DR. THOMSON'S MED. CO.,—Dear Sirs: My wife having been a sufferer from indigestion and languor, was induced to try your Sarsaparilla. The result is miraculous. She was relieved by one bottle. Her appetite the best for years. As an alternative and tonic it has no superior. This statement, for the benefit of suffering humanity, we give freely.

To What Age May a Man Live?

The new physiologists who try to measure the movements of brain cells and invent machines to calculate the flow of nervous energy tells us that man is an unnatural creature. He was not meant for any such work as he puts himself to. It was not intended that he should use his brain under pressure ten hours a day, and tax his digestion with vast quantities of food at intervals which keep the digestive process in constant and active operation. Considering the irrational way in which people live and work, the human race makes, they admit, a brave fight for existence, and the fact that a man individually manages to live so long as he does and leaves an ever-increasing progeny is a tribute to his prowess. Physicians have made great progress in the treatment of disease within a half-century, and there is every reason to hope that they will make many conquests in the next half-century. Under their care human life ought to be much prolonged, if it were not for the fact that the discoveries of science hardly more than keep pace with the new agencies of destruction which come with the highly developed conditions of society. The problem of lengthening the span of life is one of balance, the ratio of increase in death-dealing agencies and in preventive and curative knowledge. Pioneer days were hard on life. We think of the fathers as old men when, in fact, they were mostly young. Not only was medical science in a primitive state, but conditions of life, exposure, ill-heated homes, badly-cooked food, excessive physical labor, the "wear and tear" of a civilized man's fight against nature for existence in surroundings better fitted for a savage—all made a more than average constitution a condition for even a moderate span of life. Those evils have gone, but with them has gone the simplicity which robbed them of half their bad effect. The modern man lives more comfortably, but he subjects himself to more external dangers. When he learns to make use of all that science teaches while at the same time he guards himself against the accidents of civilization, and, above all, keeps himself from being carried away by its unrest and its luxury, he may hope for a longer lease of life. It was not the hardships of the old time, but its simplicity which made vigorous men. It will not be the comforts of the future, but its temptations to unhealthful and unnatural living, that will most threaten longevity. —New York Tribune.

Lumber Rafting on the Pacific.

According to advices from the Pacific coast the last and most successful, as well as the largest piece of rafting ever attempted, was the bringing in safety to San Francisco of a monster raft containing 9,000,000 feet of logs and drawing nineteen feet of water. This vast aggregation of logs was brought from the mouth of the Columbia river to San Francisco bay for the use of the Southern Pacific Railroad in the repair of its various bridges and trestles on the east shore of the bay. The voyage down the Pacific was devoid of exciting incident and no mishap occurred. In San Francisco harbor, however, when an attempt was made to tow the monster to Oakland creek, it ran away with a tug boat and for a time threatened to cut up all sorts of capers, but it was finally gotten to the creek and broken up. It was 525 feet long and 50 feet wide, and the piles placed end to end would reach 90 miles. It was started from Astoria in July. It was valued at $35,000 while the cost of transporting it by rail to its destination would have been nearly $25,000.

A Hot Job.

"I was called in the other day," said a well known doctor, "to attend a typhoid fever patient. The man was a Scandinavian, a railway fireman, and was very sick. He was delirious for several days, and when I called and found him rational. I asked him how he had slept. With an effort, for he was very weak, he replied:
" 'Ay hae bane dreuning al nite dat ay hae bane fireman for devil.' He paused a moment, and wiping the perspiration from his face, said in an impressive tone: " 'Ay tal yo dat hae bane dam hot job.' "

NOTICE.

To the Heirs, Executors and Administrators of William Skillen late of the Town of Woodstock in the County of Carleton, and Mary Ann Skillen, his wife, both now deceased, and all others whom it may in anywise concern:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain Indenture of Mortgage bearing date the Fourteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and made between the said William Skillen of the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Carleton, Province of New Brunswick, gentleman, and Mary Ann, his wife, (both now deceased) of the one part and Louisa Fisher of the same place, widow, of the other part; and duly recorded in Book A. Number Three, of Carleton County Records on pages 387, 388 and 389 on the Sixteenth day of April, A. D., 1883, there will, for the purpose of satisfying the $1883 secured by the said Indenture of Mortgage, default having been made in the payment thereof, be sold at Public Auction, in front of the office of Hartley & Carvell, Barristers-at-Law, in the said Town of Woodstock, ON THURSDAY THE NINETEENTH DAY of the month of SEPTEMBER NEXT, at the hour of three of the clock in the afternoon, the Lands and Premises mentioned and described in the said Indenture of Mortgage as follows:—

