The Loyalist.

FREDERICTON, (N. B.,) THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1846.

OREGON.

We copy from the New York Journal of Commerce a paragraph which if true, shows that the Oregon question so far as WAR is concerned is settled. This has always been our opinion. We could never bring ourselves to think for a moment that two great nations, such as England and United States would be mad enough to go to war about a paltry piece of wilderness land. Were we to believe the braggadocio bullying effusions which from time to time emenate from a portion of the American press, we should certainly have expected a war; but these things are too well understood both in England and America to have much influence. Fortunately for United States such is the case—we say fortunately, because a war between these two countries must prove ruinous to the commercial interest of the latter, whose principle trade is with Great Britain. It is not the respectable thinking portion of the American people that clamour for war—they know too well the direful consequences which must necessarily follow a rupture with England; they cannot shut their eyes to the immense naval strength of Britain at the present moment, and they dread the power of the "mistress of the seas." It is the rabble of the United States that cry for war, the congregated mass of lawless outcasts from the four corners of the civilized world that would thus sever the ties that bind these two great and powerful nations in the bonds of peace and brotherhood. Who would wish to see brother opposed to brother, father pointing the bayonet to the breast of his own son, and the land desolated with all the horrors of war that they might satiate their vitiated appetites with rapine and plunder? Surely none but those who, having nothing to lose, are regardless of the welfare of others. That the opinion of this class of persons, should obtain in the grave councils of nations, or their voice reverberate through the Halls of deliberative wisdom, is a fact too true and deeply to be lamented. That conclusions arrived at upon any subject in moments of anger are sure to be erroneous, is a long established axiom,—and to recklessness and passion solely, can be ascribed the clamour for WAR by the Americans. In no country are opinions circulated so freely, without any regard either to their correctness or ultimate effect than is done by that people. That she should be so dissimilar to England in this respect, is not to be ascribed to astringent Legislative Enactments, by the latter nation, but to that high moral tone which is the characteristic of the Saxon descendant. The leveling system—the phantom of equality—this plausible freedom is the fruitful source, from whence springs all the difficulties of the Democratic Councils; and unless more wisdom, together with a proper understanding of the English character is mixed with their principals of action, a fate often predicted, will surely overtake them. The mild language in which the notice is couched evinces a return of reason to the Congress; and it is to be hoped that the whole nation will yet be so far elevated in sentiment, as to respond to the toast of the "British Consul" at the last St. George's dinner in New York that, "ANGLO-SAXON BLOOD IS TOO GOOD TO BE SPILT."

☞ The question has been frequently put to us, for some time past, "when will the new Election take place?" We have invariably answered, "we know not." As there is no Law upon our statute book limiting the duration of the present House, and as we do not form a part of the Executive, the Assembly may rival even the "Rump parliament." We cannot pretend to give an opinion upon the subject, not being even seers. Some of our cotemporaries, who profess more knowledge of the "thimble-rig business" than we do, come out learnedly, and we hope advisedly, saying, this important event will come off in July next. Now, as the sources from whence they have arrived at this conclusion, have not been developed to us, we cannot vouch for their correctness, nor even venture on giving unqualified currency to statements that a "breath may carry away."

The term of His Excellency's stewardship in this Province, according to Colonial rule, has expired. How long he may be continued in office, upon sufference, remains to be seen; and should we be inclined to venture a guess, upon these matters, it would be something like this,—that the life of the present House is dependant in some measure, upon the time of Sir William's duration in this Province as "Commander-in-Chief." Whether the principle of the late QUADRENIAL BILL will be so outraged or not, we do not presume to say; but the manner in which matters of quite as grave a nature have been treated, leaves room for various conjectures.

☞ The London Morning Chronicle says that upwards of seventy fire-engines, on an improved principle, have been ordered by the Board of Ordnance, for the use of the different Garrisons and Government Buildings in the Colonies. They are made intirely of Copper. Some idea of their power is given, by the statement that they discharged a stream of water to the top of the White Tower 150 feet at least we should suppose.

☞ In our obituary notices of to-day, will be found the decease of E. W. HARVEY, Esq., late son of his Excellency Sir John Harvey. This young gentleman was well known by the inhabitants of this City and Province, and his early death is sincerely lamented among us. The General Assembly of Newfoundland suspending business, when this information arrived is a high testimonial of the estimation in which he was held.

☞ It is said that the Hon. J. S. Saunders, the Provincial Secretary, has not drawn any part of his salary for that office, as the question still remains unsettled as to the amount he is to receive. It is also stated that the monies drawn by A. Reade, Esq., for his salary during the time he filled that office, still stands to his credit in the Central Bank. This sum, it is well known, is at the rate of £1600 per annum.

☞ We beg leave to call the attention of the public to the New Clothing Establishment just opened in our City, by Mr. Neill of St. John. Those who wish cheap and good Clothing should patronize the "New-Brunswick Clothing Store." See advertisement in another column.

☞ Our Canadian files of this week furnish but a small quota of News respecting the "doings" of their Legislature. If an opinion of their assiduity can be gathered from the Reports, they are as yet getting on slow. That such an Assembly should on any day meet without a quorum, as we learn from some of our exchanges has been the case is rather remarkable. The press (if capable) does not attempt to solve the problem. We give the following from the Quebec Gazette of date 6th inst., as indicative of the spirit of Trade.

