SAINT JOHN 100 Years ago.

1783.

Over a hundred years ago the Tea trade of the (now) United States was terribly excited, so much so that men, women and children were armed to the teeth with that murderous weapon known as the "flint lock," determined to resist the efforts of King George of England to make them swallow tacks, which he had skilfully concealed in the beverage. Removed from that period by the lapse of time, and having a whole century in which to ponder over the matter, we rather think the people were right and George was wrong. However, we don't wish at this late date to call up the events of those stirring times, further than to say, that not all the men and women of that Western heritage sympathized with the popular wish to make Boston Harbor a teapot. Many of them were loyal to their King and country, and counted the tacks as an essential ingredient of the staple of China, and resisted to the bitter end the uprising of the Continentals. But, alas! in vain, for, after many years, when the new soil had become enriched with the blood of thousands of the brave ones of both parties, and many a noble fellow and heroic woman had poured out their life upon the field of strife, the arms of England were stacked, the camp fires extinguished, the tocsin ceased to reverberate along the verdant valleys, and echo from the mountain tops. The war was ended. The Independence of the United States secured. But there were restless, loyal souls still, whose hairs had not been singed with the fire of battle, whose bodies had not been marred nor maimed with the bullet or sabre of the relentless foeman, and these, whose hearts yearned still for British rule, gathered together their little all and set out in quest of a land over which the Standard of England was yet unfurled, beneath whose soil they would find a last resting place, and where, by the hardships incident to a new country, they could teach, by practical experience, their children the blessed lesson of love, loyalty and devotion.

On Sunday morning, May 18, 1783, the little band arrived in the harbor of St. John, and having landed upon the uninviting and inhospitable shore, set to work almost immediately to make it a gladsome home for themselves and little ones, and a glorious heritage for their children's children. The history of the progress of St. John is "known of all men," and in this, its Centennial year, the stranger has but to cast his eyes around to mark how rapid has been its development. Like Abraham when he left Padan Aran, the Loyalist was to be the prolific source of a vast progeny. When the hoar frost of age had gathered over his locks, his children, grown to men's estate, labored the more energetically to "compass the land," and when the old man was gathered to his fathers, they made him a bed in the virgin soil, and though no sacred urn marked "the place where they laid him," yet they vowed in their hearts that the mighty tome of Christianity, Civilization and Commerce should be the grand Trinity in the ages to come which should speak his praises. This year, 1883, the voice of this Trinity gives tangible evidence to the worth of the good old sires of Loyalist fame, and from the East, West, North and South are gathered to-day men, women and children to do him reverence. The progress that has marked the world's history since the smoke of the Revolution passed away has no parallel in any preceding age. In these hundred years have been crowded the mightiest achievments of the human mind—steam, the electric telegraph, the telephone, the electric light, and kindred triumphs of genius of which time and space do not permit us to speak. And could we fancy the wisest of the Loyalist fathers, who, early in the present century, laid him down to rest in the "narrow house," to be permitted to come forth in his shroud and stand for an hour in the midst of the tens of thousands that will crowd our city during "Exhibition week," his astonishment would be inconceivably great, but as his eyes took in the mighty progress of Science, Art and Commerce, that revealed themselves to him in the Exhibition itself, he would be lost in wonder and admiration, and go back to his bed of clay exclaiming "can such things be." None of us will likely be present when our children's children celebrate the second century of our country's history, but we question if they will be able to show as great advancement in human genius as the past one hundred years have wrought, and if they do the wonder is in what will it consist.

The following instrument is very brief, and doubtless served the end intended as though it had covered a quire of foolscap, as the descendants of Francis Peabody, now living in the Province, can testify.

A COPY OF FRANCIS PEABODY'S WILL

In the name of God, Amen.

I, Francis Peabody, of Maugerville, in the County of Sunbury and Province of Nova Scotia, being thro' the abundant goodness of God, though weak in body, yet of a sound and perfect understanding and memory, do constitute this, my last will and testament, and desire it may be received by all as such.

