pany cleaned up millions.

Took an active part in gas affairs in Boston.

Fell out with the Standard Oil in 1901 and lost about $10,000,000 in a few days in a sensational drop in Amalgamated stock. Vowed vengeance and lay low.

Began a campaign of publicity looking to a rehighlitation of his fortunes and to getting square with the Standard Oil.

Acquired a copper mine of his own in California. Began promoting a combination of lake Superior mines as rivals to the Amalgamated.

In 1901 he built a racing yacht at a cost of $250,000 and offered her as a defender of the American cup, but without being admitted to the trial roces. Broke the vessel up at the end of three months, and published a book telling all about it, at a cost of $40,000 the entire-edition of which he gave away.

Acquired fame as buyer of a prink of $30,000 and naming it for his wife.

Built a stock farm among the rocks of Schutae at a cost of $2,000,000 because his wife liked the site.

Has accumulated the finest kennel of buildogs in the country.

Bought a triangle of land in the Back Bay for nearly $300,000 and made it into a park for the benefit of his neighbors, most of whom do not like him.

Is conducting his present campaign against the stock market from a room in a downtown hotel, assisted only by a stemographer. Is not accessible, even to his intimates.

Is the most complex character before the public today.

Does not belong to any city club. Spends all his evenings at home. Dispenses large sums in charity.
