SCHEMES AND SCHEMERS.

From time to time notices appear in the papers of some poor country folks being duped by itinerant peddlers who have something to sell and are willing to give three months credit on notes of hand. The goods are mere shoddy and worth about a tenth of what the note represents. These notes are generally altered so as to increase their value, and disposed of to some friend of the farmer at a tempting discount, and so the peddler goes on his way rejoicing while the pigsticker finds out after a while that he himself has been sold like the article he purchased of the sharper. And yet the same game continues to be played over and over again; notwithstanding the warnings that appear in the papers persons appear green, and are caught again and again. But these are minor cases in the vagabondish tricks of the day. The major ones are discoverable in more pretentious golden-baited hooks dropped by corporations, established to catch the unwary citizen while he is at his devotions or counting his cash. Prospectuses are issued,—the capital being sums running into the millions, and the reader is informed that for every dollar he embarks he will be able in a few years to draw out five—that is to say, out of nothing he will reap five fold in something. But the gettters-up of those swindling concerns take good care not to put in a dollar of their own. They live upon their wits and depend upon the fools for their harvest. Here in Fredericton one of those concerns with a prodigious name was launched a few months ago, and many of our supposed sensible citizens were hoodwinked into purchasing stock, when, after paying up "calls" amounting to considerable in some cases "the whole thing burst up," and though they received some consolation it is to be hoped, in the whole some lesson.

that when the next scheme is offered they will keep their eyes open. One of those wild cat speculations was originated in St. John a year or two since; and it was such a good thing that even poor Fredericton was solicited for subscriptions and not without success. It would not do for the capitalists of St. John to monopolize everything, and so out of pity, a plausible canvasser finds his way among us celestial and gets his hooks into some of us. Well, they are "stuck," and serves them right.

The Farmer's Advocate bears witness to the exploits of other of those tricksters, going about the world seeking whom they may devour. The Advocate says: The latest that comes to our notice is what is supposed to be a member's ticket, under the title of United States Union Club company. This has been hawked about and sold for $5 by sharpers through some of the western counties of Ontario, purporting to be a certificate whereby the bearer may purchase goods of all descriptions at wholesale rates. Offices—New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Montreal, Quebec, Toronto—and names but no addresses, streets or numbers are given. If this thing had fraud printed in red ink across the face of it, we wonder if purchasers would still be found.

The St. John Sun devotes quite an excellent article to the subject of such like swindling concerns. The editor says:—"The modern benevolent endowment insurance scheme is hard on the pocket books of credulous investors. The projectors rake in the profits. One of the latest concerns on this basis is the 'Friendly Aid Society,' of Waltham, Massachusetts, which is doing a rushing business in some towns in Maine, Gardiner, for example. According to an exposure of the society's workings published in the Bangor News, the advance circular read well and gave apparently a grand opportunity to invest a dollar and win two by so doing, or to pay in a sum of money each month, and draw out one hundred dollars at the end of six months, the circular stating that the assessments would not exceed fifty per cent. of the amount taken out. The assessments were four dollars each on the hundred dollar certificates.

As might naturally be supposed, says the despatch, such glittering bait as that would not be held out long before receiving a nibble, and a number of certificates were sold, the purchasers' names being enrolled with the Waltham lodge. Time went on, and the six months came around, bringing to the investors whose certificates then matured, the money as promised. Then they smiled, and thought what a bonanza they had struck; and really it did appear in that light, for some had paid in but $40, and none more than sixty odd for their hundred. The holders of certificates coming due in the future smiled also, and dreamed golden dreams of the time to come.

The lucky ones were not long in advertising their good fortune, and ere long others were drawn into the charmed circle. Things went on smoothly for some time longer, then came a change. The first noticeable symptom was an increase in the number of assessments. From two a month at first, they ran up to five, six and even ten, and a vague sensation of anxiety took possession of the investors. It was very evident that the goose that had been laying the golden eggs had laid the last ones in the letter, and that the price of eggs was rapidly rising. But the boys are "in it," and have either got to go on to the bitter end or drop out and lose all they have paid in."

Here is another instance of the commercial rascalities practised as given in the "Sun" of recent date. "A couple of piano men from Ontario are doing the country at present. A farmer at Keswick named Jones, claims he was induced by unfair means to sign some kind of an arrangement, and having allowed the agent to leave the piano at his house, was forced a few days afterwards to sign promissory notes for $480. He came to town to see a lawyer, but found the notes in the hands of a bill discounter, who had purchased them from the Ontario gentleman. Mr. Jones did not want the piano, and now that he has it cannot stay in his house while it is played on account of neuralgia in his head."

