THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

The election of Grover Cleveland to the high position of President of the United States was probably no surprise to people on this side of the line, nor was it any to the people of the neighboring Republic, as the indications for a long time past have pointed very decidedly to a democratic victory. Cleveland has defeated Harrison in a very decisive manner, having carried all the States which were considered doubtful, such as Illionis, Indiana and New York, which at the last election was carried by the republicans.

The coming into power of a democratic president naturally creates a feeling in Canada that some of the barriers which stand in the way of our trade relations with the United States may be removed. It is certain that the result of the recent election means the defeat of the McKinley tariff bill—and not any too soon—for after its adoption the people of the United States were not long in seeing that such a policy was carrying them on to destruction. This is the second time its people have pronounced against the McKinley bill. The election for the National House of Representatives resulted in the election of a large democratic majority. A great many Canadians who desire to shut out the importation of foreign goods, and at the same time very desirous of having as little restriction as possible on the United States market for the disposal of Canadian goods. It is, nevertheless, very surprising to hear men who are out-and-out National Policy men express their approval of the election of a Democratic President in the United States, and yet always ready and anxious to support a high tariff policy in Canada. What the result of the democrats coming into power may be, is, of course, hard to say, from the fact that some time may elapse before there is a democratic senate, but it is quite probable that the senate will consider the popular voice so decidedly expressed, and will not too obstinately oppose tariff reform. An exchange referring to the matter says "The language uttered yesterday in Boston by Henry Cabot Lodge, and telegraphed to this journal, is significant. Mr. Lodge is in the House of Repesentatives and he hopes to get into the Senate. Although he has supported the high tariff he announces that he recognizes the meaning of the popular voice. Should there be a reduction in the United States tariff there will have to be a reduction in the Canadian tariff. We have seen that in the case of the sugar duties. The Canadian government, despite its declaration of belief in the merit of high tariff, speedily reduced its sugar duties after the United States had taken the step. The pretension of the Canadian administration was that it was resting under a compulsion from which it could not escape. We may, therefore, expect a re duction of tariff in Canada as a consequence of the week's election in the neighboring republic."

ALFRED TENNYSON.

Not in the present century has a poet died who has been and will continue to be more generally and sincerely mourned than Alfred Tennyson, the reason being that his genius was of that broad nature which appeal to humanity in all its moods and phases. Perhaps the verdict of time will not agree to place Tennyson in the very first rank of poets, though that is not certain, but he will undoubtedly be classed in the future, as the great expounder of pure sentiment and healthy natural, human emotion. As has been well said of him, it may be that others have spoken words which so keenly knock at the hearts of the men and women of his time.

Much of Tennyson's poetry is so familiar to English-speaking people that criticism would seem an importinence. It is hard to conceive of an intelligent American or English man or woman who is not familiar with his "Locksley Hall," "Enoch Arden," and "Princess; also "The charge of the Light Brigade," "The May Queen" "Maud" and "The Brook," all of which are household words wherever the langnage is read or spoken.

This much, however, we may say, not so much to criticise as to add a leaf to the laurel wreath which must rest upon his tomb in Westminster Abby, that Tennyson has endeared himself to all hearts, not because he was a skillful manipulator of words and a master of the use of the greatest language the world has even seen, but because he had a heart and soul attuned to the music which he knew so well how to put into verbal form. He was possessed in a marked degree of two elements which mark the true poet, intellectual delicacy and sensitiveness and emotional and spiritual sympathy. He saw into and through humanity because of his own perfection of sympathy with everything human and because his preceptive faculties were finer and keener than those of most men. He was essentially the poet of humanity.

We need give ourselves no concern for Tennyson's fame. The future will take care of that. We mourn the poet even though he had rounded out his four score years, but his best and loveliest thoughts still live, and will live as long as the world shall endure. He had richly earned intellectual immortality, and no one can take it from him even were envy and jealousy so disposed.

