AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility

OR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Are your screen doors up! A bare soil is losing fertility. Give the hogs a clover range. The more talk the less sense. Hens are excellent insecticides. Dew on clover dries off slowly. Anybody can run a farm—down. Curb the haste that makes waste. Turn over a few sods for the hens. Never rush deeply into a new thing. Cheap food is not always economical. Give your team plenty of time to eat. Give the hens fresh dirt to scratch in. How do wild bees manage to winter? Keep the fence corners clear of weeds. Keep better hoes and fewer of them. Provide for a winter stock of vegetables. Keep the growing pullets by themselves. Be ambitious to grow the largest crops. Don't let weeds get large enough to pull. A good rooster is generally a healthy hog. We need cultivated brains for the farm. Truth is best expressed in short sentences. Make your farm productive and it will pay. It does not pay to milk a bothersome cow. A good pasture is excellent for pigs or hens. Keep very young chicks in a narrow range. Neglect is sometimes as serious as a crime. A nice, fat chicken always finds a market. Men are too much like sheep—want leaders. In otherwise waste places let sunflowers grow. Many a sermon might be put into a sentence. A small nostril is said to show a lack of vigor. A tree is a better roost than a crowded coop. The daily use of fruit is pleasant and healthful. Land that grows weeds will grow something else. Never hoe while the soil is wet enough to crust. A crop of kindness is a good thing to cultivate. Thin out the fruit instead of propping the limbs. Try to keep a good turf by not feeding too closely. Many a flock of hens is made a nuisance by neglect. Shoes make a horse's as well as a man's feet tender. Take a barrel of water into the field for your horses. No man knows just what he can do until he tries. Late-hatched chickens require less care than early. Ashes around the root of trees help to keep off borers. A variety of fruit best satisfies the cravings of appetite. Are your stock in as good condition as they ought to be? It is better to tame and teach than to break horses. Remember potash, hence wood ashes, is good for fruit. Millet is a quick growing crop and may be sown quite late. The quickest way to dispose of large weeds is to pull them. Hens should never be allowed to run at large in villages. Put a little slaked lime in your preparation of London purple. The cow must have her summer as well as her winter comforts. Hairs on the milker's stool have a language of their own. Oftentimes a late second crop may be grown to advantage. While the earth is yet moist is a good time to do weeding. A serious loss for the farmer is loss of confidence in himself. It is often better to have more help than to consume more time. Keep the cows clean if you would keep the milk free from odors. A judicious combination pays better than trusting to one thing. Be sure to have a succession of fruits, vegetables and flowers. Root grafted trees are much preferred by experienced orchardists. Currant worms dialke coal ashes; they are too sharp for them. Cabbage will bear a good deal of shallow hoeing before breakfast. Some consider potatoes worth one-third as much as corn to feed. There is no use of wasting manure on an exhausted strawberry bed. The man who best understands his subject uses the fewest words. Twenty-five to fifty bushels of unleached ashes may be used per acre. When tired and hungry, eat something easily and quickly digested. Many crops will the first year grow another crop between the rows. Prefer a tree with smooth bark and plenty of small, but fibrous roots. The acid in rhubarb is thought by some to injure the enamel of the teeth.

ANECDOTES, PAPPEINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS

Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe.

In Europe at this time some 27,000,000 men are ready to take field in a fortnight.

A man discovered a bundle floating down the Danube. When opened it was found to contain a living infant, who was sleeping soundly.

A fire at Wedensbury had a curious origin. The chimneys of two houses were connected by means of flues. A spark from one chimney passed down another, and, falling upon the hearthrug, set a bedroom on fire.

In the hope of making an end of the rabbit plague in Australia, there is a proposal to import the carpet snake, which is fifteen feet long, and swallows six rabbits at a meal. After devouring all the rabbits, the snake, it is said, would proceed to eat each other.