Now all these things are practised in open day, causing enormous losses to innocent people, and yet the rascals go unwhipped of justice, to do the same thing over again—while on the other hand if a man is found drunk in the streets he is taken up and heavily fined. Our point is in reference to the disproportionate punishment meted out in the one case, while in the other there is escape from punishment.

THE FARMER AGAIN.

We have already informed the learned Editor of the Farmer that Mr. Fenety has never written an editorial line in the Globe. If our amiable friend still thinks otherwise—and like the chap who courted the girl and finally popped the question and would not take "No" for an answer—let him give him full possession of the field to think as he likes. If, however, at any time, the Farmer should be desirous of producing a good live and spicy Editorial, and the Editor will send to this office, we will be pleased to furnish him one free of charge, as we have a patent Editorial machine set up in one corner.

IS THE KAISER MAD?

A Terrible Story is Told of the Yacht Incident by the Paris "Eclair." PARIS, Aug. 16. The Paris Eclair, which is not given to sensationalism, prints the following story as confirmed by unquestioned authority: On the night of the departure of the imperial yacht "Hohenzollern" from England the crew was beaten to quarters and was surprised to find the quarter deck brilliantly illuminated. An altar had been erected on the deck bearing the Old and New Testaments and the Kaiser stood by wearing a white chasuble with a crozier in his hand and a black and white mitre on his head. He read the most warlike passages from the Testaments and invited the crew to respond. He then preached a long sermon on the duty of sovereigns to their people, the whole service lasting from 11 p. m. to two a. m. The crew were then piped below. At 5 a. m. the Kaiser appeared on the bridge in the uniform of a high admiral, looking extremely haggard, and addressing the commander, said:—"Sir, retire to your cabin; I shall take charge." The commander replied:—"Sir, permit me to observe that we are in a dangerous passage and that it is advisable for Your Majesty's safety, as well as for that of the crew, that a sailor remain in command."

The Emperor responded: "Never mind, God will inspire me." The commander bowed and retired.

The second officer remaining, the Emperor angrily bade him retire, the officer respectfully protesting.

Crazed With Rage. The Emperor then said: "You resist, wretched creature. You trouble the spirit of God which is in me. This is the vengeance of God upon you," dealing the officer a heavy blow on the cheek. The officer turned crimson but remained until the Emperor seized him by the throat and tried to throw him overboard.

In the struggle that followed the Emperor fell and broke his knee cap. The sailors watched the scene, paralyzed with fear. The occurrence was one that cannot be forgotten.

In a Straightjacket.

The Emperor howled with pain. His eyes started from their sockets. He foamed at the mouth. He swore terribly, and, in fact, displayed all the symptoms of madness. The officers, after brief consultation, carried him into a cabin padded with mattresses. Nobody was admitted except the doctor and the Empress. Men were necessary to help restrain him until his leg was bandaged and a straightjacket was put on him. The crisis lasted three days.

NOTES AND NOTIONS.

Running Comments on Passing Events.

Sundry Ebulitions in Prose and Rhyme.

How the Domestic, Social and Literary World is Wagging.

A lake has a wonderfully tempering effect on the climate. The quantity of heat accumulated in the Lake of Geneva during the summer of 1889 was equal to that given off by the combustion of 31 million tons of coal, or the amount carried by a coal train 1,120 miles in length. The greater part of the heat is discharged into the air of the valley during the cold season, thus producing a milder temperature in autumn and winter.

How to Judge Classical Music.

There is a very simple method by which even the greatest skeptic may ascertain whether a piece of music is good, bad, or indifferent. It is as follows: If the music goes "1, 2, 3, hop, hop, hop," or "1, 2, 3, bum, bum, bum," you may depend upon it that you are listening to unmitigated rubbish. But when you hear music which sounds as though a number of well-arranged notes were stuck into a barrel and energetically stirred about like a sort harmonious oatmeal porridge, then you may assume that it is a fugue, and at once compose your features into an expression of profound interest.

If, on listening to the music, you fancy the notes are dropping accidentally on the floor, and from time to time asserting themselves again in a quiet sort of a dreamy way, then the piece is probably a nocturno, and nocturnos, as you are aware, are very high-class music indeed. When the notes seem to arrive in truck loads, and each truck contains, so to speak, a different sort from the one that has gone before, and when the train appears to take an unreasonable amount of time in passing a given point, then the masterpiece is most likely a symphony, and symphonies are the greatest musical creations hitherto produced.

When it appears as though the notes had been tumbled down helter-skelter, then vigorously shovelled up into a heap, and lastly blown into the air with dynamite cartridges—that is a rhapsody, and rhapsodies are the latest variety of music out.