Mr J. DeVeber Neales, after unsuccessfully playing his cards for nomination both for and against the government in the late election, has succeeded on the strength of his being County Master of the Orange order in Queens County in securing a nomination, and will oppose Mr. Blair in that constituency on the 22nd, The electors of Queens, it is to be hoped, will not be so easily gulled by the contemptible circulars, used by Mr. Pitts and his party, as were the people of this county. There is every reason to believe that the same influences will be brought to bear in Queens. The fact that Mr. Neales has been so very shifty of late, and really did not know what side of politics he was on, can hardly be expected to make him very strong. As far as can be learned the opposition party in Qurens objected to putting up a candidate against Mr. Blair, the nomination of Mr. Neales being practically secured by Mr. Pitts, Wm. Rossborough, Wm. Anderson, and a few more of Mr. Pitts' stannch supporters, who drove down on Tuesday last for that purpose. Mr. Neales' reputatien as a politician is not the best in the world, and apparently Mr. Blair will receive a large majority on the 22nd.

The pure and independent orange and temperance representative of York has apparently forgotten all his purity and independence, and is not satisfied with the contemptible canvasses he used in York to secure his election, but has been paying a visit to Queens for the purpose of repeating the same thing in that county. He partly denied sending out the two last circulars, used in the election in this county, on declaration day, when charged by Mr. Blair as doing so, but is now taking the credit of it upon himself and says "he is proud of those little sheets." There is no doubt but that the orange and temperance societies should feel proud of Mr. Pitts as their representative; but there is a question whether they do or not, with the odds in favour of the nays.

The St. John Election.

The prospects are that Mr. George Robertson, the conservative candidate in St. John, will be returned on nomination day without any opposition. The liberals have not, up to this time, shown any desire to put forward a candidate, and in this we think they are wise. There is nothing to gain by an election at the present time, for even should the liberals succeed in returning their candidate it would not in any way affect the standing of the government, who are strongly entrenched in power. This is not to be taken, however, as an indication that the people of St. John are in favor of the Dominion Government and their policy, for we believe that if a general election should take place to-day the result would be decidedly against it. The people of St. John, and we believe, of the Maritime Provinces, are opposed to the Tory policy of trade restriction. The wisest course for the liberal party in St. John to pursue in the coming election will be to allow the present candidate to be returned without a contest and reserve their forces for future and more urgent requirements.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR.

Mr Gladstone Does Not Attend His Banquet.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—As was expected, Mr. Gladstone, Lord Roseberry and other ministers did not attend the lord mayor's banquet last night, and speeches made by representatives of government, were conspicuous for the absence of the important information that is usually imparted by the government's representatives at a lord mayor's banquet.

The toast to the ministers was responded to by the Earl of Kimberley, lord president of the council and secretary of the state for India.

His excuse for the absence of Mr. Gladstone and other members of the cabinet, was received with derisive exclaimations of "Oh."

In referring to English relation with Russia Lord Kimberley said: 'The Pamirs question was in a fair way of settlement."

Rev. W. W. Lodge preached an able sermon to the orangemen in the Methodist church at Marysville on Sunday last. A large number of the orangemen of this city and St. Marys attended.

COLUMBIA, S. C. Nov. 10.—Details of an election affray at Holand's store precinct, Anderson county, Tuesday, show three men killed and several wounded. All whites; it grew ont of a political dispnte.

The captain promised a bouquet to the lady winning. Mary won, and the purser, with some ceremony, brought in a lovely pale-green bonquet; but the low murmur of admiration was soon followed by great surprise and laughter upon discovering that the bouquet was only a cabbage, coloured with cochineal by a clever sailor belonging to the ship.

A rural debating society has up for discussion, "Which is the more happy—the boy with his first pair of trousers, or the girl with her first love letter?"

The girl, of course. The boy doesn't imprint a dozen burning kisses on his first pair of trousers.

An amusing fact in connection with the famous composer, Sir Arthur Sullivan, is not generally known, that his full name is Arthur Seymour Sullivan. but the unfortunate conjunction of the initial letters rendered necessary the dropping of one of them. His initals are now A. S., whereas they were formerly A. S. S.

