PRIZE-FIGHTING. During the past few years the taste for this brutal sport has increased to an alarming extent. This is especially the case in the neighboring Republic, and there is no denying the fact that it is gradually spreading over the Domintheir local pugilists who spend their time in training and who subsist by means of the gate receipts and trots derived from giving exhibitions which are little less than real prize-fights. They are supposed to be carried on in such a manner as not to infringe the law, but the participants often punish each other badly, and the so-called exhibitions in our own country serve as a training school to the wider, laxer, and more lucrative field to the South. It is useless to deny that the taste and spirit engendered by these exhibitions is wholly bad; there is nothing elevating in them but the tendency is downward and all right-minded people who desire to see the rising generation grow up and become good and useful citizens should set their faces against it and do all is to accumulate sufficient means to set them up in the saloon business and the less successful become the bartenders and hangers on at such places, and these are the centres from which emanate this growing sentiment in favor of prize- away. fighting.

We find this depraved taste being catered to by our leading newspapers. which publish with the ut-

to be really enjoyed and sought after and indulged in. But how is this flood-gate of iniquity to be closed? It would seem that all the great moral and religious agencies of the day, powerful as they are, are unequal to the occasion at this time by the force of persuasion. We believe that when the matter is properly put before the people of our country that the great majority is against prize-fighting in all it forms and would support legislation for its complete suppression. Let this be done by our legislative bodies and let it also be made an offence for the papers of our country to give accounts of these fights and mills as they are doing and the result will be that this evil will in a short time be eradicated. It has been kept in subjection thus far by laws of moderate stringency and as the taste becomes stronger and efforts are being made to evade the laws stringent, even unto suppression.

The field of sport affords the fullest opportunity for the development of muscle by physical exercise of all kinds conducive of health and manly vigor without a resort to the pounding of each other like brutes. If the matter is taken up by those on the side of morality it will be accomplished.

DEATH OF A PIQNEER.

An Honored Citizen Called From Life-Biographical Sketch.

At the family residence in this village, at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning occurred the death of J. F. Pearson, of cancer. This brief announcement of the closing of a life's record will be sad news to the many warm personal friends born May 14th, 1831, at Albert, N. B., death. The Thrilling Story of a Lady Missionary in Turkey.

Miss Anna Melton, the young American missionary who was the victim of an unprovoked and murderous attack by hired thugs in the village of Daree, in the Koordish Mountains, last summer, and who barely escaped with her life, arrived in New York on Tuesday last by the steamer Werra from Genoa, Italy. She immediately made her way to the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, No. 53 Fifth avenue, under whose auspices she went to the Mosul (West Persia) station six years ago, from her home in the west. This may be part o he Coxey movement that will provide ome excitement in the near future Washington life, and distractions some kind are necessary to keep the Capitol City from utter collapse during the summer season. But while the army is prepairing to charge on the grass, General Coxey has a right to explain why he pays his laborers in the sand business in Ohio only 90 cents a day, and employs Indians at that. The explanation will be the more brilliant thing of the two, and there is some prospect that Coxey will have his hands full, as his campaign for Congress from the Eighteenth Ohio District has
