DR. THOMSON'S MED. CO.,—Dear Sirs:
 My wife having been a sufferer from indigestion and languor, was induced to try your Sarsaparilla. The result is miraculous. She was relieved by one bottle. Her appetite the best for years. As an alternative and tonic it has no superior. This statement, for the benefit of suffering humanity, we give freely.

KEEP A-GOIN'!

If you strike a thorn or rose,
 Keep a-goin'!
 If it hails or if it snows,
 Keep a-goin'!
 Taint no use to sit an' whine
 When the fish ain't on your line;
 Bait your hook an' keep on tryin'—
 Keep a-goin'!

When the weather kills your crop,
 Keep a-goin'!
 When you tumble from the top,
 Keep a-goin'!
 S'pose you're out o' every dime?
 Gettin' broke ain't any crime;
 Tell the world you're feelin' prime!
 Keep a-goin'!

When it looks like all is up,
 Keep a-goin'!
 Drain the sweetness of the cup,
 Keep a-goin'!
 See the wild birds on the wing!
 Hear the bells that sweetly ring!
 When you feel like sighin'—sing!
 Keep a-goin'!

In the Electric Chair.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Richard Leach was electrocuted on Monday last for the murder of his common law wife, Mary H. Leach. He was a young man, and by occupation a florist. He met the woman whom he murdered at a resort in Twenty-sixth street. She was no better than the police of that part of the town said she was. She went to live with Leach. It is said she was very much in love with him. If she had confined her attentions to loving him it would have been all right, but unfortunately she thought more about whisky than she did about him. Leach, led by her, soon fell into a habit of drinking too much, and in a fit of drunkenness, it is said, he killed her. The murder took place December 11, 1894. A little more than a month later, January 16, 1895, Leach's trial began. The defence was that the woman committed suicide. The jury, however, found Leach guilty of murder in the first degree, and the date of his execution was fixed by the court. His counsel appealed the case, but the Supreme Court affirmed the decision reached in the lower court. Leach's case is remarkable, inasmuch as his execution took place eight months after his crime, an almost unprecedented period in these days of stays and appeals.

Rev. Charles F. Y. Bourque, P. Q., St. Alexandre de Kamouraska, Prov. Quebec, Canada: "As to the merits of your medicine K. D. C., I can assure you that it has been a great benefit both to myself and to one of my parishioners, for whom I had requested several packages. If I am ever troubled again with dyspepsia I shall not hesitate to make use of your remedy."

Adopting the Latest.

German ladies have at length decided to adopt the bicycle, and at the same time the costumes which shocked them so terribly at first. At the "Corso" just held in Berlin all the fair "wheelers" dispensed with skirts, and wore garments, in many instances, far from becoming or tasteful. The members of the Berlin Ladies' Bicycle Club appeared in Eton jackets and tight-fitting knee-breeches of dark blue cloth, white vests and small white "Cantonier" hats, which were far more becoming to the majority of wearers. The crowds of sight-seers commented with extreme freedom on the appearance of the performers and when they did not approve did not hesitate to proclaim the fact. One costume made of Tussore silk, with jacket and cap matching, met with universal applause, and the wearer was cheered as she spun zaijly along on a bicycle very prettily adorned with crimson roses, but a stout and elderly dame in an elaborate white gown, all frills and furbelows was greeted with ironical laughter and comments that were needlessly unkind.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla never before equaled its present daily record of marvelous cures.

Scotch Minister's Compliment.

Dean Ramsey tells of a witty and graceful compliment paid by a Scotch minister to a young lady, daughter of a neighboring laird. It was the custom of this and other Scotch parishes for the minister to bow to the laird's pew before beginning his discourse. On one occasion the pew contained a bevy of ladies, and the minister, feeling a delicacy in the circumstances, omitted the usual salaam. When they next met, the laird's daughter—a Miss Miller—widely famed for her beauty, and afterwards Countess of Mar, rallied the minister in the presence of her companions for not bowing to her from the pulpit. "Your ladyship forgets," replied the minister, "that the worship of angels is not allowed by the Scotch Church."

Young Friends.

TEKONSHA, MICH., Aug. 12.—A most brutal and shocking affair took place in Burlington recently. Five youths procured a quantity of liquor of some kind and after partaking freely of the same they caught a poor cat, put out its eyes, and after saturating the poor animal with kerosene set it on fire. The frenzied cat ran under the steps of the school building and set fire to the house. The fire was put out before much damage was done. Some of the young rascals were arrested and the remainder have fled to parts unknown.

NOTICE.