First, I most humbly bequeath my soul to God my maker, beseeching his most gracious acceptance of it through the all-sufficient merits of my Redeemer, Jesus Christ. I give my body to the earth from whence it was taken, in full assurance of its resurrection from hence at the last day. As for my burial I desire it may be decent, at the discretion of my dear wife and executors hereafter named. As to my worldly estate I will, and positively order, that all my just debts be paid first. I give my dear and loving wife one third part of all my estate in Nova Scotia, real and personal, (excepting my wearing apparel), and one third part of my land in Middleton and Rowley, Canada, and the use of two hundred dollars now in New England, during her natural life, and the principal if necessity calls for it. Item, to my son Samuel I give one-fourth part of all my lands not yet disposed of, excepting the land on Oromocto Island, and all the money I have in New England, except two hundred dollars given his mother, his paying all my just debts in New England, and fifteen dollars to his sister Elizabeth White, and two dollars and a half to his sister Hannah Simonds, and one hundred and fifty dollars to his sister Hepbabeth on her marriage day. Item, to my son Stephen I give the same quantity of lands as I gave to my son Samuel, his paying the same sums to his three sisters as ordered for his brother Samuel to pay. Item to my son Francis I give one half of my lands not yet disposed of. Item to my son Oliver I give all my lands not yet disposed of. Item, I give to my daughter Elizabeth White thirty dollars, to be paid by my two eldest sons in household goods. Item, to my daughter Hannah Simonds five dollars, to be paid by my two eldest sons. Item, to my daughter Hepbabeth I give three hundred dollars, to be paid by my two eldest sons in household goods on the day of her marriage. As to my household goods and furniture I leave to the discretion of my loving wife to dispose of, excepting my sword, which I give to my son Samuel. I appoint my dear wife and my son Samuel Executors of this my last Will and Testament.

As witness my hand,
Signed, FRANCIS PEABODY, Sr.
Delivered this Twenty-sixth day of October, the year of our Lord 1771.

ISRAEL KINNEY,
ALEXANDER TAPLEY,
PHINEHAS NEVERS,
BENJAMIN ATHERTON, Reg'r.

This Will was proved, approved and registered this 25th day of June, 1773.
Signed,
JAMES SIMMONDS, J. Probates.

From the Saint John Gazette of January 13, 1806, we glean some interesting information. The Gazette was, we believe, the first Weekly paper published in this city. Its proprietor was Jacob S. Mott, and the office of publication "at the sign of the Bible and the Crown, No. 16 Prince William Street." The glorious victory of Nelson over the combined fleets of Spain and France, at Trafalger, which was fought and won, with the death of the gallant hero, in October of the previous year, makes up a great portion of this issue. Every schoolboy has loved to worship at the shrine of the immortal Nelson, still, with all the full details of that memorable engagement, which belongs to legitimate history, there is something fresh in reading Admiral Collingwood's despatches, published in the London journals at the time and reproduced in our own City papers within a few months of the occurrence.

In commemoration of this event a Ball was held at Cody's Coffee House, which was attended by a "great assemblage of beauty and fashion." "The tables" so says the Gazette, "were covered with everything which the season could produce, and the evening's amusement was conducted with the greatest good order and propriety."

It appears also that Kingston, K. C., had a celebration. The following are the particulars forwarded to the Gazette:

"On Friday the 3rd., a general meeting of the inhabitants of Kingston took place at the house of Mr. Silas Raymond, for the purpose of celebrating the late most Glorious Victory, and to lament the loss of our great Naval Hero. At 12 o'clock the procession advanced from Mr. Raymond's and proceeded to the Church, where a most pious, applicable and energetic discourse was delivered by Rev, Elias Scovil. A dinner was provided for all orders of men, a number of loyal and heroic toasts were drank, with guns firing and drums beating, and the whole concluded by a splendid illumination, and a ball to the ladies."

