ON THE STREET.

The rain which fell almost continually on Thursday evening could not damper the political ardor of the people of St. John. From the time the first returns began to come in until well on into the evening large crowds were gathered about the News office and other places where information concerning the contest could be secured, watching with interest the various bulletins as they hours in the early part of the evening the Conservatives were wild over their ictory in St. John and boastful conerning their prospects elsewhere. This did not long continue. As reports from other constituencies began to come in the air of confidence quickly passed away. Hale's defeat in Carleton county was a bitter pill, the news of Emmerson's return in Westmoreland caused further depression. but when it became definitely known that R. L.
