Only a few years have passed since those interested in the progress of the communities along the St. John river speculated upon the establishment of such : system of internal communication that the trade centres farthest inland would be only a days journey from the sea. It was thought, and very generally expressed, that if this could be accomplished, a new era in the trade of the whole district would begin, and the development of the country's resources (how hackneyed the phrase has become!) proceed with unexampled rapidity. As yet the railway extensions in the hands of the energetic proprietors of the New Brunswick Railway are not entirely completed, but sufficient ha been done to enable persons residing anywhere below Grand Falls to leave home the morning and reach St. John by sever o'clock P.
