A marriage in which unusual interest is being taken will be solemnized at Prosser Brook in a few days. The contracting parties do not purpose to increase the provincial income by purchasing a license, as they were published last Sunday by the resident minister. R. E. Colpitts has just received a letter from his son George, first mate of the iron ship, Centurion, which sailed from Pisagua in the north of Chili April 12th, and arrived in New York July 20th. He described the passage around Cape Horn as very rough, having lost two men, all of their boats and their sails badly used up. The cargo was 1700 tons of nitre. Patrick Purcell's Body Recovered. News has just been received from Dundee, Ontario, (opposite St. Regis) that the body of Patrick Purcell, which was stolen three years ago, has been found in the St. Lawrence river just below Hopkins Point. Purcell had become immensely wealthy through government contracts. He was buried in the Purcell family private cemetery near Cornwall, where he lived, and the next night the body was stolen. Two of the three men who took the body were arrested, but the third, who knew where it was hidden in the river, escaped; hence it was not found. It had evidently been tied to something, for there was a rope around his neck. It was in an excellent state of preservation. Dr. Clouston says the body had been embalmed. The body was stolen from a graveyard on May 7, 1891, by body snatchers, who got the body presumably for the purpose of levying money for its return. All efforts to trace the body failed, though the best detectives were put on the case. Now it is supposed the thieves gave up all hope of gain and threw the body in the river. After being stolen it had been embalmed and in this way they were enabled to keep it for so long a time. The McClellan and Mahar Case. TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR: Permit the space to correct a report of the case of McClellan vs. Mahar, in your last issue, which some misinformed person has palmed off on your readers. Decision was given by the Justices Pipes and Keiver in favor of the landlord, McClellan, and the order signed by Justice Keiver, and was about to be signed by Justice Pipes, when a question as to whether any relationship existed between Mr. McClellan and Justice Keiver, and the court was adjourned one week. Justice Keiver overlooked the appointment and Mr. Treuman being of the opinion that both justices should be present at the time case was adjourned, withdrew the case on that ground and no other. Yours, etc. Jos. H. Dickson. Hopewell Cape, July 31, 1894. Little River. TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR: Dear Sir,—Through the columns of your paper I would enquire how long Albert county will have to do without a land surveyor, to survey crown lands? We have had to borrow from Westmorland county and frequently Mr. Patterson is not at home when we want him. He always says, "Yes I will come," but seldom gets here. Ask the Doctor about the prospects of a surveyor. The weather still continues warm and dry. Turnips and fodder corn stand the drought the best of any crops in this place. Mr. G. C. Stockton and sister, from Boston, are visiting A. G. Parkins. Resident. Little River, A. Co., July 28th, 1894. Notice to Timber Licensees. The Surveyor General, through the Royal Gazette, calls attention of all holders of timber licenses to section 19 of the timber regulations, which reads as follows:—"19. No spruce or pine trees shall be cut by any licensee under any license, not even for piling, which will not make a log at least eighteen feet in length and ten inches at the small end; and if any such shall be cut, the lumber shall be liable to double stumpage and the license be forfeited." All licensees are notified that for the future the provisions of this section will be rigidly enforced.

General News. Debs, the president of the American Railway Union, draws a salary of $3000, the vice-president and secretary got $2,000 each. Congo advises state that the Arabs Ismaia, Mamba and Gaonga have been found guilty by court martial of having murdered Emin Pasha. The State of Kentucky is in financial straits. The State owes about $2,500,000 and there is no money in the treasury and the banks will not lend it any money. In Bombay it has been discovered that an 8-year-old girl was offered as a sacrifice to propitiate the god of health in a neighbor's behalf. The afflicted man and his wife enticed the child into their house and in the presence of a fakir brutally mutilated her and later carried the body in the woods two miles away and threw it away. A steady stream of emigration goes on from year to year between India and the colonies. During the last decade, 136,159 persons left India. About 20,000 of them went to Mauritius, the same number to the Natal, 40,000 to Demerara, 30,000 to the British West Indies, 10,000 to Fiji, and the remainder in about equal numbers between the French Colonies and Dutch Guiana. Hundreds of Afghans with numerous camels have arrived in Cashmere from the Punjab and Cabul to buy and export grain and fruit for sale in the Punjab. Fearing that this drain would produce scarcity in the country, the Maharajah has given orders to expel all of them from the Cashmere and stop their coming again, with the exception of 400 men and 800 camels, who are specially wanted by Captain Yelding for the Gilgit transport. The Morning Post says: "The war between China and Japan is not lightly regarded. It is a question of European importance. Any alteration of the feudatory position of Corea must adversely affect China's guarantee to Great Britain of 1886." Referring to the Port Hamilton question, the writer affirms that should Russia seek to alter her position or vary the guarantee in question Great Britain would certainly have to re-occupy Port Hamilton. As regards the claim of suzerainty the Post says the weight of evidence is decidedly against Japan. T. E. Beslow, the African prince at Williams College, will sail for his home Thursday on the Lucania. He will first go to England, then to Sweden, where he will visit the Swedish king, and from there to Africa. Beslow received a call from his people some time ago to return home and assume power. He came to America several years ago on the advice of a Christian missionary. He entered Williams College two years ago. He has been lecturing with great success. It was his intention never to return home, but the desire of his native race changed his purpose. In Sweden he will hire a large number of carpenters to accompany him home, as he intends to build according to civilized nations and ways. A Wild Painter had an Exhibition That Horrid Hundreds of Salemites. SALEM, MASS., July 25.