MONTREAL, May 5th, 1846. 5, P. M.

"There was not much business done in the Assembly last night. They spent a couple of hours on Mr. Ryland's petition, the report in favour of which they rejected. There is something less than 60 members in town. In the Leegislative Council there are still 16 or 17.

"The Customs Duties passed the Legislative Council today, and the Excise Bill is come up. The Militia Bill is not yet reported.

"New York evening papers of the 1st contains nothing of moment. The water was let into the Lachine canal yesterday, and the Highlander arrived from up the river at Lachine this morning. The lower part of the canal will not be ready for some days, but the new basins above the entrance of the canal will receive the Upper Canada boats. The Quebec arrived about 1 o'clock to day. Weather fine, but the mud which bespattered our clothes from the rapid driving of the wheels of carriages, is replaced by a dust which rolls along the streets and roads, and rises in clouds abave the city."

Resolutions to be proposed by Mr. Merrit, in a Committee of the whole House, on Thursday the 7th May:—

1 Resolved, That in adopting the principle recommended in the Despatch of the Colonial Secretary, of the 3rd Feb. last, in which we are assured, "that it is the desire of Her Majesty's Government, that the trade of Canada may, in all respects approuch as nearly to perfect freedom, as the dispositions of its inhabitants and the exigencies of the Public Revenue then, may permit," it is but just and reasonable that every existing restriction on the trade of Canada should be removed.

2 Resolved, That under the existing colonial policy of Great Britain, this Province has undertaken the construction of Public Works of great magnitude, for which a large debt has been incurred, and its present agricultural prosperity is chiefly attributable to the protection, its products has received since the reduction of duties on Wheat and Flour in 1843, in the markets of the Mother Country.

3 Resolved, That fully appreciating the advantages this Province ought to possess over the Western States of America, inasmuch as the Citizens of those States pay duties on imports for the support of the Federal Government of the United States, while the inhabitants of Canada are subject to no similar duties for the support of the British Government, nevertheless from our fiscal system and existing restrictions on commerce, the inhabitants of Canada do not realize those advantages, and they have reason to apprehend the contemplated change in the commercial policy of Great Britain will confer a still greater advantage tn the Citizens of the United States thae to the inhabitants of Canada.

4 Resolved, That inasmuch as it is proposed to relieve commerce and extend an equiualent to the Agriculturists in Britain by a reduction of import duties on all articles consumed, by removing various burdens on land, and by providing for the encouragement of Agricultural industry, by means of loans raised on the credit of Government to improve the same, the Province generally, and the Agriculturists in particular, hove reason believe that Her Majesty's Government will readily extend a similar equivalent to them for the protection about to be withdrawn.

5 Resolvad, That an humble Address be presented to Her Majnsty, praying that She will be pleased to admit all articles, the growth and produce of Canada, into the markets of the Mother Country free from duty; also, that She will be pleased to recommend to the Imperial Parliament, that all Imperial Acts relating to duties on the Imports, Revenue and Trade of Canada may be revealed, and her commerce relieved from all restrictions, except what may be imposed by the Provincial Legislature, also, that Her Majesty may be pleased to open a negociation with the Goverment of the United States for the purpose of obtaining access for the products of Canada, into the markets of that corntry on the same terms that American products are to be admitted into the markets of Britain and Canada; also, that the River St. Lawrence from Lake Ontario to the ocean may be opened to all nations, subject to no greater restrictions than now exist in passing through the Welland Canal around the Falls of Niagara, in order that a revenue from tolls may be ensured to repay the cost of the construction of the Canals connecting those waters.

☞ "The ruling passion strong in death." Were any proof required of the correctness of this saw of the Poet, it can be found in the "Head Quarters" of yesterday. In his last dying speech, poor Jonathan Brown, the "Farmer's Manual," a "guano coat," and "Holloway's Pills" to the contrary, notwithstanding, expended his latest breath in this doleful aspiration. "Oh! tell me where shall I find the long lost epistles of Agricola."

Well, poor fellow requiescat in pace! He will be long remembered in New Maryland as a chemical agriculturist. What a pity he did not live long enough to mature his notions upon the potatoe rot! But he may be useful elsewhere, for what saith Hamlet,

"Imperious Cæsar, dead, and turned to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away;
O that the Earth, which kept the world in awe
Should patch a wall to expel the winters flaw."

☞ Mr. Marsh's new steam saw mill is now turning out daily from one gang, 15 M. of deals. This mill possesses one great advantage over the St. John Mills, in having the choice of all the logs that pass this city on their way to the St. John market. This of course renders the deals of a superier quality to any other. The second gang of saws will be in operation in a few days.

THE WEATHER.—For the last few days we have had continuous rains; this, besides its beneficial effects upon vegetation, has covered the waters of the St. John with timber of every description. We believe this is the earliest season at which lumber has arrived at market. The prices are good.

☞ We are happy to see "The Young Aspirant," edited by Mr. J. G. Lorimer, and issued from the "Reporter office," make its debut. We hope the children understand it—we don't.
