—A large audience graced our new hall greeted Professor Brown the famous Canadian Phenologist, to hear him talk on Phenology and examine the heads of some of our townpeople. Doubt in regard to his science has departed from our midst; he did not only prove himself a capable speaker well up in his science, but also demonstrated its truthfulness, in the examinations he made. If ever human heads were read, as books, those were that presented themselves. Prof. Brown has been patronized by the medical and legal fraternity, as well as all grades of a city, and came here highly recommended. The sooner parents, young men and women make use of this science, the better morally, socially, intellectually, and financially will the world become.

Mrs. LeBaron Richardson passed peacefully away last Sabbath evening, leaving one child, a sorrowing husband and many relatives to mourn for her. Mrs. Richardson was baptized and received into the fellowship of the 2nd Harvey Baptist church twelve years ago next Autumn. She has been a consistent member ever since, beloved and respected by all who knew her. Your correspondent being away had not the privilege of following her to her last resting place, but had the pleasure of seeing her on Saturday before her death and found her resting peacefully on the promises of her Saviour and looking forward quietly to the time when this mortal should put on immortality. It seemed hard for her parents to part with her, and her husband of four years done all that could be done, but does not mourn as one without hope. All could say:

Only $7,500 a Year.

Secretary Roosevelt, of the United States Legation in London, has a private income of $15,000 a year in addition to his secretary's salary of $2,600. But his wife was an Astor and when she died recently it was found that family settlements which had been made on her would leave about $85,000 a year accumulating for the benefit of her two children, until they should be 21 years of age. Mr. Roosevelt, feeling too poor to look after the children, applied to the Supreme Court in New York to have $30,000 a year allowed to him out of the estate to educate them and qualify them for "the position which they would occupy in society." Judge Barrett of the Supreme Court put a flea in Mr. Roosevelt's ear thirty thousand dollars a year, the Judge said, was an absurd and dangerous sum to devote to the pampering of two children. When they were of age they could do what they liked with their money, but meanwhile they should be taught the value and responsibility of money, and the duty of doing that rested on their guardians. He conceded an allowance of $7,500 a piece to the two children, remarking, however, that he felt he was permitting altogether too much.

Swindled out of $500.

Mr. James Kelly was not the only victim the Cook & Whitley circus spider led into his net and despoiled. Another ex-policeman was deprived of $500 by the wellknown bunco game. This citizen had occasion to watch fakirs closely when he was on the force, and he felt sure of beating them at their own game. He visited the circus ground early in the day and was soon in the private den of the gamblers trying his luck. He shook the dice and was told he had won a large sum which must lie on the table to await the result of the next throw, or was induced in some other way to think he could make a big haul if he had enough money. So he rushed to the Bank of Nova Scotia and asked for $1,000. The manager demurred, or the man could not get an endorser for so large a sum, and he finally got $500. The note was drawn for ten days, but the excited person who discounted it promised to pay it the same evening. He was asked if he intended to gamble at the circus, and was warned against doing so, but he declined to say what he intended to do with the money. He pocketed the notes and rushed to the circus ground, confidence in his heart and speculation in his eye. The result of the game was played, whether bunco, or shell-and-pea, or some other, was that the gamblers got the $500 and the ex-policeman got some useful experience. The victim denies the story, but the facts are against him. As the victim has real estate on which he can raise the $500, his endorser will not lose anything. A Black River farmer made a determined effort to effect a $200 loan, with the avowed purpose of beating the fakirs, but was laughed at in the bank.—World.

A Birthday Party.

On Monday evening a number of the friends of Mrs. John Rogers, met at her residence at Hopewell Hill, to celebrate the anniversary of her eighty-third birthday. Of the members of her family four generations were represented in herself, her daughters Mrs. Luther Archibald, with whom she resides and Mrs. L. R. Moore, her grandchildren Mary and Maggie Archibald, Archie, Dodge and Donald Moore, and her great-grandchild little Nellie Rogers. Mrs. Rogers is a handsome old lady, with all her faculties as perfect as they ever were, and she was in her day a woman of superior intelligence. After partaking of a bounteous supper the evening was spent in sweet converse, interspersed with songs and anecdote. A number of those present were from 70 to 80 years of age and enjoyed themselves in talking over old times and events and comparing them with the present. About ten o'clock the friends gave the old lady a genuine surprise by presenting her with a comfortable rocker and a handsome cap. The presentation was made by the Clerk of the Peace accompanied by a few congratulatory remarks and kind wishes to which Mrs. Rogers made a suitable and feeling reply. Among those present were Mrs. John Russell, Miss Russell, John Russell, Mrs. I. S. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bacon, Mrs. Butterfield, Fred. Butterfield, Charles H. Moore, the Misses Moore, Allen Bray, Mrs. James Wright, Mrs. L. R. Brewster, Mrs. S. Stiles, Mrs. Clark Wright, Mrs. Silas Lynde, Miss Lillie Lynde, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Starratt, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. West, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. R. Colpitts, Mrs. J. Carney, C. S. Starratt, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Archibald and Mrs. L. R. Moore.