The Empress of Germany has, it is said, become very devout. She devotes a good deal of time to religious conversation, prayer and deeds of charity. She has given up novel-reading, and has ordered the women of her Court to do the same.

Dr. Sidney Webb describes London as 'a colossal breeding and training ground of individual wills and intellects.' Every day 400 children are born in it; every day 250 children in it enter school for the first time; every day 200 begin their apprenticeship; every day 150 enter married life, and every day 100 die.

As an example of the risks of authorship it is stated that of 166 books published by Messrs. Macmillan last year, 144 were accepted without the need of being read through, having been written by authors of established reputation. The remaining twenty-two offered unsolicited for publication, are the wedding of some 315.

The Queen purposes sending specimens of her own work in spinning and knitting, done when she was girl, together with some of her paintings, to the women's section of the Chicago World's Fair. Princess Christian will send some of her own embroidery; Princess Louise will contribute some clay modellings; and Princess Beatrice several paintings.

The German Emperor has sent rewards to the English lifeboatmen who saved the passengers in the steamship Eider, which became stranded off the Isle of Wight. A photograph of the Emperor, with an autograph dedication, has been addressed by his command, to the daughter of one of these men, as she distinguished herself on the same occasion.

The streets of Berlin are soon to be enriched by a large number of so-called 'Urania pillars' of which it is proposed to set up in all 300. These pillars will be about eighteen feet high, constructed of cast iron, and will each contain a clock, meteorological instruments, weather charts, astronomical and geographical announcements, and also, as in the streets of Paris, a plan of the neighboring streets in enlarged form to enable strangers to find their way.

Five cadets of the Roumanian Military School at Crajova recently committed suicide by shooting themselves with revolvers. The official inquiry, states the Vienna correspondent of the 'Standard' has disclosed the existence of a suicide club of nineteen members, among them being the five cadets in question. All the members had to swear fearful oaths to take their lives immediately after their names were drawn. No motive for the existence of this extraordinary society has been discovered.

Cardinal Manning, as has been often stated died poor, but it seems there was not enough left to bury him. Even if the few effects he selected as legacies—the picture and bust of his father—had been taken, the sale of them could not have covered the cost of the funeral. Of course there could be no question of disregarding the last wishes of the Cardinal in such a matter, and so he was buried by a subscription, which was limited to his near relatives and intimate friends. It is said that the expenses of the funeral altogether came to about £700.

Mr. E. T. Bailey, Elkhorn, Man., writes:—My daughter was sick for eleven months; she was as white as it was possible for any living person to be; was short of breath and had terrible pains and ringing noises in the head with the slightest exertion. Two boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills thoroughly cured her. Unequalled for all diseases peculiar to females. All dealers, or by mail on receipt of 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont., or Morristown, N. Y.

One of the sights of City of Hamilton is the factory in which the celebrated 'Myrtle Navy' tobacco is made. Some people may suppose that putting up plugs of tobacco must be a very simple matter, but a walk amidst the ponderous and complicated machinery of the establishment would speedily undeceive them. Here are hydraulic presses, screw presses, iron frames, all of enormous strength, besides a steam engine and many other pieces of machinery.

It is easy for the small boy to 'make a clean breast of it,' but the rub comes when you want him to wash his neck.

JINGLES OF HUMOR.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading.

The telephone takes everybody's word. Some of the latest patterns in trouserings are so loud that one can almost hear them pant.

The man who catches the largest fish is not necessarily the biggest liar.

True to the nature of the beast, many a man who in his time has cast sheep's eyes at a pretty girl has afterwards had the wool pulled over them.

Little Girl (looking at picture entitled 'We have made a grave mistake')—Oh, papa, they've gone and buried the wrong man.

Mistress—I thought I told you, Jane, a fire at Wedensbury had a curious origin. The chimneys of two houses were connected by means of flues. A spark from one chimney passed down another, and, falling upon the hearthrug, set a bedroom on fire.