—The spectacle of a man standing near the apex of the steeple of the First Baptist church was what held spellbound several hundred spectators on Essex street at dusk last evening. Far above on the dizzy height, his feet resting on a narrow cornice, stood a man whose form was rather indistinctly outlined against the yellow background of the belfry. In one hand he held a paint pot, and in the other a brush. Occasionally he would turn about seemingly devoid of fear, and grimace in a maniacal manner at the crowd below. Then he would shift his position and commence vigorously to paint the steeple. The evening shadows were lengthening, and gradually the form of the wild painter was melting in the gloaming shades. It seemed to the onlookers, who beheld the scene with bated breath, that he must fall to the earth. Warning cries from the spectators were unheeded. His feet rested on a shelf less than six inches in width, but he maintained his balance. How to induce him to retrace his steps was a question not easily to be answered. The spectators were horror stricken, and many were so fascinated by the sight that they were incapable of action. For any person to venture out on the belfry and scale to the position occupied by the insane painter meant death to the two. A policeman climbed the interior of the belfry and reached the aperture through which the painter had made his way to the outside. Here he was within talking distance of the maniac, who seemed to regard the whole matter as a huge joke. The officer on a pretext managed to make the painter believe that he was wanted inside, and after a brief parley the latter came down from his perch. He made the descent in quick fashion, apparently oblivious of all danger. Once inside he was seized by the officer and escorted to the ground. Here it was learned that the painter was an employee of Thomas Norton, a local decorator. His name was Jerry Donovan, and this morning he was taken to the Danvers Asylum. Donovan had been drinking hard lately. Opposite City Market, Moncton. The right place to buy Dry Goods. A full stock well selected in nearly all lines. Qualities and prices guaranteed second to none. We mean to lead not to follow. We ask them to see our goods and learn our prices. We close at six o'clock. J. FLANAGAN.

Rev. Mr. Alexander and Prof. Stockley. Some weeks ago a special despatch to the Gazette from St. John, N. B., announced that Rev. Finlay Alexander, M. R., C. S. (Eng.), Episcopal dean of Fredericton, and Professor Stockley, of the University of New Brunswick, had abjured the Protestant faith and embraced Catholicism. Protestant circles were considerably worked up over this announcement, but in many quarters it was discredited. There is now no room for doubt on the matter. These two gentlemen formally abjured their former faith and took their first vows in the Catholic church before His Grace Archbishop Fabre. The two gentlemen mentioned have been in Montreal for about two weeks receiving religious instructions at the hands of Rev. A. Jones, of the Society of Jesus, a professor in St. Mary's College. When the news of their formal abjuration was received the college was closed, and on no pretext could the rev. fathers be seen. The whereabouts of the two gentlemen has been kept secret, and it is understood that they wished to avoid having the matter made public in the press. Consequently neither of the gentlemen could be found. At the Archbishop's palace no one was desirous of going against the wishes of the two new converts. However, the Gazette obtained a confirmation from a gentleman whose authority cannot be doubted. Seeing that the matter was known he did not desire longer to conceal it. Everything being in readiness for the formal embracing of their new faith, this ceremony took place in the palace, Mgr. Fabre officiating in person. The sponsor for Rev. Mr. Alexander was Mr. John Meagher, of Meagher Bros. wine merchants, 14 de Broseles street, while Rev. Canon Bruchesi acted in a similar capacity for Professor Stockley. The ceremony took place in the following order, a public abjuration of the faith formerly professed, the sacrament of baptism in the form "If you have not been baptized, I baptize you;" the sacrament of penance, followed by low mass and communion. The Rev. Mr. Alexander has a wife, now living in New Brunswick, while Professor Stockley is a widower.