

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Beatrice Terry, Youngest Leading Lady on the Stage.

FOURTEEN YEARS OLD.

W. T. Stead Wants a Subsidized Theatre—May Yohe After a Divorce—Pauline at the Ark.

Pauline, the hypnotist, was the only offering in the local theatres this week. He was at the York and gave a wonderful performance but did not by any means receive the patronage he merited. In almost any other city an exhibition such as Pauline gives would attract crowded houses but St. John audiences were ever whimsical and while I will not presume to say they do not know a good thing when they see it I will say that if they do know it they do not patronize it. Pauline's case in point. Last night he had a good audience, however, and if he decides to remain another week, as he may do, he should receive crowded houses nightly.

Francis Wilson says that Maurice Barrymore once made the rounds of the offices of the theatrical managers in London, trying to get them to put on a new play that Barrymore himself had written. One of the managers to whom Barrymore had read the play seemed much impressed. Before their interview had ended, it had been decided to give the piece an early production and to have Barrymore "do" the leading role. About a week after what Barrymore had supposed was the definite agreement upon arrangement had been reached, the actor received a note from the manager asking him to call. When Barrymore responded to the summons the manager said:

"I like the play, old fellow, and I'm going to give it a fine production, but, really, I don't see how I can use you in the part. Your beautiful American accent won't do at all, you know. They don't like it here."

"That's odd," said Barrymore; "they tell me on the other side of the Atlantic that my English is excellent. What on earth am I to do—give recitations on the transatlantic steamers?"—Harper's Weekly.

Miss Jessie Macleahan's present American tour ends at San Francisco about the end of March, from which port she sails for the Antipodes, giving Scottish concerns in all the important centres of Australia, New Zealand, and Tasmania. She again returns to America by way of the Pacific, touring in the Canadian northwest September, October, and November.

May Yohe may well consider now whether marriage is a failure. Her escapades with matrimony savor of a muchness and now she again seeks relief through the divorce courts. She claims that Putnam Bradler Strong her latest husband cannot support her in the style to which she has been accustomed. He is travelling as excess baggage and may have determined to cut him from her visiting list. She made this announcement confidentially in New York the other day. Mr. Strong is now in London but his wife is in New York and she has instructed her attorney to serve him with preliminary papers in a divorce action. May has had several chances in the matrimonial lottery and, to let her tell it, she has drawn a blank each time.

"The Forbidden Land," a comic with its locale in Thibet had its

Are Your Nerves on Edge?

ARE YOU SENSITIVE TO LIGHT, SOUND AND MOTION? YOU NEED Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Twitching of the nerves, sudden starting, tenderness of the scalp or spine, headache at top or back of head, noises in the ears, sparks before the eyes, sleeplessness, dyspepsia, pains and cramps, neuralgia, timidity, irritability, melancholy, physical weakness and general debility are among the symptoms of nervous exhaustion.

You may look well enough and still be a victim of nervous prostration, but can do little with either mind or body without becoming greatly fatigued.

Good food, pure air, suitable rest and the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will thoroughly overcome the most extreme case of nervous exhaustion and prostration.

We need only to refer you to such extreme cases as those of Mrs. James Miles, sen., of South Woodlee, Ont., Mrs. R. W. Edwards, 33 Murray St., Brantford, Ont., or Mr. S. Cloutier of 110 Legacuchiere street, Montreal, cases in which regular physicians were entirely unable to render assistance.

Use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly, and it will not be long before the wasting process will be overcome and the work of reconstruction begun. Note your increase in weight as strength and vigor are being restored.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

first production on any stage at New York on Monday evening. The music is tuneful and many airs were called for several times, one of them, "My Lassie Maid" so often that it seems doomed for the hurdy gurdys. Some of the jokes have an appearance of freshness, though the subjects are a trifle hackneyed.

"I have a useful face," said Kinakob, chief of the Amalagand Beggars. "It is the sort of face you can lay on a Brussels carpet and you won't notice any difference in the pattern."

"Automobiles have ruined my profession," he says again. "What were you, a driver."

"No, horse thief."

Albert Chevalier, the London music hall singer, made his appearance in New York Monday night at the Circle theatre, singing some of his famous Coster songs. He got a warm welcome.

Miss Margaret Anglin's first appearance in George Middleton's new play, "A Wife's Strategy," was made the occasion of a notable demonstration at Hermann's theatre, Albany, Monday night. The large audience proved its deep interest by repeated curtain calls at the close of the first and second acts, and both play and star were accorded high praise. Mr. Middleton has written an emotional play of modern life, Miss Anglin appearing as the wife of a member of congress.