All that certain household lot, piece or parcel of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Town of Woodstock and County aforesaid on the North side of the Meduxnakik River, being part and parcel of a lot of land leased and assigned by one Hugh Harrison and George Jewett to one James Grover by a lease dated on or about the twentieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and forty six, and more particularly described as follows, that is to say, commencing on the western side of the main highway at the north-east corner of the said whole lot so leased by said Harrison and Jewett to said James Grover, thence westerly along the northern boundary line of said whole lot one hundred and twenty feet, thence southerly and parallel with said highway forty-two feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with the northern boundary of said whole lot so leased by said Harrison and Jewett to the said James Grover one hundred and twenty feet or until it intersects the main highway, thence along the main highway a distance of forty-two feet to the place of beginning, being part of land and premises mentioned in the original lease from one James Grover to one Broadstreet Tompkins and part of that piece or parcel of land mentioned in an assignment from Charles Connell to John T. Allen, and subsequently assigned to the said Mary Ann Skillen by Indenture registered in Book Z. No. 2, said Carleton County Records on pages 45 and 46 the twenty second day of May A. D. 1892." Together with the buildings thereon and the appurtenances thereto, belonging for and during and until the full end and expiration of the term of years in said original lease of said premises specified.

The Armenian Question.

The British government have two foreign questions on hand, which require sagacious and firm handling. We refer to the massacre of British missionaries in China and the wholesale massacre of Christians by Turks in Armenia. There is, as might have been expected, a similarity in the manner in which the Chinese government and "the Sublime Porte," as it is termed, treat the questions which respectively concern them. Each government treats the question after Oriental methods. That is, they fence with matters in hand, they prevaricate, and do their best to consume time. It so happens the massacre of missionaries in China is undisputed. So far the matter is simple enough. In the next place it concerns this country alone. We are not mixed up with other countries in asking for satisfaction, and must do our own work in our own way. It is different with Turkey and the Armenian Question. That is a question which effects Christendom. The seat of the Turkish Empire is in Europe. Turkey is under obligations to Europe to effect reforms in Armenia, and to treat the subjects of Armenia as human beings entitled to protection. But it is this obligation to Europe which complicates the business, and Turkey knows it. There are rival interests and ambitions in and around Turkey. France is reluctant, on account of our holding Egypt, to earnestly co-operate with England in demanding satisfaction from Turkey. Russia, which has her own game to play in the East, inclines toward France in the treatment of the Armenian question. There is consequently friction and delay. The Sultan looks on and does nothing. He declines, an independent Sovereign, to accept the advice of the acting powers, wraps himself up in measureless egotism, and apparently defies Europe. But every day he assumes this attitude he is in reality weakening himself. He is cunning, but not cunning enough. There is another power on his border that is as cunning, if not more cunning, than he is, and certainly much stronger; and this power—Russia—is ever ready to take advantage of the mistakes or the growing weakness of the Turk.—Echo, Aug. 21.

A Protest from the Doctors.

The doctors of Colorado recently convened at Denver. They are finding that people born in Colorado are falling victims to consumption. This is attributed to the constant influx of diseased persons into certain sections of the State. The doctors denounce as criminal the carelessness of many afflicted with this dread malady. Pamphlets giving instruction how to destroy the sputum which contains the bacilli are now circulated. The doctors urge the building of sanitariums on cottage plan, and the preventing of the gathering of a number of consumptives where there is no attempt at scientific care and disinfection. The doctors urged the building of some cottages by the government. If the government does this, it should also place in close connection some industries and employments that would give an income to those compelled to support themselves. Hundreds of men and women go to Colorado for their health who must at the same time have some wage-earning employment. Idleness has killed many who might have lived longer if their time had been used in some way. Idleness is the child of the devil, but it is often the energetic assistant of death.—Outlook.
