Rece of the Mantelpiece," which is to be produced tomorrow evening in the Opera House, is perhaps one of the most unique entertainments ever placed before the St. John public. Composed entirely of amateurs it is yet as complete as any professional organization in every detail. The labor involved in taking a company of seventy members on tour is no light one. The special scenery and elaborate electrical effects arrived this morning, so some little idea of the thoroughness with which the promoters have taken the task in hand, may be imagined.