Miss Anglin was exceptionally strong in the lighter comedy touches, and the general opinion is that the play will enjoy a long run. It is expected that the first presentation of the play in New York will be in about six weeks.

Miss Beatrice Terry, leading lady for Edward Terry and niece of Ellen Terry is probably the youngest actress on the stage, to play leads in a full grown company. She has just attained the mature age of fourteen and speaking of her an American paper says:

"Miss Terry is seventeen years tall, and as slender as a willow wand. She is the typical English child of the illustrated Christmas magazine—face a pure oval, eyes grey blue, the fairest of skin, the whitest of teeth, the straightest of noses, and the reddest of hair, which curls back from her broad white forehead."

She wears it "hanging down her back," like the girl in the song, and her skirts are exaggerated "rainy days."

Miss Terry made her debut as the baby in "Olivia" at the tender age of two years, "Auntie Nellie," known to fame as Ellen Terry, was the Olivia. Since then she has played many parts and attended school at the same time. Her mother says that she is the busiest girl in the world, and the average fractionating American school girl would be agast at Miss Beatrice's idea of fun.

She spends most of her spare time playing patience and doing sums.

One would think that a young woman who does sums for fun would aspire to the role of Bernard Shaw's "Vivie Warren," but Miss Beatrice has probably never heard of that emancipated but lovable character. "Her idea of a role is one that is 'on stage all the time.'"

"I'd like to play Portia and Hero in 'Much Ado,' and, of course, Beatrice, because I love comedy. I suppose small character parts sometimes make great hits, but I like to be on the stage, even if I have to hang about idle."

"I go to school every morning, even when I am playing in the evening in London, and I love French—especially arithmetic and French—I hate to sew, but I love music and dancing and playing with little girls. I think they're nicest between five and seven years, and I'd rather play with little girls than big ones."

"There don't seem to be any little girls in America. They have such old ways, and dress so much, and the little ones go about with girls so much older than themselves. I suppose the schools are different here. In England, we go to kindergarten and make bead mats and paper crosses until we are six or seven. Here they seem to study quite serious things at seven."

Young Miss Terry—one can't say little Miss Terry—is an outdoor girl and when she isn't doing sums, playing patience, or rehearsing, she is walking or skating. In summer her favorite amusement is punting on the river, and no excursion is complete without dear rough-haired, bright-eyed Paddy, who had to be left at home.

Miss Terry comes of a family of English players. Like our American Drama, all branches of her family are on the stage. Her mother and sister were on the stage. Her father and brother are now playing in London. Her uncle, Fred Terry, and her "Auntie Nellie," are well known to New York, but, strange to say, she is not related to Edward Terry, with whom she is now playing.

W. T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews wants an endowed theatre for London where first class productions could be given at a nominal fee. On this point he said in a recent address:

"I have not found the theatre abominable. It is the good side of the theatre that saddens me, because the better the play the more monstrously wicked it is to confine it to the handful who alone can afford to pay modern prices. The poor ought to have the theatre open to them. When I think of what the theatre could do as an agency of culture and civilization, and when I see this miserable derelict vessel, which might have been a veritable ark, in which religion, morality and art might have found refuge, converted into a mere hound of selfish folk, intent solely upon passing the time, my heart burns hot, and I could almost weep over such abominable neglect, such absolute sacrilege."

MONDAY KNIGHT.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a table-spoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

A very successful entertainment was given in St. Patrick's hall, Carleton, last evening. The hall was well filled. The proceeds go towards the building fund of the church of the Assumption. The programme consisted of songs, recitations and piano solos which were very much enjoyed.

Mr. Horsely—No, I'm trying to break her of the one she has.

Palpitation of the Heart--Nervous Prostration--Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

They make weak hearts strong. They make shaky nerves firm.

Mr. Ray V. Cormier had a very trying experience while at College; but, thanks to Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, he has been restored to health. He tells his experience in the following letter to us:

"Wellington Station, P. E. I., Dec. 3rd, 1903.
"Messrs. The T. Milburn Co., Limited,
"Toronto, Ontario.
"Gentlemen,—Having been cured of a very troublesome disease, I find it my duty to write you a few lines. I was troubled with a very great palpitation of the heart and nervous prostration. I was attacked with it at College, and could not follow up the games of the University without being overcome with fatigue. I could not descend the stairs without resting half-way. I have left College, and am working in a general store, where I found your famous pills. I used three boxes, and am now completely cured; I cannot thank you enough for the purpose of benefiting anyone who is suffering as I did. My home is in Sackville, N. B., but at present I am on Prince Edward Island.

"I remain, dear sirs,
RAY V. CORMIER."