President Carnot's Assassin Guillotined at Lyons.

LYONS, Aug. 16.—After the work of fitting up the guillotine had been finished at 4.30 o'clock this morning Headman Diebler went to the prison to bring Caserio to the guillotine. When the director of the prison went to call Caserio he found him fast asleep. He said in a loud voice: "Caserio, the hour has come when you must expiate your crime." Caserio sat up in bed, but said nothing. The prison director added: "Here is a judge to hear your dying confession, a chaplain to give you religious consolation and your legal defender to receive your last wishes and recommendations." Caserio replied: "I have nothing to say to the judge, I do not wish to hear the chaplain, I have no recommendation to make." All this he stammered out in a trembling voice. During his toilet he said not a word but trembled violently, and it was necessary for the attendants to carry him to the guillotine. When he reached the guillotine he was reached he twisted and struggled violently, trying to resist the headman's aides. His last words were "Courage comrades, long live Anarchy." At the moment of the fatal stroke applause burst forth from the crowd. Spectators who had witnessed a number of executions stated they had never observed on any former occasion the spontaneous expression of satisfaction at the carrying out of the death sentence. The corpse was hurried directly to the Cimetiere Guillotiere. When the basket was opened the head of the victim presented a disgusting spectacle. At the point where the knife had cut through the neck the skin had rolled back in ridges on the back of the head, showing the effects of the strain to which the body had been subjected by the victim's struggles at the moment of the fatal stroke. The remains were thrust into a coffin, the head being placed between the legs of the corpse, and without ceremony the coffin was thrown into a grave and quickly covered up with earth.

Revolt in Morocco.

TANGIER, Aug. 19.—The revolt among the Kabyles is spreading and is now general in all the southern towns of Morocco. A body of the Sultan's troops recently attacked the rebels outside of Mazagan, a seaport, 120 miles southeast of Cape Spartel. A desperate conflict ensued, in which the Kabyles fought with the ferocity for which they are noted. The Sultan's troops were finally put to flight after they had sustained very heavy losses. The troops retreated inside the walls of Mazagan and the place is now besieged by the rebels. The situation is considered to be grave.

Gibraltar, Aug. 19.—The first class British gunboat Bramble, has in consequence of the disturbed conditions prevailing in Morocco, been ordered to proceed to Tangier to guard British interests.

SUNDAY DROWNING ACCIDENT

Full Particulars of the loss of the Three Mowrys and Capt. Pitman.

St. John's, Aug. 20.—The announcement in today's Sun of the stranding of the tug Maggie M. at Martin's Head and the drowning of Capt. Justus Mowry, Capt. John L. Mowry, Herbert Mowry, and Capt. Pitman, of the bark Alert, was principal topic discussed about town during the day. The tug, having on board the above mentioned people and Wellington and Arnold Mowry, sons of Herbert Mowry; Fred, Leahy, son of Pilot Leahy, and Dr. Russ, who is connected with the Bellingier Institute, left here at an early hour Sunday morning for Alma. She was to tow the bark Alert from that place down to loading berth, and had on board a lot of merchandise, some of which Capt. Pitman purchased for his vessel and the remainder for various parties at Alma.

The weather was very thick at the time, and it was impossible to see the shore from the tug. She struck the reef about 8.30 on Sunday morning. The sea running high, she listed heavily to one side, and the waves began to break over her. The boat was at once got over and pushed off from the steamer, but it upset before the party had got forty feet away from the tug. The crowd were left struggling in the water. Capt. Pitman, Herbert Mowry, Capt. Justus Mowry and Capt. John L. Mowry held on to the boat, while the younger Mowrys and Dr. Russ got on a dory which had drifted away from the tug. Young Leahy swam to a barrel and held on to it.

Wellington Mowry swam back to the tug and threw a life-buoy to his father, but it fell short and was of no use to any one. After holding on to the boat for an hour or more, Capt. Pitman and the three Mowry brothers were forced to let go, and sank from view. It looked at one time, according to Wellington Mowry, or if all hands had lost their lives. Leahy had all he could do to hold on to the barrel, and Dr. Russ and Arnold Mowry were almost exhausted on the bottom of the dory. When the survivors had about given up all hope, a boat was seen approaching from the shore. It contained Mr. Armstrong and his son. They quickly picked up Leahy then Dr. Russ and Arnold Mowry, and last Wellington Mowry, who was still on the tug.

Wellington Mowry drove to Sussex and came to town by the morning train.

It was fortunate that Mr. Armstrong heard the whistle of the tug, which was blown by Wellington Mowry as soon as he returned to her.

