HON. EDWARD BLAKE.

The newspapers seem to hang upon the breath of Mr. Blake, as if he were a veritable tribune, instead of what he proved to be in the letter he wrote a year ago—a backslider. So long as the Conservative organs withhold their fire upon his unfortunate head, or keep on gently patting him, for the little good he has done their cause, in his expressed opposition to unrestricted reciprocity,—just so long should the Liberals consider him a politician of undoubtful weight, if any weight at all to their side. Therefore the least said about this gentleman, the better. No doubt he is an able lawyer, but no political tactician or statesman. Whatever he may have thought of the policy or unwisdom of the party to which he professes to belong, he should have kept his opinions to himself at the critical period they were uttered, for he might have known that coming from him the Conservatives would turn them to their own advantage, and they did so. Why then show a desire for Mr. Blake to obtain a seat in parliament again, holding the views he does which are hostile to those of the party from which he never severed his connection as a party, although he inflicted upon it a terrible blow? Mr. Blake, however, is not the first great man who has fallen from political grace. But he is the first that we can remember who has stultified himself so miserably. Politicians, it is true, are allowed to change their opinions, but when they do so they go completely over to the other side, whose opinions on a great policy are like their own. The day that that letter of Mr. Blake's appeared, was the last day we could place any confidence in him as a politician. He attempted to balance himself between two stools and fell to the ground with a terrible crash.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

Parliament was formally opened by Lord Stanley on Thursday last. The speech from the throne contains nothing of any special importance, in fact it is exceptionally void of any thing that can call for a very great deal of legislation. Perhaps this is just as well for the country and a short session will no doubt be the result. The more important points in the Governor General's speech are references to the lamented death of the Duke of Clarence, the civil service and abundant harvest. Some slight refereuce to the recent trade negotiations with the United States are also made. The following is the speech :

HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE SENATE ;
GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS :

It affords me much gratification to meet you at the commencement of the parliamentary session, and tobe able to congratulate you upon the general properity of the dominion, aud upon the abundant harvest with which Providence has blessed all parts of the country.

The lamented and untimely death of his royal highness, the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, aroused a feeling of profound sorrow. The sympathy with her majesty and their royal highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in their bereavement; which has prevatled in the dominion on this melancholy occasion has found expression in respectful mes sages of condolence from my ministerss from the provincial governments, and from many other represntative bodies.

The negoitiations with respect to seal fishing in Behring Sea have been continued with a view to the adjustment, by arbitration, of the difficulties which have arisen between her majesty's government and thai of the United States on that subject. Commissioners have been appointed by both governments to investigate the circumstances of seal life in Behring Sea, to report thereon, and to suggest the measures, if any, which they may deem necessary for its proper protection and paeservation. The commissioners are proceeding with their deliberation in Washington, and the results will shortly be communicated to her majesty's government. I trust that their investigations and the determination of the arbitrators who are to be appointed may lead to a just and equitable settlement of this long-pending difficulty.

The meeting which had been arranged with the United States government for a day in October last for an fnformal discussion on the extension of trade between the two countries, and on other international matters requiring adjustment, was postponed at their request. But, in compliance with a more recent intimation from that government, three of my ministers proceeded to Washington and conferred with representatives of the administration of the United States on those subjects. Amicable understanding was arrived at respecting the steps to be taken for the establisment of the boundary of Alaska and for reciprocity of services in cases of wreck and salvage. Arrangements were also reached for the appointment of an international commission to report on the regulations which may be adopted by the United States and Canada for the prevention of destructive methods of fishing and the pollution of streams and for establishing uniformity of close seasons and other means for the preservation and increase of fish. A valuable and friendly interchange of views respecting other important matters also took place.

In accordance with the promise given at the close of the last session, a commission has been issued to investigate the working of the civil service act, and other matters connected with the civil service generally. Mhe report of this commission will be laid before you during the present session.

The conclusion of the commission on he manufacture of beet root sugar will also be laid before you.

