AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility

FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

The farmer's troubles are pictured thus: "The chinch bug eats the farmer's grain; The bee moth steals his honey; The lumbago fills him full of pain; The lumbago scoops his money."

United States farm mortgages amount to $15,350,575,000.

A Georgia woman has been awarded a diploma and a gold medal for her invention of a bread raiser.

A woman in Dunkirk, N. Y., conducts an extensive foundry and locomotive-building establishment.

One of San Francisco's finest hotels is kept by a woman. It is claimed to be the best family hotel on the Pacific coast.

We don't think much of tomatoes that are not ripened on the vine and in the sun. They contain too much free juice and soft fibers.

Whenever the conditions are favorable for the rotting of silage, there it is quite possible for the silo lining or rot also, if it be of wood.

The feeding effect of corn silage, when fed with the same kind and amount of grain feed, compares well with that of globe mangold roots.

Lilies are raised as a regular field crop in the Bermudas. In one of the largest fields over 100,000 may be seen in bloom at the same time.

The dairymen's wife in her milk room can produce just as fine a quality of butter as any creamery can make. We prefer it to creamery manipulation.

A woman invented the machine for making square-notched paper bags; another woman has obtained a patent for a machine for hanging wall paper.

Dr. Lauder Brunton declares that cold water is a valuable stimulant to many if not all people. Its action on the heart is more stimulating than brandy.

The North Dakota Milling Association representing twenty-seven flour mills in North Dakota and Minnesota, has been organized with a capital of $1,000,000.

In the United States there are 44 people in every 100 who are engaged in agriculture, as compared with 56 in Canada, seven in England, 48 in France, and 17 in Germany.

The Jersey Bulletin learns that the American Jersey Cattle Club has invested $35,000 of its money in a home for the club, at No. 8 West Seventeenth street, New York city.

The Columbian is a new raspberry strongly endorsed by the Rural New Yorker for canning. It ripens from about the middle of July to the middle of August, retains its shape and shrinks but little when canned.

At the New Hampshire experiment station they found that their best cow it cost about one and one-half cents a quart, and from their poorest cow more than four and one-half cents to produce a quart of milk.

The man who won the prize offered by an English paper for the best definition of money put it thus: "An article which may be used as a universal passport to everywhere except Heaven, and as a universal provider of everything except."

The Columbia Herald, Tennessee has its opinion of the Jersey bull calf. It says: "He is a nuisance on legs. He can drink more milk than two heifers, and is about as salable as a second-hand coffin. He grows a little too large to fry and yet not large enough to broil, and he is ready for a battle with anything that goes in hair, feathers or breeches or anything else, the day he first discovers he can pitch his voice double-A bass-octave-republican! There is not a lot in the country that will hold him and not a hallowed spot, from the sequestered cemetery to the shaded bower of 'love's young dream' that is too sacred for his desecrating hoof."

The question of color of butter came up for discussion at one of the New York institutes. The reply of president Gilbert was: "When we have customers who want colored butter we measure both cream and butter before mixing. I have some customers who will not take artificially colored butter, and who, in winter, cause me some trouble, as I have to make separate churnings for them." He did not know of any breed of cows that would give the same color to butter in winter that they do in June. But, he said, I have seen a few individual cows that would come close to it; and I have also seen individual cows that would color their butter too much, in June. There are cows in all breeds that insist on white as the best of all colors, perhaps because "white" is a symbol of innocence. A farmer replied: "The man who insists on not having his butter artificially colored with the modern preparations, but wants it just as it comes from the churn—in color—is not only innocent but terribly fresh. To this, Mr. Gilbert responded: People who buy our butter have a right to dictate terms. We must find out what these are, then accept, if we can at profit, and fill the order. If they want white butter, and we have the cows to make it, we must give it to them. If they want no salt, or an ounce, or four of them in a pound of butter, put it in. If they want their butter colored yellow, pine or pea-green, and will pay for it, give it to them that way. Don't undertake the task of educating the tastes and notions of your customers up or down to yours. Life is too short, and you won't have the time to do it."

The largest greenback extant is a $10,000 bill, and only one such note has been printed by the government. Of the $5,000 bills, the next largest, there are seven.