To the Heirs, Executors and Administrators of William Skillen late of the Town of Woodstock in the County of Carleton, and Mary Ann Skillen, his wife, both now deceased, and all others whom it may in anywise concern:
 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain Indenture of Mortgage bearing date the Fourteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, and made between the said William Skillen of the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Carleton, Province of New Brunswick, gentleman, and Mary Ann, his wife, (both now deceased) of the one part and Louisa Fisher of the same place, widow, of the other part; and duly recorded in Book A, Number Three, of Carleton County Records on pages 387, 388 and 389 on the Sixteenth day of April, A. D. 1883, there will, for the purpose of satisfying the moneys secured by the said Indenture of Mortgage, default having been made in the payment thereof, be sold at Public Auction, in front of the office of Hartley & Carvell, Barristers-at-Law, in the said Town of Woodstock, ON THURSDAY, the NINETEENTH DAY of the month of SEPTEMBER NEXT, at the hour of three of the clock in the afternoon, the Lands and Premises mentioned and described in the said Indenture of Mortgage as follows:—
 "All that certain leasehold lot, piece or parcel of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Town of Woodstock and County aforesaid on the North side of the Meduxakik River, being part and parcel of a lot of land leased and assigned by one Hugh Harrison and George Jewett to one James Grover by a lease dated on or about the twentieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and forty six, and more particularly described as follows, that is to say, commencing on the western side of the main highway at the north east corner of the said whole lot so leased by said Harrison and Jewett to said James Grover, thence westerly along the northern boundary line of said whole lot one hundred and twenty feet, thence southerly and parallel with said highway forty-two feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with the northern boundary of said whole lot so leased by said Harrison and Jewett to the said James Grover one hundred and twenty feet or until it intersects the main highway, thence along the main highway a distance of forty-two feet to the place of beginning, being part of land and premises mentioned in the original lease from one James Grover to one Broadstreet Tompkins and part of that piece or parcel of land mentioned in an assignment from Charles Connell to John T. Allen, and subsequently assigned to the said Mary Ann Skillen by Indenture registered in Book Z, No. 2, said Carleton County Records on pages 45 and 46 the twenty second day of May A. D. 1892." Together with the buildings thereon and the appurtenances thereunto belonging for and during and until the full end and expiration of the term of years in said original lease of said premises specified.

Dated this First day of August, A. D. 1895.

Trial by Jury.
 One of the conundrums of the age is the reason that underlies the absurd treatment of the petit jury when hearing a case in court. The jury is herded together like so many cattle in charge of a shepherd. No matter what their digestive apparatus may be like, the old-time twenty-five cent dinner is placed before them and they may take it or leave it as they please. In the court room when deliberating on the question before them the atmosphere is generally foul enough to send a man to sleep. And as a fitting climax for this kind of treatment, the jury is finally placed in a ten by ten sweatbox, the door of which is locked, and in which they must remain until a verdict has been arrived at. In many court houses throughout the province this sweatbox is without ventilation, and for the most part it is without chairs and other conveniences. In consequence of this lack of the ordinary necessities of health and comfort, we find the jury subject to a vicious atmosphere that befores the intellect and prevents jurors from intelligently discussing the matter in hand. It would not be a more rational proceeding on the part of a farmer to whip a cow because it would not give milk than it is to lock a jury up in a sweatbox, and to extort, as it were, by force, a verdict from them. The poisoned atmosphere of the sweatbox, rendered more noxious by clouds of tobacco smoke and the emanations of tobacco juice on the floor, is very trying upon the nervous system. There is no doubt that this absurd way of handling a jury has not a little to do with many of the absurd verdicts that are given.

In the July number of The Popular Science Monthly, Dr. T. D. Crothers writes of the jury system from a medical point of view. He arrives at the conclusion that the average twelve men are usually incompetent naturally, and are generally placed in the worst possible conditions and surroundings to even exercise commonsense in any disputed case. He gives the following study of an individual case recently tried:—
 "The case was murder, in which an intricate chain of circumstantial evidence pointed to one of three men as guilty. The jury was composed of five farmers, four mechanics and three merchants. Nine of them were active muscle-workers, living in the open air most of the time, and three were actively engaged indoors. The trial lasted eleven days. The jury were boarded at a hotel, and had no exercise except walking to and from the hotel to the courtroom three times a day. Four of the jury complained of a dull headache. On the fourth day, five of the jury had attacks of indigestion, with pain and nausea. One had chills on the night of the same day, and was given quinine freely. Two men had attacks of what was called rheumatism, consisting of pain and stiffness of the muscles, and a physician was called. Eight suffered from insomnia and constipation after the fifth night. All suffered from bad feeling and dizziness while in the courtroom and in the afternoons. Four had coughs and colds, for which rock candy and rye whisky were freely used. Several experienced drowsiness in the courtroom. The arguments of counsel and the judge's charge occupied a day and a half. After the verdict and the discharge of the jury four of them were confined to bed for several days. Here were twelve men, suffering from functional disturbances due to bad air, changed surroundings and auto-intoxications, called to decide the issues of life and death."
 Without attempting to propose any reforms, the doctor reiterates his belief at the close of the article that unfair and illogical verdicts are the natural outcome of placing untrained men in positions which they cannot fill and requiring of them clear judgment under circumstances where it is almost impossible to act normally. As long as we have faith in the jury system, we ought at least to see that the jurors when attending to their duties are surrounded by such physical and sanitary conditions as are conducive to their comfort and well-being.

Instead of locking the jury up, it is a question, viewing the matter from another point of view, if they should not be compelled to carry on their deliberations in open court. One great objection to the jury system is the fact that no responsibility whatever attaches to a jurymen for his finding. He comes to the court, an unknown person from the township sideline, and after his duties are fulfilled he goes back again, and there all trace of him is lost. On the contrary, when a case is tried by a judge alone, it is necessary for him to state the reasons for his conclusions, and it is the fact that his judgments are open to review that causes him to be so careful in arriving at his conclusions. That improvement could be made in the trial of criminals is apparent from the number of manifestly wrong verdicts that are given. The weakest feature of the jury system is the total lack of responsibility attaching to those who compose it. If the inside working of the petit jury was fully exposed, as it would be if the jurors were made to argue their case in open court, we would soon witness an improvement, both in the selection and treatment of jurors. By locking up the jury we cover up one of the most defective parts in our system of trial. We get rid of a difficulty by ignoring it. Like the ostrich, we bury our heads in the sand.—Toronto World.