It takes the tusks of 50,000 elephants a year to supply the world's piano keys. At present the Salvation Army uses every year £30,000 worth of paper.

A carrier pigeon, which had been bought at Charlottenburg, near Berlin, and taken to London, has reappeared in its old home, having most likely escaped and successfully undertaken the long flight back.

If the brightness of a star seen with the eye alone is 1, with a 2in. telescope it is 100 times as bright; 4in. telescope it is 400 times; 6in. telescope it is 1,600; 10in. telescope it is 6,400; 32in. telescope it is 32,400 times as bright.

A man was sentenced to fourteen years imprisonment for robbing a mail train in America and married again. The convict's time being up, his wife went to Germany to meet him as he left gaol, and took him to America to find him employment under her second husband.

The Zaparos, a tribe of South America, have a curious way of courting. The love-stricken young man goes out hunting, and, on his return, throws his game at the feet of the young lady who has smitten him, together with a sufficient quantity of fuel to cook it. If she takes up the game, lights a fire, and begins to cook it, he knows his suit is accepted; but, if not, he turns away a sadder, if not a wiser, man.

The Emperor of Austria has been inspecting a handsome train built for his special use at a cost of 100,000 florins. It consists of eight cars and is fitted with the electric light. The Imperial car comprises a sitting and a bedroom for the Emperor, a toilet room with a bath, and two rooms for his attendants. The Emperor's apartments are beautifully paneled, the ceiling being adorned with paintings on wood by a well known artist. One car is for the suite and another furnishes dining and smoking rooms. The kitchen car has a large range, water reservoir, and store-room. The train has been presented to the Emperor by the railway companies.

She (threatening breach of promise suit): "Do you intend to deny, sir, that you proposed to me?"

He: "No, I intend to plead insanity."

It has, at last, occurred to the mind of the irrepressible interviewer to give the world some exact particulars, gathered from the best source of information, with regard to the waists of eminent actresses. He says that Miss Kate Vaughan has the smallest waist on the stage. Miss Ellen Terry is nearly at the head of the profession in waists. Her waist measures twenty-eight inches, which is just an inch more than the circumference of the Venus of Milo. Then comes Miss Mary Anderson with twenty-six inches. Miss Eastlake rivals Miss Terry; Mrs. Bernard Beere measures twenty-seven inches; Miss Dorothy Dene, twenty-four inches; Miss Kate Rorke, twenty-three inches; Miss Mary Moore and Miss Norrey, twenty-two inches. Finally comes Miss Kate Vaughan with a waist 21½ in circumference.

A certain country sexton, in making his report of burials, is explicit to a commendable degree. For instance, such entries as this occur:—Died, John Smith, male; aged three days; unmarried.

Almy Pleads Not Guilty.

At Hanover N. H., yesterday morning Judge Cobb, accompanied by Attorney General Rynard, Solicitor Mitchell and other citizens, repaired to Almy's room. Papers were read to Almy in form as he lay in a cot. When asked what plea he would make he said "I know not what to do." Afterwards he pleaded not guilty and his plea was thus recorded. He was committed to jail without bail.

Paid in His Own Coin.

Some years since a young fellow was tried at the Central Criminal Court for "smashing," or in other words, passing counterfeit coin. He was defended by an able lawyer, who, after calling witnesses as to the character of his client, made an eloquent speech on his behalf, pointing out to the jury that as only one coin had been passed, it was probably done innocently, the prisoner not knowing it was bad.

The verdict was an acquittal, and the prisoner with some of his friends, adjourned with the counsel to his chambers to settle. His fee was two guineas, but as they had only silver, they asked him if he would accept that. He consented, and, pocketing the money, wished his late client "good day."

Some time after their departure the lawyer repaired to his usual restaurant to dine, and when his repast was ended, he tendered two half-crowns for payment. The waiter took them, but presently returned, with the remark that they were counterfeit.

The astonished lawyer got into a rage, and vowed that they were good money, but when he saw the waiter calmly cut one in half with a knife he hastily pulled the others out of his pocket, and found that ten of them were bad.

What do you do when people come in and bore you?" a warm personal friend asked of a merchant.

"When they stay too long the office boy, who is very bright and knows just when to interfere, tells me that a gentleman is in the counting-house waiting to see me on important business."

"Ha! ha! That's a capital way to get rid of bores who don't know——"

Just then the boy opened the door and sang out:—

"Gent in the countin'-house, sir, waitin' to see you on important business!"

An American doctor prescribes a mixture of diethylsulphondimethylmethane and trichloracetyl dimethylphenylpiazolone for warts. Most people would prefer to keep the warts.
