds.

Keep a separate sauce pan for boiling potatoes in if possible.

FOR YOUNG MEN.

The following is taken from the last article written by the late Henry Ward Beecher, a short time previous to his death:—

“I rejoice to say that I was brought up from my youth to abstain from tobacco. It is unhealthy, it is filthy from beginning to end. I believe that the day will come, when a young man will be proud of not being addicted to the use of stimulants of any kind. I believe that the day will come, when not to drink, not to use tobacco, not to waste ones strength in the secret indulgence of passion, but to be true to one's nature, true to God's law, to be sound, robust, cheertul, and to be conscious that these elements of health and strength are derived from the reverent obedience to the commandments of God will be a matter of ambition and endeavor among men.”—[The Guardian.

A GRAND FEATURE.—One great feature of our Order is that it transfers the risks of the pecuniary value of life on whom the loss would fall with crushing force, and divides it up with thousands of other families, who share equally in the loss. The pecuniary burden does not fall heavily on any family. The whole loss is not made up, the tears are not dried, the grief is not assuaged, but the dread of immediate penury or dependence is moved. A grievous burden is lifted from the mind. The home can be maintained, the children can be educated, and the memory of the kind, watchful, providing friend can be perpetuated through daily mercies received from his thoughtful care. This is the one great thing secured by our Order, which brings in its train a long succession of blessings, and makes it the duty of every one to enter the fold at once, and labor to perpetuate its blessings to the thousands whose families may soon be dependent, if not homeless. The time to do this is now: the reasons for doing it cannot be enumerated in our space, or by our space, or by our pen. The theme is inexhaustible.—G. C. Journal.

As the following testimonial will show.
Messrs. Thompson & Co.

Gentlemen—After a thorough examination of several organs manufactured by Messrs. Doherty & Co., for which you are the General Agent, I have much pleasure in stating that the result has been most satisfactory. The tone is good and the touch faultless, and I have no hesitation in saying that they are deserving of the high reputation they have already attained.
