CORRESPONDENCE.

Oakville.

JULY 24.—I did not have the pleasure of being at Sabbath school last Sunday, but I was informed by way of a slant, "that a certain gentleman,—a leading figure in the camp meeting scheme—spoke with considerable indignation, of the 'Worthy Scribe' who stated in The Dispatch, the meetings would begin on August 4, as something might happen to prevent. Can it be possible that the religious 'flatus' has passed so suddenly? From the way things look at present, those who come would be much more welcome, if they were to bring their baskets of 'lunch' with them.

Mrs. John Davis, has been taking a well earned and much needed rest, visiting friends in Bellville.

The "servant girl" has been the chief topic of conversation here, for some time, what a girl should, and should not do? What wages she ought to get and etc. Some people pay them on the "take so much or nothing plan."

Who got left picnic day? Having is progressing quite rapidly here, and some farmers expect to finish in a few days.

Rev. Mr. Rice, the new preacher, preached here a few Sundays ago. He made a very favourable impression on those who listened to his discourse. The Sabbath school is still without a regular superintendent. There might surely be some godly person to take the position.

Oats give promise of being an extra crop here this year.

Would it be well to have choir practice here, every Saturday night. Vacation is rapidly passing, and ere long the bright faces of the little "Skule Marm's," will be seen on all sides.

New Denmark.

JULY 25.—Rev. N. M. Hansen who resigned his position here this spring sold his property last week. Mr. Hansen goes to Portland, Maine.

The hay crop will be light here this year, several of the farmers will be through haying this week. The grain looks well, a little rain, though, would be appreciated.

The Cheese Company is not doing quite so well this year as last, owing to the small quantity of milk coming in. They only have about 2500 pounds a day.

The Patrons of Industry have had two pleasant trips to Toby Brook lately. At their last meeting they decided to have a new meeting house built as soon as possible and a committee was appointed to choose a site and buy materials.

Peel.

JULY 25.—A daring robbery was committed here on Thursday night of last week. The station house was broken into and robbed. The robber by breaking the glass in the window got into the building and at once proceeded to look for valuables. He obtained between twenty and thirty dollars in cash, and took a rubber cloak belonging to Mrs. Ella Harmon, the station mistress. The post office and store of J. K. Flemming are also in the same building. He got a considerable quantity of postage stamps from the office, and finding no other valuables, proceeded to search the store. He was no doubt disappointed in finding the till empty. After taking several articles of clothing he went up stairs to examine the boot and shoe department. Finding a pair of tan shoes that suited him he put them on and soon left the building, leaving as the only clue by which he might be identified an old pair of no. 9 shoes. There have been several arrests made, but as yet they have not found out as to whom the robber or robbers may have been. The most strenuous efforts should be made by the authorities to bring such parties to justice, for while they are at large no person's property is safe.

Hartland.

JULY 27.—Miss Campbell, of Boston, is visiting at James Campbell's.

W. D. Keith and Mrs. Keith, have gone to St. John and to Havelock Springs for a week or ten days visit.

Benjamin Connelly, formerly a resident of this village, now of Cambridgeport, Mass., is visiting his brother Cornelius Connelly.

Sperry L. Shea, visited this village last week in the interest of H. Paxton Baird.

Dr. E. W. Stevens, arrived from Philadelphia on Saturday to spend his summer vacation in this vicinity.

Bristol.

JULY 29.—Dr. M. C. Atkinson's death occurred yesterday about 2 p. m. after a protracted illness during which he suffered very much. His death has been expected for some time, and it had been reported to have taken place. The funeral will take place Wednesday morning under the auspices of the I. O. F. of which he was a member.

What Shall I Read?

"I had a wretched time!" declared a bright girl, after attending the meeting of a young folks' literary club. "I did not have one comfortable minute, for, as I was a guest, they tried to entertain me, and they talked most of the time about books I hadn't even seen."

"So you found yourself in too deep water?" suggested her mother.

"I don't know," was the frank reply. "If your system of education is correct, the water was too shallow, for they spent their time talking about the new novels you won't let me read."

The general tendency of the day does, in fact, seem to be in the direction of "keeping up" with the fast-rolling flood of modern literature, and the person who has the courage to read only the books whose value has been proved, is likely to find himself temporarily disgraced through his ignorance of those which may be forgotten in three months.

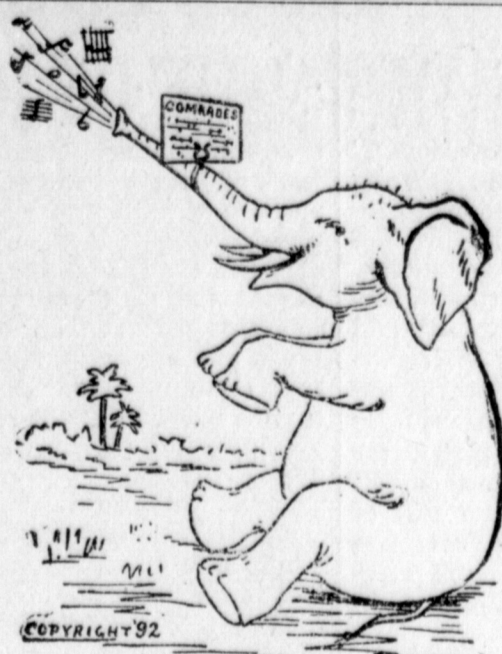

"What! haven't you read 'Vulcan's Sceptre'?" cries and acquaintance. Why, everybody is reading it? You can't get a copy at the libraries, unless you speak for it weeks beforehand.

Yet, in a very few months, even the plot of "Vulcan's Sceptre" has been forgotten, and the novel-reading public is going wild over "Neptune's Tripent."

Disraeli said, "A great thing is a great book," leaving us to draw the counter conclusion that a little book is an insignificant thing, which should claim no attention from busy people.

"When a new book come out I read an old one," said one of the worthies who knew how to estimate whatsoever things are good in literature, and that temperate plan is a safe one to follow—at least until we have exhausted all the standard works of tested excellence.

Said the poet Rogers, "A man who attempts to read all the new productions must do as the flea does—skip." In other words, he must read fast and slightly, knowing that he will belong, in the end, to the class of people who can talk about almost everything, but do not have a thorough knowledge of anything.

Of course, it would be absurd to assume that there are no new books worth the reading, and the person who follows the sage direction to "read only those which are at least a year old" will run less chance of mental indigestion than he who greedily devours whatever comes from the press.

After all, there is but on safe rule to follow in this busy world—the maxim of Buffon, to "read only the works of men of genius." —Youths Companion.