Norton, K. C., was also loyal to the backbone. Here is what was published concerning the demonstration held there:

"In consequence of the late Great and Glorious Victory obtained over the enemies of our country, on Saturday the 4th instant three companies of the King's County Militia, under the command of Capt. Ruloffson, Capt. Micheau and Ensign Dickson, with the Troop of Horse, under Capt. Ford, assembled at the house of Mr. William Frost (where His Majesty's colours were displayed,) to testify their loyalty to their King, and their zeal for the British Constitution. At 12 o'clock, the companies being previously formed with the Troop of Horse on their right by Capt. Ruloffson, the senior officer, three rounds were fired, which were followed by three huzzas, and was returned by a number of loyal spectators. An elegant dinner was prepared on the occasion, after which a number of loyal toasts were drank."

William Campbell was Mayor of Saint John during this year, and in accordance with the duties of his office, he publishes the Assize of Bread, stipulatthat the "sixpenny wheaten loaf shall weigh 1 lb. 13 oz., and the sixpenny rye loaf 2 lbs. 4 oz."

Colin Campbell, Jr. advertizes that he "has received by the brig Hero, Capt. Younghusband, from Liverpool, a general assortment of British Goods, also a consignment of two Gold and a few Silver Watches."

John Black & Co. have lately received "Leaf Tobacco, Draught Porter, Wine de Grave, &c."

Ludlow, Fraser & Robinson request all persons indebted to them to call and settle their accounts without delay.

Donaldson & Hendricks call upon all persons who owe them to settle up without delay.

Thomas Millidge, Jr., has just received by the brig Charity, from London, Youths' and Men's Trousers, Spelling Books, Teapots, &c.

Stephen Humbert has for sale Salt, Jamaica Spirits, Brown Sugar, Cotton Wool, &c, Thomas Horsfield and John Garrison, are two Receivers of the estate of the late Edward Sands.

Nehemiah Merritt offers for sale a few puncheons of good flavored Demerara Rum, Brown Sugar and Molasses.

William Fayerweather has a house for sale in the Parish of Portland, nearly opposite the City Mills. The descendants of this family have long'ago learned to spell their name with an 'i.'

Samuel Jones was proprietor of the Mail Stage to Fredericton. He announces that "for the winter the Mail Stage will leave St. John every Sunday morning, and arrive at Fredericton the next day."

James Simonds, senr., having been "appointed by his Honor the Chancellor, the Committee for the Body and Estate of William Simonds late of this city, Merchant, (who has been found and certified to be in a state of lunacy") calls for payment of all accounts due the said estate.

David Waterberry owned some land on the West side of the Kennebeccasis River, on which some miscreants had been trespassing, cutting cordwood hoop poles, grass, &c., and therefore he cautions the off nders regarding what they may expect if caught.

Mr. Ironsides intends opening a class for Geography and the use of the Globes.

The following advertisement belonged the deceased father of the present Councillor for Sydney Ward:—

"BARTHOLOMEW CONETTER, TAILOR, respectfully informs his customers and the public that he has removed his business to the shop lately occupied by Wm. Frost, Prince William Street, aujoining the dwelling house of Thomas Horsfield, Esq, where he is ready to wait on those persons who may favour him with their commands in the line of his business. All orders gratefully acknowledged and punctually executed.

He has for sale Superfine, Common, and Rye Flour, and Corn, on reasonable terms for cash. Apply as above.

We now take up the Royal Gazette of April 30, 1806, "printed and published by John Ryan, printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty, at his office, No. 9 Long Wharf, South side Market Slip, St. John, New Brunswick, where advertisements, &c. will be thankfully received." No. 9 Long Wharf was on the spot now occupied by Messrs. Barbour Brothers, on the South Wharf. The paper was 9 by 12 inches in size, printed on material little better than the poorest quality of modern wrapping paper. Its columns were mostly filled with English and foreign intelligence. There are quite a number of advertisements, some of which may be interesting as reminiscences of the early days of our city. The following we copy complete:—

TRINITY CHURCH PEWS.—On Thursday, the 15th May next, will be exposed at public sale:—13 Forfeited Pews, Lower Floor, Nos. 2, 13, 17, 19, 40, 47, 78. Gallery—Nos. 12, 15, 19, 32, 33, 40. Sale to commence at 11 o'clock, at Trinity Church. By order of the Vestry. april 23, 1806.