In the hope of making an end of the rabbit plague in Australia, there is a proposal to import the carpet snake, which is fifteen feet long, and swallows six rabbits at a meal. After devouring all the rabbits, the snake, it is said, would proceed to eat each other.

The Empress of Germany has, it is said, become very devout. She devotes a good deal of time to religious conversation, prayer and deeds of charity. She has given up novel-reading, and has ordered the women of her Court to do the same.

Dr. Piercut—What! Do I see a police officer in a state of intoxication? Policeman—Tha'z all right, doctor. I got evidence 'gainst 15 pubs a'ready.

Servant (answering bell): My master isn't in, sir; you may leave the bill if you wish. Caller (in surprise) Bill! I have no bill. I wish to— Servant (in surprise also): No bill! Then you must have called at the wrong house.

He appreciated the moderation of the tone of the Lord Ulster convention, especially in view of Lord Salisbury's exorbitant language, but he urged them not to be hoodwinked by the representations which had been made in the convention.

GLADSTONE TALKS PLAINLY.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking at a gathering of non-conformists at Clapham the other day, said he regretted that they had been driven from the field of political policies owing to the religious differences and animosity. He was certain that the good sense of the Ulstermen would utterly repudiate Lord Salisbury's incendiary doctrines.

Mr. Gladstone denied having uttered the declaration imputed to him that the Protestants of Ulster were fools or rogues. He himself, he said, would be a fool or a rogue if he had said anything of the kind.

There was no evidence to show that after home rule had been gained for Ireland advantage would be taken of the fact to establish the Catholic church in the country. The Irish Nationalists and the Catholic members of Parliament in 1886 had agreed to the adoption of a clause in the home rule bill absolutely binding every Irish Parliament to prohibit the establishment of the Catholic church in Ireland. The allegation that the Protestants of Ireland would be taxed to maintain education in the direct interest of Catholics he pronounced to be false.

The best mode, he continued, to see how the Irish would use home rule was to see how they used the powers which they had already obtained. Nobody could allege that the Irish were governed by sectarianism in the distribution of civil offices. Experience had shown that Irish Catholics had not submitted in a tame and servile spirit to the Pope and the priests. If the priests exercised any excessive power, it must be due to the fact that the people had been deprived of legitimate freedom, and had been denied an alliance of protection and friendship which they had a right to expect from the land owners.

Can I Afford a New Dress?

Thousands of ladies are continually asking themselves this question, and many of them find it difficult to satisfactorily answer it.

The lady who has but ordinary income to depend upon for the maintenance of house and family, is apt to debate long upon this important question before a final resolve is made. Even should the way seem clear to warrant such an item of expenditure, regrets are afterwards expressed, when it was found that the money was needed in another direction.

To the thousands of ladies of Canada, with whom this question is one of perplexity and grave doubt; we would remind them of the fact, that an agent comes to their rescue and assistance, known as Fast Black Diamond Dyes for Wool, which can remove all doubt, and give to the heart its wish. At the present time Black dresses are fashionable for the best dressed ladies. Old and young—the blonde and brunette, always look stylish when wearing a neatly made Black dress.

Let us strongly recommend you to take what you now call,—"my old, soiled and faded light-colored Cashmere, Serge, Soieil Cloth, or Nun's Cloth dress"—and buy a package or two of Fast Black Diamond Dye for Wool, follow closely the directions, and with very little trouble and loss of time, and for an expense of from ten to twenty cents, you will have a lovely, rich Black dress, equal to new, and the satisfaction of knowing that you have saved a snug amount of money. If you have never tried it operation before, rest assured your work, and the results, will agreeably surprise you.

While engaged at the pleasant work of home-dyeing, remember the fact that, you may also do some work for the Diamond Dye Competition, in which large cash prizes are offered. You can easily make up some of the articles called for, and send them in with every chance of success. It costs nothing to try, and the advantages are all in your favor. All information and a book of rules sent post free to any address by the Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal.