Mrs. Lucy Stone, the renowned woman's rights leader, said at the late New England fair: "It was the 'embattled farmers' who 'fired the shot heard round the world,' and it is the farmers of the country who must fire the shot that will wake the world to the rights of women. When the farmers asked the state legislature to protect their milk cans, the legislature promptly passed the law asked for. The same men who promptly passed laws protecting the farmers' milk cans from careless handling gave us leave to 'with-draw' when we went before it praying for legislation that would enable the mother to have an equal right to her children with the father! We can have our milk cans protected equally with our brothers, but we can have no legal right to our own children! A Swedish woman recently said to me that she had all she wanted to do now without being troubled with the ballot. I told her that she had no legal right to the baby she loves so dearly, and her eyes were opened. She concluded that she had a vital interest in the matter of securing equal rights. And so it is with other women. They are indifferent because their eyes have not been opened to the truth of their position. Gentlemen and ladies of Worcester county, think of 30,000, 900 American women being classified politically with the idiots and feeble-minded! For a most heinous offence the government reduced Jeff Davis simply to the political status occupied by women, and consider him sufficiently punished."

Glycerin for Affections of the skin.
Glycerine is very extensively used in the treatment of affections of the skin. In many of these, particularly in such as are characterized by dryness and harshness of the cuticle, glycerine of itself effects a speedy improvement, while in others again, it serves a valuable purpose in bringing other remedies into direct relation with the diseased structures.

In affections of the eye glycerine alone or in combination plays an important part in the local treatment, while in certain forms of deafness, arising from a deficiency of the wax secretion in the outer meatus of the ear it works often like a charm when dropped into the meatus, so as to lubricate that passage and the external surface of the membrana tympani, commonly known as the drum of the ear.

Glycerine when rubbed upon the surface of the skin effectually protects it from the results of exposure to the air. A small quantity applied to the skin will prevent it from becoming chapped or chilled in winter or from being burned and inflamed in the summer.—Hygiene.

The Proper Way to Teach Children.

Most people go through the world with closed eyes. For this inculcated waste of values and of opportunities unquestionably the usual methods pursued in our schools, and constituting what we call "popular education," are largely accountable. We are taught nothing but what is found in books. The work that is done is all indoors. The result is that we leave our schoolrooms unacquainted with thousands of things that would be of daily use and interest to us if we had been taught anything about them. We may be familiar with Greek and Latin, know all about higher mathematics and speculative philosophy and ancient history, and yet be profoundly ignorant of the common things that meet us at every turn, and which may almost be classed with the rudiments of practical knowledge.

Every teacher of children should take his or her pupil regularly into the fields and give them object lessons in natural history and science. Primary instruction should be largely in the open air. Otherwise there can be no thorough education.—Belford Magazine.

"Now sort Yourselves!"

Some years ago their lived in the western part of Pennsylvania an old recruit preacher known as Father West. His good humour and great kind-heartedness had made him a special favourite with the young people of his district, and his services in "tying the knot" were in request.

On one occasion, so the story goes, upon his arrival at a certain town, after a long journey, he found several couples awaiting his blessing. The poor old man was tired, and wished to make the ceremony as short as possible; so he said with the promptness for which he was noted, "Stand up and jine hands!"

This request having been complied with, he went rapidly through the marriage service which was the product of his own originality, and had at least the advantage of brevity.

"There," he said, when he had finished the ceremony, "ye can go now; ye're man and wife every one o' ye!"

Two of the couples did not at once avail themselves of this permission, and presently it came out that the sudden command to "jine" had confused them, and they had taken the hands of the wrong persons.

The old preacher's eyes twinkled with amusement as he took in the situation. But he recollected himself, and dispersed the company with a gracious wave of his hands.

"I married ye all," said he, reassuringly; "now, sort yourselves!"

In the manufacture of tobacco from the leaf sugar or molasses and gum of some kind are used. In the manufacture of "Myrtle Navy" brand the sugar used is the finest white sugar, known in the trade as granulated. This is a sugar in which there is seldom any adulteration, but to guard against the possibility of it, all sugar used in the factory is submitted to careful tests of its purity. The gum used is the pure gum arabic.

For stiffness and strains rub with Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, and then bind in flannel.

WHOLE SQUARE ABLAZE.

Philadelphia Visited by a $250,000 Fire This Morning.

A fire of unknown origin at Philadelphia last week totally destroyed the big mills owned by the William Arrot estate, and badly damaged John Williams' factory, which occupied the entire square bounded by 12th and 13th sts., Carpenter and Temple sts., causing a loss of not less than $275,000 within an hour.