It is not generally known that the value of china at Buckingham Palace and in the private apartments at Windsor considerably exceeds £200,000. In the corridor of the castle there is a buhl cabinet containing three unique Rosedu Barri vases, which were valued not long ago at £20,000, while near at hand is another cabinet, containing three veses, respectively of Sevres. He is now living in the mansion which was built for the Grants. His company sold out to the Edison Company for £250,000, and half of it went to the inventor. Messrs. SAVED BY A BEAN.

The Club Liar Relates a Lion Hunting Experience in Africa.

Some years ago, said the club liar, speaking rapidly—(if he spoke rapidly with no pauses, he thus avoided interruptions)—some years ago a gentleman and his two attendants were treed by a Nubian lion. They were journeying by the cataract of the Upper Nile, in what would have been the "garden spot" of the earth but for its fertility. It was so fertile that things planted there grew, matured and withered away to nothing before one could get time to harvest them.

Starvation stared at this gentleman and his two attendants, trapped as they were by the raging lion. Their old-fashioned muzzle loading muskets were useless. They had dropped their bullet pouch and dared not climb down.

It was the commencement of the rainy season and the rain clouds were gathering. They were starving. There was nothing for them to eat—absolutely nothing—except a er-er—except a single bean—a bean which the gentleman had found in his pocket, where he had put it months before as a souvenir—a souvenir of Boston. Now this gentleman knew beans. He noted the fast approaching rain. Then, close to the foot of the tree, he dropped the bean into the soft soil, it took root and grew.

It grew seventeen feet six and one-eighth inches each second, and as it shot up by the treetop those there had but just time to gather its crop (two bushels of the best pea beans) before it withered away and died. And they used beans for bullets and peppered the lion with them. They couldn't mortally wound him, but they did literally fill him with beans.

The clouds gathered fast, and just as they exhausted their ammunition down came the rain and wet the lion through and through. And the way those beans absorbed water was wonderful. Ten minutes after the first the drop of rain fell the lion was as big as an elephant and couldn't move The beans, as thick as maggots in cheese, just under his skin, had swelled, and he died of heart failure before the men in the tree could climb down to shoot him.—New York Herald.

ADVERTISE in THIS PAPER.

CUT HIS THROAT

With a Razor he had Bargained For While in a BurberShop.

Edward McCartney, son of Timothy McCartney of 328 Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, cut his throat the other evening with a razor, and is at the Massachusetts General Hospital, seriously injured.

Young McCartney is about 25 years of age and is a cabinet maker by trade.

He entered a barber shop at 12 Bunker Hill st., at 6.30 Thursday evening where he is well known and asked one of the barbers, James F. Sweeney, if he could buy a razor. Sweeney replied that he had none to sell but that he would get him one the next time he went over to Boston if McCartney wished it.

McCartney was persistent, and said he would give $2 for a razor, but Sweeney repeated that he had none to sell. He uggested that, perhaps the other barber, Patrick D. Feely, had one he would dispose of.

Feely said he had only one he could part with, that he gave $1.50 for it, that it was a good razor and he would sell it to McCartney for that sum.

McCartney said he would give $2 for it, but Feely was satisfied to take $1.50 and then McCartney said he would give $3 for it.

He took it to look at, and stood a moment talking, when suddenly he threw a scrap of paper into a chair and drew the razor twice across his throat.

Help was immediately summoned, and, as soon as possible the wounded man was removed in the station 1 ambulance to the hopital.

Both Feeley and Sweeney say that the young man appeared as composed and mentally sound when he was in the shop as at any previous time. He showed no signs of having been drinking, and has been seen by persons in the vicinity of the shop within the last few days, as cheerful and as sound of mind as ever he was to all appearances.

The paper he threw into the chair before attempting to kill himself was not found until the occupants began to clear up, and was then picked up, It was addressed to the young man's father, and Mr. Sullivan, in whose possession it is, refused to permit any other person to see it. He had not looked at it, and could not give an idea of its contents.
