Some years ago the Hen. Mrs. Maberley took to the dairy keeping and made a great deal of money in Notting Hill by supplying milk to the neighborhood. People were proud of having milk cans marked with the name of a member of the aristocracy. Acting upon the hint a French Marquise has started a laundry : Miss Elizabeth Philip, the composer of several songs and the author of "Gates Ajar." is one of the partners: and the two superintend what promises to be a large business. The French Marquise ought to fetch money.

Two new aristocratic scandals are in the wind, both of them involving the honor of peeresses and both of them likely to be tried in the Divorce Court before Christmas. In one case a well known Irish peer, the son of a statesman who met a violent death some years ago, is the co-respondent; in the other Irish lady of title. Two such cases following closely upon that terminated in the Divorce Court the other day does not tend to elevate the reputation of the English reerage.

Miss Thompson will not soon exhibit again in the Royal Academy. The exhibition of her picture "Balaclava," brought in little less than 500,000 shillings, £2,500 while it was being exhibited in London, and it has still to "do" the Provinces. Why should those shillings go to the Academicians? If people should she not pocket the proceeds? Some severe condemnation is passed upon her, but who among her critics would not, if circumstances were the same, follow her example? It is positively stated that October 3rd, 1876. I thought when I wrote my letter of ves terday that I had reached the lowest depths of infernal wickedness. But beneath that there is a lower depth still. It is reported in the Duily News that in one of the villages of Servia "the Turks captured a family while escaping. They took the baby, spitted it roasted it alive, and absolutely forced the parents to eat the cooked flesh of their own child, after which they butchered the parents.' I should be insulting your readers if I were even to attempt to condemn this diabolical Egyptians. That is to say, they were men who have no sort of quarrel with the Servians. and who have come from another continent in order to punish people for doing the very same thing which the Egyptians themselves attempted to do in 1833, and again in 1839that is, to obtain entire independence of the Porte. After this it is a small matter to say that these troops, whom General Tchanayeff save are worse than the Bashi-Bazouks or the ternised; of a petentate moreover who, while a commoner is charged with debauching an can find it to despatch soldiers to interpose in a quarrel which is none of his.
