"BELLE'S BEAU."

Continued. ARIA curled her hair, and pulled and belt, and she was ready. The parlours were already lighted, and the full moon shone on the piazzas and dewy gardens. There was a subdued bustle in the kitchen, and Belle. a radiant vision of beauty, had already swept down stairs. It seemed as if every one had come. The first strain of music had already sounded, the dance was beginning, and no Mr. Ross vet. Christy was much in demand. So tired was she of fastening sashes and trains and bows, of running for pins and powder, that when at last the dressingroom was empty, she thankfully descended the stairs, and timidly creeping in at the rear door of the parlour, immediately shielded herself behind a lace curtain. They were waltzing. What would poor Christy have given to have been a grown-up young lady!' Her little slippered feet beat the carpet as she enviously watched one gay couple after another whirl past her. And Christy caught her breath suddenly when an opening in the crowd showed her Mr. Ross waltzing with Belle. There he was, transformed again in his aristocratic self, dancing with the haughty, indolent grace that Christy knew so well, as handsome and courteous as a prince. The little observer's cheeks burned while she thought of her afternoon experience, and how she had reckoned him 'just like a boy.' And Belle, whirling in graceful circles, with his arms around her, how beautiful she looked.

Nobody noticed Christy. Two or three dances had passed. People chattered and laughed about her, promenaded and whirled past her. Sitting still was be. coming a torture, and she was casting longing glances at the stairway, when the strains of her favorite waltz floated through the rooms. In sheer despair of enduring it, Christy sprang to her feet, about to seek refuge up stafrs, when some one put the curtain aside. Turning, astonished, she beheld Mr. Ross bending before her and offering his arm. 'I have been trying to find you. Will Waltz with him! between fright and delight, Christy stood undecided., turned red and white alternately. Then, forgetting everything but the music and the dangerously beautiful dark eyes looking into her own, she put her hand on his arm, and in a moment they were circling down the room. Christy's cheek's burned like fire. Whenever she dared raise her eyes from her partner's broadcloth sleeve, she became aware that she was the focus of all eyes. For a while she was dreadfully conscious of this. Then she forgot everything but motion and music and the handsome head bent so near her own. When at last they paused, and Mr. Ross led her out to the moon-lit piazzathe fright came back again, and she nervously withdrew her hand from his arm, and flushed scarlet when he asked her for the next dance.

'Do you care for quadrilles ?' Poor Christry looked wistfully toward the parlor, and pulled a blossom in -I'm very much obliged to you, but I

He wanted to dance with her, and the thought made her eyes shine and her cheeks glow, as she moved through the quadrille with the prettiest grace in the world. A waltz followed, then a polka.

the dance?' he said hurriedly, as the music sounded. Christy felt as if she were in a dream, as she sat alone, the moonlight falling around her, the music drifting out to her, waiting for Mr. Ross to come back. She had a rude awakening therefrom. A hand grasped her shoulder so harshly that she almost cried out, and Belle's voice said, in a fierce whisper:

The evening after the party he had come. She heard him ask for her in the hall, and heard Belle say, with a laugh, that 'these girls-girls always were in deep study evenings.' Then crouched n the dark, after David had been put to bed, she listened to his rare tenor voice as he sung song after song, his notes blending with Belle's, his laugh mingled with hers. Five Years' Sickness Cured by Four Bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy. Pain in Shoulders, Back and Lurgy and Droppings in Threat Disappear.

St. Annann, P. Q., Sept 12, 1376.

MR. T. J. B. HAP.DING.

Dram Sir, Being desirous that others may know something of the merits of your Constitutional Catarrie Remember, I wish to inform you what it has done for me. I am Myears old; had been out of health for about five years. It had employed three or four different dectors, and tried various medicines, without receiving any permanent benefit, but continued rather to grow worse, until last fall, when I had become so bad as to be unable to do an hour's work at a time. Had severe soreness and pain under the shoulder blades and through the shoulders, with very lame back, and a feeling in my right lung as though there was a weight bearing it down, with cuntinual dropping in the throat and down upon the lungs. Such was my condition when I commenced to take your Catarrh Remedy, one bottle of which eased my pains and gave me an improved appetite, and after taking four bottles I was restored to health, so as to be able to endure hard and continued labor, such as chopping and clearing land, at which I have been engaged the past season. My recovery I attribute solely, with God's blessing, to the use of your Catarrh Remedy. Yours truly. Price SI per bottle.
