If he had come at the noon-tide hour, He would not have come too late; I would have given him patient faith, For then I had learned to wait.

If he had come in the after glow, In the peace of the eventide, I would have given him hands and brains. And worked for him till I died.

If he comes now, the sun is set, And the light has died away I will not give him a broken life, But will turn and say him "Nay." -Court Journal

An Esquimaux Wedding.

Shortly there entered in perfect silence a cortege drawing a dog-sled in which was seated the high priest of the tribe, and a more villainous object I never beheld. He was stripped to the waist and was smeared with oil and coloring matter in stripes which gave him the appearance of a Chinese joss: on his head was a tiara of bear's claws surmounted by an enormous polar bear's head. On his shoulders were placed erect on end two large walrus tusks, fancifully decorated with stripes of red flannel which had been obtained from the clothing of a drowned sailor washed ashore. The lower part of the body was covered with otter skins, over which were spread a number of young seals all alive and barking; in the right hand he held a spear, which he waved aloft in a theatrical manner, while with his left he motioned to the bride and groom to approach him. The whole concorse arose, and with priest's chariot. This he submitted to for fits the space of ten minutes, then, imperiously waving his spear, commanded silence. The groom was now directed to prostrate himself on the earth upon his back, and the bride directed to place her right foot upon his throat, which she did evidently with reluctance. While in this position the priest instructed the groom that such was his fate, trodden under foot by men. should he ever prove untrue to his plighted troth. He was then permitted to rise, and directed to approach the old chief, who placed a spear at his breast, telling him it would be his doom should he prove untrue. He was next directed to his father, who, producing a piece of fisning line, informed him that he would choke to death his offspring should he prove unfaithful. Then, to cap the climax, he was directed to face the entire tribe, who, brandishing their spears, yelled at the top of their voices vengeance on him in the event of unfaithfulness. At this juncture the groom, apparently over. come with emotion, dropped on the ground, and, bowing his head to the earth, cried, "I will be true," until raised to his feet by the bride.

How to Hang Fictures.

No picture ought to be hung higher than the height of the average human eye when the owner of the eye is standing. It is the almost universal rule in our houses to hang pictures much above this level, and they cannot be enjoyed there. If the picture is a portrait, or if it have human faces in it, its eyes should look as nearly into ours as possible; and if there be no such simple guide, perhaps a good rule will be to have the line that divides the picture horizontally into equal parts level with the eye. If one starts in hanging pictures with the determination to place them so that they can be easily seen and enjoyed without stretching the neck the least, or stooping the body, he will be pretty sure to do well. In remote farm houses and country taverns we often see pictures, particularly portraits, skyed as high as if their owners had been Academy hangers, and the painters young rivals of a new school. I suppose the reason is that the simple hearted owners think a picture such a precious thing, it can't be hung too securely out of the reach of meddling hands. They are often not clear in their minds as to what a picture is meant for, and not finding in it any practical relation to human life and society, they treat it with reverence, and put it where it will disturb them as little as possible. But, as people come to enjoy pictures and get some intellectual, spiritual nourishment out of them, they want them, as they want their books, where they can see them and use them .- Scribner's Monthly.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully se-lected for excellent quality; and I consider it the Best PREPARATION for its intended purposes." Price, One Dollar.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.