The tug, it is said, is not seriously damaged, and the Storm King went up to Martin's Head to-day to get her off the reef. A caulker and carpenter went up in her.

There is no doubt but what all hands would have been saved if they had remained on board the tug. The tug did not capsize, but the crew and passengers feared that she would, and that is why they left her. The boat was too small to hold eight people, hence the loss of life.

Capt. Justus Mowry, the commander of the Maggie M., leaves a widow and four young children; Capt. John L. Mowry, a widow and seven children; Herbert Mowry, the engineer of the tug, a widow and three sons; Capt. Samuel Pitman was a native of Yarmouth, but he had for years sailed Albert county vessels. His widow and two children reside in Carleton. Capt. Pitman almost lost his life a few years ago on board the Howard D. Turner, which, while crossing the Atlantic with a cargo of deals, became water-logged and drifted about for days. He and his crew were at length rescued.

Capt. John L. Mowry was for years in command of the schooner Sarah Hunter, and later on was second officer of the Lansdowne.

All the tugs in the harbor flew their flags at half-mast to-day.

All the provisions were washed off the deck of the tug, and the loss will be a heavy one.

Capt. Justus Mowry and Herbert Mowry had each $2,000 accident insurance.

Capt. Pitman, in the Alert, was the first shipmaster to arrive at the new port of Preston, England. His vessel attracted a great deal of attention, and as all his subsequent voyages were to the same place, he became well known in that community. The Alert was again bound for that port on the voyage which it was fated her captain should never undertake. For several years his wife and family have resided in Carleton, where Capt. Pitman stayed during his brief absences from his ship. His only son has been for some weeks a patient in the hospital, undergoing a severe operation, and all these circumstances make the ordeal more painful to his widow. It is needless to say that the deepest sympathy is felt for the bereaved in their sudden and terrible affliction.—Sun

Fight at Wei Hai Wei.

The Central News correspondent in Shanghai says: There were only a few iron-clads among the Japanese vessels that attacked Port Arthur and Wei-Hai-Wei. Most of the fleet were merchantmen which had been converted hastily into cruisers, and were carrying troops for work ashore. What has become of the Japanese fleet since the morning of the eleventh nobody in Shanghai has heard. There is considerable apprehension along the Chinese coast of the Yellow Sea, and small steam vessels are scouting constantly, but no view of the hostile squadron was obtained either yesterday or today.

The Chinese were alarmed greatly by the attack on Wei-Hai-Wei. More submarine mines have been laid before Taku and Wei-Hai-Wei. The British warship Mercury left Chee Foo Saturday for Wei-Hai-Wei, to protect the foreigners at the latter port.

Many of the buoys along the Chinese coast, most notably in the neighborhood of the threatened ports, have been removed.

It is rumored in St. Petersburg that England intends to propose that the powers co-operate in demanding that both China and Japan withdraw their forces from Corea forthwith and intrust that of place to an international conference. The opinion is general that Russia would never consent to such a proposition.

The Vienna correspondent of the Daily News says: "England, France and Russia have agreed not to tolerate an attack on Peking. Their respective squadrons have been instructed to interfere if the Japanese attack Taku."

The Western Union Telegraph Company's central cable office has received the following:

Chinese land lines to Corea totally interrupted. No prospect of restoration. The cable route via Nagasaki, beyond Fusan, is also interrupted.

With the single exception of Fusan, Corea is completely cut off from all telegraphic communication.

The Origin of the Aborigines.

WASHINGTON, August 14.—What is characterized as the most important discovery concerning the aborigines made for many years is announced as the result of researches made by Prof. Cyrus Thomas, of the United States Bureau of Ethnology. Contrary to previous views, Professor Thomas sets forth as a fact that Mexican civilization originated with the Malays of the South Pacific seas and establishes a connection between the language of the Malays and the Mayas now in Yucatan. The latter language, according to his views, is of a direct offshoot of the Malay, that spoken by the people of Malacca, Java and Sumatra. It is claimed at the Bureau that this discovery throws new light on the aboriginal races, and will result in the entire remodelling of the views heretofore advanced as to the history and native civilization of Central America.

Baronet of Nova Scotia.

Among the many titles borne by Lord Aberdeen is the very ancient and honorable one of "Baronet of Nova Scotia." This is a Scotch baronetcy, and was originated by James I., though the first person to receive the honor was Robert Gordon of Gordonstone, a younger son of the Earl of Sutherland, who received his patent from Charles I. on May 28th, 1625. The object of the creation of this baronetcy was to encourage the settlement of this province under Sir William Alexander, who was His Majesty's Lieutenant in Nova Scotia at the time. Lord Aberdeen's family name is Gordon—his own name being John Campbell Hamilton Gordon. "Baronet of Nova Scotia" is one of the most honorable titles in the Scotch peerage.
