For the Colonial Farmer A CONTRADICTION.

MR. EDITOR,-I wish to contradict a state ment which is now current, that William Kelly, who died suddenly at my house, had a considerable sum of money about him when he died, which I have not accounte for. Now, when Mr. Kelly was taken sick, all the money he had about him, that I know anything about, was $3.00. He spent $1.62 for medicine, which only left a balance of $1.38 at the time of his death. When he died I sent his near relations, who lived some distance in the country, word to that effect. I waited some time before doing anything, in hopes that some of them would come and attend to the body. No one put in an ap pearance until the last moment, and in the meantime I had, for decency sake, if for nothing else, to provide what was necessary to lay the body properly out. How far the balance of money would go towards paying for a shroud, shirt, and socks, any one who has had to do such work can tell. I make this statement, which can be sworn to i necessary, for the information of Mr. Kelly's relatives, and as a contradiction of the slanderous report put in circulation by some evil minded person.

MRS. ALEXANDER HOWARD.

The Colonial Farmer,

FREDERICTON, N. B., NOVEMBER 27, 1876.

Although the Hon. Mr. King succeeded in securing the election of Mr. Marshall in St. John, he cannot felicitate himself very greatly upon his success, for he has lost prestige vastly, besides completely annihilating the Free School party in so far as it existed as a body guard of the Government. With a blindness of policy which nothing but an insufferable amount of assurance can account for, he has adopted a course which will inevitably lead to ignominious defeat, if he does not retire from public life; and if he does will mark him in the history of New speak only of his political actions and without obliging agent, J. W. Cupples, Esq. the slightest reference whatever to his personal character. Though in reality nothing at 8. but the white cap on the wave, he claimed to be the tempest that sets the billows rolling. Brunswiek; there is no broad, comprensive, liberal, new educational feeling among our people; there is no British determination to at the close of the term of the present As- cellent opportunity to our citizens of enjoyleft to "rule our destinies and shape our The attendence was not quite so good as we ferced down the throats of the electors of that on future like occasions, there will John was to be coaxed, driven, bribed and in not forget that the young men are engaged ple thinks everything will be arranged, and of this precious pair one was the creator and munity, let it be considered a duty as well the other the preserver of our free school as privilege by each and every one of our system, and he who would not accept them as people, to aid and encourage them in every such was to be anathema. This was the way possible. original plan, but it would not work; even the Constituency of St. John, gullible and ignorant of local politics as it is, could not be so imposed upon and the free school party declared it would vote for a free school candidate. Now disaster stared the noble pair in the face; the one trembled for his fame, the other for his finances. A new issue was raised. The free school question was declared settled. Remember, electors of New Brunswick, seated! And the electors of St. John were called upon to choose between the Hon. Mr. King and the Hon. Mr. Willis. The former it was declared relied solely upon the people of his Constituency; the latter it was said sought to control St. John by outside influences. The whole power of the Government was brought to bear on behalf of the former and after a fierce conflict he came off victorious by a slender majority. There was. properly speaking, no contest between Messrs. Everett and Marshall, the former of whom would beat the latter two to one in a square fight into which no side issues entered; but the electors were begged and entreated to give "one more vote fer the Attorney General," and they have done it in the shape of Robert Marshall. Of course when the Telegraph published this entreaty and its friends echoed it throughout the City it was not intended to be understood as a request to when necessary; but that is just the result of it, for if Marshall is not the mere shadow of his political god-father he will be guilty of as disgraceful treachery to Mr. King as he committed against the Opposition. What we claim is that the Attorney General has lost prestige. With money and rum at his back and all the moral force of his position the latter is called by the organs of his colleagues as a man without a fellower. He has been branded from our provincial Dan to our provincial Beersheba as a weak, unreliable tor" (the Telegraph makes no unauthorized with the Reporter's paragraphs. utterances) and profound lawver the wealthy and intelligent Constituency of St. John lesson of the late contest. Government. There is one aspect of the be summed up. case which it is not pleasant to contemplate. Mr. King has told the electors of St. John that Mr. Marshall's views on the School Marshall never was a Non-Sectarian School man. He is not now; but he pretends to think that concessions have been made which satisfy the minority, and it is only for this reason that he declares the question settled. Now it is well known that the minority are not at-Law, which appears in the FARMER. Mr. satisfied; therefore when they demand further concessions, Mr. Marshall must sustain them until they obtain what they want, for until regarded from his stand point, they obtain that the question is not settled. Mr. King in 1874 would have no supporters who would Y. M. C. A. will be given by the Hon. Wm tolerate the idea of concessions to the minority; McDougall on Wednesday evening next, in in 1876 such persons will suit him if they the City Hall, will sustain his Government: from this to granting in 1878 the claims of the separate School party on the condition of his receiving about making arrangements to facilitate the their support, is an easy and natural step.

Some may say Mr. King would not do this. Railway.

In reply we say it is not necessary to discus that, although he who would do the one would do the other, for in 1878 Mr. King is to retire, and we will have a Government composed of Messrs. Fraser, Kelly, Stevenson Crawford, McQueen, Perley, Young, and we presume Elder. Let usanalyze this collection. Mr. Fraser broke with the party he had always worked with when he joined the free school ranks, which he did not do until a position of profit was opened to him. Mr Kelly is a gentleman of no political principles Mr. Crawford's political debut showed that the winning side was the one for him; Mr Perley is with the "ins" invariably, and Mr. Elder whatever becomes of the law will! stick to the profits. Of the other gentlemen of the Christian province of Turkey. we will say nothing. Now we ask any intelligent man if we present to such a Government the alternative of defeat or the second step we have indicated above, which he believes they will take? There is no manner of doubt that they would choose the latter: and therefore we say that the free school party will do well to be awake to the possibilities of the situation, or else the Province may lose the fruits of the struggle which culminated in the verdict of 1874.