It is desirable that the fishery regulations in British Columbia should be examined and revised so as to adapt them better to the requirements of the fisheries in that provence. A commission has been issued with that object.

An important measure respecting the criminal law, which was laid before you last sesion, has boen revised and improved, as a result of the expression of views elicited by its presentation to parliment and will be submitted to you.

Your attention will also be directed to measures for the redistribution of seats consequent upon the census returns the establishment of the boundaries of the territories and the amalgamation of the department of marine and fisheries.

Bills will also be presented to you for amendment of the civil service act, the acts relating to real property in the territories and of those respecting the fisheries.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons"

The accounts for the past year will be laid before you, as well as the estimates have been prepared with a due regard to economy and the requirements of the public service.

"Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate"
"Gentlemen of the House of Commons"

I commend these important subjects and all matters affecting the public interests, which may be brought before you to your best consideration and I feel assured you will address yourselves to them with earnestness and assiduity.

THE ASSEMBLY ROOM.

When the local legislature meet for the despatch of business on Thursday next, the members and people will not know the assembly room which has undergone such vast change since last session. The improvements made in the interior of the parliament buildings have been well and judiciously carried out, and great judgement has been exercised in the choice of colors and general decoration of the assembly room. Premier Blair is deserving of much credit, and we suppose the other York county representatives are also entitled to a share of the praise for a part of the improvements made. We doubt if any handsomer assembly room can be found anywhere than this one. The negligence displayed by the original contractor of the parliament buildings has necessitated a large expenditure of money in the present case, which otherwise would not have been required. The present government, however, were wise in carrying out all the improvements now, thus "killing two birds with one stone."

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

The City Council are to meet in regular session on Tuesday evening next when we presume Alderman Farrell will bring forward his resolution respecting commercial travellers. This resolution, as we stated in a previous issue, it is expected will be favoring the re-adoption of a license for representatives or agents of commercial houses, and we again express our firm approval of such a law and think it should be again enforced. It is to be hoped the members of the council will look well into this matter and give the motion a hearty support—in fact we would like to see a unanimous vote cast in its favor. The Fredericton Globe will strongly support the mover and adoption of the old License Law.

Joseph Darby, the wonderful jumper, accomplished a number of marvelous performances during his benefit at Rowlands circus, Wolverhamption, England, recently. He cleared 36 feet in three spring jumps; jumped 6 feet 5½ inches in two standing springs, and then cleared full sized billiard table, taking off from a block of wood raised four inches from the ground.

It is reported that the appointment of Hugh McD. Henry to the supreme court bench of Nova Scotia, will be announced in a few days.

He Was a Good Listener.

'Yes,' said the voluble man to his neighbor in a tramcar, 'I always like to talk with you because I learn something. You have something to say. You don't sit like a bump on a log and let another man do all the talking. You have ideas, and you express them.'

'I flatter myself,' began the other, but he was immediately interfered with.

'That's the way you see it is. I can sit and hear you talk all day, while there are men I wouldn't listen to a minute.'

'I was going to say——'

'I told my wife only last night that I could get more good solid information in hearing you talk ten minutes than I could in listening to some men a week.'

'May I remark——'

'There's that Smith. I get up and leave the car at once whenever I see him enter. Good enough fellow, too, but he wants to talk all the time, and there's nothing in it. I'm not much of a talker myself, but I do like to get a word in edgeways occasionally.'

'If you will allow me——'

'I don't see how you manage to pick up so much information on all kinds of subjects. I don't want to flatter you, but you seem to be posted on almost everything.'

'If you would give me a moment——'

'I would talk all the time if as good as you are at it. Folks often say to me, 'Jones, why don't you talk?' but I know enough to keep still when men are about who know by a long chalk more than I do.'

'To talk well one must have——'

'That's just it, you see. One must have a good listener. Now what I admire myself for more than anything else is, I'm a good listener. I can ride all the way along this road listening to you as I am doing now, and hardly open my mouth to say a word. Cause why? I know a good talker when I hear one.'