—Montreal Gazette. Henry Cronkite Committed for trial on a Serious Charge. For some time there has been bad feeling between George and Henry Cronkite, brothers, living at Queensbury, which originated over some property dispute. Last fall George laid an information against Henry for perjury alleged to have been committed at the hearing of a civil suit in a justice's court in Queensbury. Henry was arrested, but his preliminary examination before Police Magistrate Marsh in this city resulted in his discharge. Word has come from Queensbury that George has had Henry arrested again, this time for attempting to shoot him with intent to kill. It is alleged that on July 1st while George was on his farm driving some of Henry's cattle off his premises the latter went over and commanded him to cease, that when George declined to "cease Henry threatened to kill him, and that in pursuance of this threat the latter went to George's farm the following day and discharged a shotgun at him. None of the shot, it appears, took effect. George laid information charging his brother with the offence above mentioned. The preliminary examination took place before Squire Whitehead at Queensbury Tuesday, Clerk of Peace Henry B. Rainsford appearing for prosecution. The Magistrate has committed Henry for trial at the next County Court. Henry came to town and swore out two informations before the Police Magistrate, one against his brother George for willfully, maliciously, etc., cutting down and destroying a number of maple trees in his sugary, and a second against Charles Woodman for a like offence. Henry says he was trying to shoot a dog that was chasing his sheep when George came up within reach of his gun, and George alleges that he and Woodman cut the trees to build up a line fence.—Herald. Courtship in North Dakota. "Yes, Adelaide," said Paul Sniffen with an earnestness that left no doubt of his sincerity, "I have loved you since we met here last week. You are my first, my only love. Oh, tell me that you care for me, even a little bit." "I do care for you," murmured the girl softly. "I never knew what—that it was to feel—to love till I saw you. Oh, Paul, is not the first taste of love sweet?" And the beautiful girl sank into her lover's outstretched arms. "When shall it be?" asked Paul, five minutes later. "You know I cannot fix the date exactly," replied Adelaide, blushing prettily. "I am sure to get my decree all right, but my husband is putting in some evidence in rebuttal and that may delay it a few weeks. Moreover, the calendar is pretty full just now and things don't go as speedily as when I got my decree last year. Anyhow, I think I will be free by the end of next month. And how is it with you, Paul?" "Oh, I'll be all right next week, dead sure," said the young man. "My wife has decided to let it go by default. I got a straight tip to-day that I would have my 'de' before next Thursday. I am only bothering about your case." "Do not bother any more," said Adelaide. "It is only a matter of a few weeks. Patience, my dear. Think of the happiness before us! Let us pray that we may be worthy of the happiness. And, Paul, I promise that I will not keep you waiting after I get me 'de'. We can be married the same day and start east in the evening." "My own love," was Paul's only answer.

Behind The Bars. Chief of Police Clark has many visitors every day, and is never surprised to have a stranger drop in upon him at his well appointed office in the centre police station. On Saturday about noon an American of some 50 years called at the station and asked to see the chief. Mr. Clark happened to be in the court at the time, but he hurried down to see the caller. The man handed the chief a card on which was written E. A. White, and began at once to state the object of his visit. He prefaced the statement with the remark that he believed Mr. Clark was the man with whom he could talk without danger. He wanted to open up a gambling house in St. John. It would be a first-class place. No boys would be admitted—only those who could lose without squealing would be let in. He had conducted such places in various towns in Massachusetts. He proposed having a roulette table, and also carry on a book-making business and a bank. There was big money in the thing and he was willing to give Chief Clark 20 per cent of the profits if he would agree not to interfere with the place and see that no opposition house was opened up. Smith would bring here what he termed a "strong door," one he had used in other places. He promised to be square with the chief, to send that gentleman's percentage of the profits to the house. No one would ever know of the compact. The chief was also to give Smith the tip if things got hot for him and he would stop for a time or skin out. After listening to the man's cool proposition Chief Clark called in Capt. Jenkins and told him to lock the visitor up. He is charged with an "attempt at bribery and corruption of a police officer." The prisoner is a fine looking man about 50 years of age. He is tall, well-made and wears a light moustache. His dress is perfect. When the man was searched a card was found on his person bearing the name "M. M. Marvell, real estate agency and insurance exchange, Webster, Mass." Papers found in his pockets directed that in a case of trouble his wife, Mrs. M. M. Marvell, should be communicated with. Her address is given as 404 Pine street, Providence, R. I. A key marked "strong door" was found on his person and is evidently the one which he intended to use in his place of business here. Marvell probably regrets now that he approached our chief, as he is liable to go to Dorchester for a long term.—Sun. A Princess Converted to Catholicism. BELLEVILLE, July 22.—Much court gossip in the last few days has concerned the report that the Princess Frederick Charles has been converted suddenly to Catholicism. The change has not been so sudden as is supposed. The initial impulse to her change of creed was given several years ago. It came from Queen Maria of Bavaria, an ardent Catholic. She improved her friendship with the Princess to bring her conversion to the Catholic Church. Under the persuasion of her daughter, the Duchesse of Connaught, and the insistence of the Emperor, however, she remained formally attached to the Protestant Evangelical Church. Eventually the conversion of two German princesses to the Greek Church for State reasons dinned Emperor William's opposition. The Princess will publicly abjure the Evangelical creed very soon.