Jacob Miller, manufacturer of shirts, also occupies a part of the building, and Stuart Brothers' cotton goods factory is located on the Temple street side. Both the latter places are completely gutted.

Stuart's loss will foot up $50,000, and Miller's to $25,000.

The loss on the building, which is nearly covered by insurance, is estimated at $75,000.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading.

Next-door neighbour (wrathfully): Couldn't you manage to have a little less of your daughters' 'duet playing'?"

Partical Parent: "I'll tell you what. You marry one of them: that'll soon stop it."

The young lady graduate explained to her particular friend the other day that "He kicked the bucket" was slang, and the polite expression was "He propelled his pedal extremities with violence against a familiar utensil used for the transportation of water."

"If I'm not home at ten o'clock Maria, you needn't wait for me."

"No, dear," says Maria, calmly, "I won't wait; but if you are not at home then, I'll come after you."

By 10.15 p. m. the whole family were snoring soundly.

Lady (to Legal Adviser): "You won't charge for a question, I hope?"

A medical certificate is among the treasures of London General Post Office, worded as follows: "This is to certify that I attended Mrs. — in her last illness, and that she died in consequence thereof."

"Yes," complained a grocer, 'business is dull. I have lost a good deal of trade in the last three weeks, and I can't account for it. And it seems to be getting worse and—great Scott!—I had no idea it was four o'clock!"

"Going to the bank?"

"No, cricket match. I haven't missed a game yet this season."

"There is one thing I like about your husband; he never hurries you when getting ready for a walk."

"Very little credit is due to him for that, my dear. Whenever I see that I am not likely to be ready in time I simply hide his hat or his gloves out of the way, and let him hunt for them up and down until I have finished dressing."

"I know now," remarked the young man who was sued for breach of promise, "why they call it 'courting.'"

"You were always a fault-finder," growled the wife.

"Yes, dear," responded the husband meekly; "I found you."

"I'm very glad to have been of any comfort to your husband, my good woman. But what made you send me for, instead of your own minister?"

"Well, sir, it's typhus my poor husband's got, and we dinna think it is just right for our ain dear minister to run the risk,"

A HANDSOME SUICIDE.

Jennie Wilson Was Accused of Stealing and Suffocated Herself With Gas.

The Boston Globe says: Jennie E. Wilson, 26 years old, whose home is in Halifax, N. S., lies dead at the undertaking rooms of J. Tinkham on Howard st., having committed suicide.

Miss Wilson is a handsome blonde, and was employed until recently as a chambermaid by a lady living in the Hotel Winthrop, on Bowdoin st., West End.

The deed was evidently caused by melancholia.

Yesterday she was accused by her employer of stealing, although she denied the accusation.

She left the premises, only to return again last night unknown.

She then went to the room she formerly occupied. She locked the door and turned on the gas. She then went to bed.

This forenoon the smell of gas became so strong in the house that the door to her room was burst open and she was found dead in bed.

Her parents were notified.

The young woman has been in the city but a short time, and until she was suspected of stealing nothing of the least wrong had been said against her.

PARACHUTE WAS CUT OFF

Mrs. Odell Seriously Hurt In a Fall From a Balloon

An accident occurred the other evening at Riverview, a pleasure resort a short distance from Washington D. C., which may result in the death of Mrs. Odell wife of H. N. Odell, who, with her husband, was to have made a balloon ascension and parachute leap.

The parachute became detached from the balloon at a distance of 25 feet from the ground. The knife, which was operated by a cord, and worked by the aeronaut, in some manner becoming tant, cut the rope.

Mrs. Odell, it is thought, suffered concussion of the spine. The professor was badly shaken up, but escaped serious injury.

VICTIM FROM LOWELL.

Both Legs Cut off by a Train Near Harvard Street, Dorchester.

The body of an unknown man with both legs cut off near the Abolomon was found on the tracks of the New York & New England railroad near Harvard st., Dorchester.

The body was removed to the city Hospital morgue.

The man was apparently 35 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, smooth face, dark complexioned and wore a checked suit.

In his pocket was found an insurance policy on the life of John Mann, a pedler, living at 28 Favette st., Lowell.

His pockets also contained cards bearing the name of Will Bell, 13 Central block, Lowell.

Edison, it is said, is perfecting a phonographic clock which is destined to surprise tardy visitors. It can be set for any hour—say 11 p. m. When the hands indicate this hour, the visitor is startled by hearing a voice from the clock proclaim, "Time for bed! Time for bed! Go home!"