The building measures thirty feet in breadth and fifty feet in depth—is three stories high, commodious, and calculated for a store, with sufficient accommodations for a large family. The whole is filled in with hard brick (or what is commonly called brick nogging) from the sills to three tiers above the plates, which prevents the house being infested with rats, &c.

march 12, 1806. Clerk of the Peace.

We now take up the Royal Gazette of July 27, 1812. By reference to its advertising columns we learn that Ralph M. James was the leading hardware merchant of that day; Eskil Barker, a very extensive importer of British merchandise, salt, soap and sugar; Andrew Crookshank a wine and cordage merchant, and Nehemiah Merritt a dealer in rum, sugar and molasses.

It will be remembered that in this year the United States declared war against Great Britain, and, as a consequence, "proclamations" and "manifestoes," etc. etc., were issued thick and fast by the Governments of the Colonies. The following, having reference to the Indians, will serve as an illustration of the importance which pertained to the red man in these long past and troubled times:

PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.
At a Council holden in the City of Saint John on the 10th day of July, 1812, before His Honor the President and Commander-in-Chief of the said Province, etc. etc. etc.

His Honor the President communicated to the Council for their consideration the copy of a conference and agreement held and entered into at St. Andrews on the 6th day of July, instant, between Robert Pagan, Esquire, and other Magistrates in the County of Charlotte, on the one part, and the Indian Chiefs and other Indians in that neighborhood on the other part, for the purpose of securing the neutrality of those Indians during the present war, declared by the United States of America against Great Britain, and of preventing any injury being done by British subjects to the Indian Chapel erected at Point Pleasant within the territories of the said States. It is thereupon resolved unanimously that this Board do fully approve of the said conference and agreement, and do recommend that the same be ratified and confirmed, and the same are by His Honor in Council hereby ratified and confirmed accordingly.

Extract from the Minutes,
JOHN ODELL.

St. John, Monday, July 28, 1812.

Thursday last from twenty to thirty fine young men belonging to this city, volunteered their services for a three months cruise on board the Spartan frigate.

Friday morning, in consequence of intelligence having been received of several American vessels of war having made their appearance at Passamaquoddy, the American prisoners on board the Spartan were landed in the city and lodged in our gaol, when the Spartan got under weigh and proceeded down the Bay with a fine breeze.

The Ordnance Department, in view, probably of building a fortification to defend this port from Yankee invaders, advertise for eight thousand bricks and three hogsheads of lime.

Only two deaths are recorded for the week, as follows:

On the 21st inst. at Portland Point, Sophia Ann Hazen, youngest daughter of the Hon. Wm. Hazen, in the 17th year of her age.

On the 24th inst., after a long illness, Mr. John Mott, in the 74th year of his age, father to the printer and publisher of the Gazette.

1813.

In the Royal Gazette dated November 2nd, 1813, a host of new names appear in the advertising columns.

Thomas Smith keeps quite an extensive Variety Store.

Ezekiel Barlow has just received a supply of British Merchandise, and has in store Cognac Brandy, Muscovado Sugar, and Liverpool Salt.

Christopher Scott advertises Trunks, bales, casks, boxes, bundles, &c., goods which he says he "has on board the ship Martha Brae. from Bristol, arrived at Halifax, and will be at St. Andrews with the first convoy, where they will be offered for sale."

James C. F. Bremner has received on consignment cottons, cambrics, &c., in great variety. He has some Brandy too.

Merritt & Vanllorn announce the fast sailing copper fastened brig Fredericton, to sail for New York; a good pilot will go in the vessel.

Z. Wheeler has just received from Halifax a supply of Dipt Candles and Soap.

The City Gazette, of July 23, 1817, is the next relic of Old Times from which we make some extracts. The Gazette was published every Wednesday by William Durant, whose office was on Prince William street, near the Market Square.

Among the business men of St. John at this time were Thatcher Sears, who kept an extensive hat and fur store.