'But you don't——'

'Oh, yes, I do. I understand everything you say on the subject, but of course I can't dress up in such language as you use. You are a natural talker. I am not. You open your mouth and words run out clear as a brook, and I can't help but listen.'

'Would you indulge me for a moment while——'

'Well, I get off here' (rising and shaking hands). 'You don't know how much I have enjoyed listening to you this morning. Instructive as ever, I see. Wish I might happen to fall in with you every morning in going down to the City. Good-bye—good-bye.

A cure for Hiccoughs Found.

Sea Isle City, N. J., Feb. 20.—Miss Flora Springer, the Goshen young lady who has been afflicted with hiccoughs for nearly a month, has at last found relief. Of a hundred or more remedies sent to the family two proved effective. That recommending from four to six drops of nitrate of amyle placed on a hankerchief and inhaled at intervals has saved the young lady's life. Levison H. Debow, of 84 Broadway, New York City, sent the remedy to the worlds correspondent on Wednesday and it was forwarded to the family. The physicians attending Miss Springer had given up her case. The other letter, giving nitrate of amyle as a sure cure, was sent from Concord, N. H. The young lady is rapidly recovering.

CHARACTER IN CIGARS.

A man's thoughts may be read in his cigar.

The way he holds it between his lips will give the observer a suggestion as to what manner of man the smoker is. There are men who don't smoke at all, but who always have a cigar in their mouth. In fact they have what is called a 'cigar mouth'.

The man who presses his teeth through a cigar and chews more than he smokes is a determined fellow.

He who rolls it about in his mouth takes life easy, and never finds fault.

He who points it upwards at an angle of 45 degrees is mild-mannered and content, but would be pig-headed if the circumstances of his surroundings should inquire it.

To hold the cigar straight out and send puffs of smoke along either side shows the smoker to be of a meditative turn of mind.

Clerk: 'I've called in answer to your advertisement for a clerk sir.'

Employer: 'Are you good at imitating handwriting?'

Clerk 'eagerly': Oh, yes, sir! I'm really quite gifted that way.'

Employer: 'Then you won't do for me. My last clerk I had forged my name to a cheque!'

An enterprising firm in South London has started a new idea. It has a handsomely-painted omnibus, luxuriously fitted up inside, drawn by a high-stepping horse, and driven by a coachman in livery. On the outside is painted, in large letters, the intimation that customers visiting this establishment are carried to and fro in the 'bus free of charge. The back part of the vehicle is open, and all a customer has to is to hail the omnibus, jump in, and be driven to where he wants to go, being taken back home with the purchases he has made.

He Took Refuge in the Coal Cellar.

The late Dr. Wightman, one night sitting up later than usual, sunk in the profundities of a great idea, imagined he heard a sound in the kitchen inconsistent with the quietude and security of a manse; so, taking his candle, he proceeded to investigate the cause. His foot being heard in the passage, the housemaid began with earnestness to damp the fire, as if preparing for bed.

'Ye're late up to-night' Mary'

'I'm just rakin' fire, sir, and gaun to bed.'

'That's right' Mary, I like timeous hours.'

On his way back to the study he passed the coal cellar, and, turning the key, he took it with him. Next morning at an early hour there was a rap ot his bedroom door and a request for the key to light the fire.

'Ye're too soon up Mary; go back to your bed yet.'

Half an hour later there was another knock, and a similar request in order to prepare the breakfast.

'I don't want breakfast so soon, Mary; go back to your bed.'

Another half hour and another knock, with an entreaty for the key as it was washing-day. This was enough. He rose and handed out the key, saying :—

'Go and let the man out.'

Mary's sweetheart had, as the doctor shrewdly suspected been imprisoned in the coal cellar, where, Pyramis and Thisbe like, they had breathed their love to each other through the keyhole.
