VIEW OF EEL GROUND,

AS SEEN FROM THE OPPOSITE SIDE OF THE RIVER.

We take great pleasure in presenting to our readers a view of this delightful town, which is situated on the North side of the N. W. Branch of the Miramichi. It is a very thriving town, and contains some fifty inhabitants, more or less. The scenery about it is imposing; and the representation we give is a fair specimen of nature's variety in the North. The first object that attracts the eye, is the residence of the principal Editor, Simo B. W. Francis. It is a princely edifice, but of a peculiar style of architecture, the eaves descending to within one or two inches of the ground. To most of the inhabitants of Eel Ground, cellars are unknown, as most of the houses are raised two or three feet above the ground, for coolness and ventilation.

Its chief products are, Band Boxes, Baskets, and Axe Handles; all of which may be obtained at this Office, cheap for CASH.

MARRIAGES.

By the Rev. William Greatly, Mr. Todd Murphy, Junr., to Miss Jane Treadwell. We beg to acknowledge a large slice of Potato Cake. We wish them success, and a large family.

At Eel Ground, by the Rev. Neal Morris, Mr. Barnaby Genish, to Miss Molly Sinnott, both of the same colour and place.

At Newcastle, by the same, Mr. Joseph Fox, to Miss Emeline Ashton, both of the same place.

At the same place, by the Rev. Larry

Sullivan, Mr. John Murphy, to Miss Nancy O'Rourke. We have to acknowledge a barrel of Potatoes from this happy couple.
